Taft Price Doctrine Branded Dangerous, Fallacious by Truman

Blast at Senator Breaks 5-Month Armistice With GOP Leadership

(Mr. Truman's Statement, Page 10.)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday hit Senate GOP Steersman Robert A. Taft for what he said was Taft's "boom and bust" doctrine on prices.

Breaking his five-month armistice with the Republican high command, the President said Taft's ideas on prices are "fallacious and dangerous."

To assembled newsmen, he read a 1000-word prepared statement taking Taft to task for saying loans to other countries for the purchase of goods here increase the competition on home markets and thus force prices up.

What particularly raised his ire was this recent Taft statement: "Apparently the President and the Administration are abandoning talk of keeping prices down in favor of heavy spending abroad that will keep them up."

Renews Price Cut Plea

Renewing his appeal for more voluntary price cuts particularly in industrial products, the President said:

"To say that we should abandon our efforts directed toward enduring world peace and freedom because these efforts create economic problems is like saying that we should have abandoned our war effort because it created economic problems . . .

"There is nothing novel and nothing worthy about getting a price collapse through reducing the demand. That is the typical road to depression.

"The problem facing the American people is to maintain full employment, full production, and high demand, and still to keep prices at reasonable levels . . ."

Taft to Reply Later

Taft declined immediate comment, but said he would reply later. The Ohioan's aides said his time yesterday was taken up handling the labor bill conference report now nearing a Senate vote.

It was the first time since the Republican Congress took over that the President had singled out a congressional leader for direct attack. Observers viewed it as White House unveiling of the 1948 season, with price rises theming the opener.

They speculated on whether the President will follow through with veto attacks on the tax reduction and labor bills. Taft was a leading draftsman of both bills. The first is now at the White House await-

Hesitant Wallace Concludes He Won't Support Truman

Raleigh, N. C., June 5 (AP).—Former Vice President Henry A. Wallace, asked at a press conference here today if he would support President Truman for re-election, said "That depends," then after a moment's hesitation, added: "I would say, 'No.'"

Wallace said if the "Truman Doctrine continues to be followed, the Administration will be calling for war."

Wallace had criticized President Truman's foreign policy and assistance to Greece and Turkey.

Here for a public address tonight, Wallace talked to reporters at the home of his host, Josephus Daniels, publisher of the Raleigh News and Observer and former Navy Secretary and Ambassador.

Asked if he planned to lead in the formation of a third party, Wallace replied: "I'm doing everything I can to make the Democratic Party a liberal party. If the Democratic Party becomes a war party, a party of reaction and depression, then I'll no longer be a Democrat."

Wallace said: "I cannot imagine myself campaigning for a Republican under any circumstances," but added that he held Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota who is seeking the Republican nomination and Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon in "high esteem."

The trouble with "fine Republicans," he said, is that on the national level they have to work with a group dominated by "special interests" so that they "break their hearts."

Asked if he thought Russian leaders were working for peace, Wallace said "they absolutely have to for the next 10 years. After that, I don't know."

He said the United Nations lacks vigor because the United States and Russia have not trusted it.

In answer to a question about the present political situation in Hungary where the Communists apparently have seized control, Wallace said he felt the situation was "very much different from what has been painted in the American

Army Voted 5 Billions By House

40 Millions for New Planes Restored; Total Well Below Request by Truman

The House yesterday voted $5,280,982,423 to keep the Army going next year.

By a unanimous vote the House restored 40 million dollars for new planes which the Appropriations Committee had lopped from the bill.

The military supply measure went over to the Senate $435,809,077 below President Truman's budget request.

The bill ordered one billion dollars which was appropriated but not spent in 1946 returned to the General Fund of the Treasury.

Major reduction provided for in the bill—$296,936,216—will come out of the appropriations recommended by the War Department for the pay of personnel. Cuts of 74,631 in civilian jobholders and of 21,100 in Army officer strength were forecast.

Objection Withdrawn

The Appropriations Committee withdrew its objection to the full budget request for the Air Forces. Representative Albert J. Engel (R., Mich.), subcommittee chairman, told the House his group had made a miscalculation and did not object to restoration of the fund.

Representative Mahon (D., Tex.), proposing restoration of the funds, said that even with that money the Army can buy only 561 new planes next year instead of 932 on which it had counted.

Mahon's amendment leaves 120 million dollars in new funds for new plane procurement during the fiscal year starting July 1, in addition to 280 million dollars in contract authority and approximately 50 million dollars in unobligated funds still on hand. On top of that, the committee said, the Air Forces have $616,523,007 in airplane, spare engine and parts contracts on order.

3 Amendments Rejected

The House rejected two amendments by Representative Frederick A. Muhlenberg (R., Pa.) to add an aggregate of 24 million dollars to the funds for the Corps of Engineers. It also rejected an amendment by Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.) to prohibit the use of any of the funds appropriated for labor time studies and bonuses for increased production.

The House slashed $3,600,000 from funds recommended for flight pay on the ground that A. A. F. officers are drawing 50 per cent increases in pay to which they are not now entitled.

Approved by the House without change in the War Department's budget as submitted to Congress were:

A total of 110 million dollars for the National Guard, 56 million dollars for the National Reserves, and $24,800,000 for the Reserve Officers Training Corps, except for a cut of $1,024,184 in the civilian personnel of the R. O. T. C.

Full Research Funds

The full amount of $222,216,400 requested by the President for research and development.

A program costing $23,907,500 for industrial mobilization planning to speed up the conversion of industry to war status in event of an emergency.

The House action boosts to approximately $3,254,000,000 the total cuts it has voted to date in its drive to pare 6 billion dollars from the President's over-all budget of $37,500,000,000 for next year.

Marshall Sees Europe in Need Of Vast New U. S. Aid; Urges Self-Help in Reconstruction

Economic Union On Continent Aim Of 'Joint Effort'; Cost Put at 6 Billion

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Official Washington saw Secretary Marshall's speech at Harvard yesterday as the start of a new program as bold as lend-lease and as difficult as anything the United States has undertaken since the end of the war.

It was regarded as the launching of a huge "joint effort" toward the reconstruction of Europe—with the dollar-starved European nations moving toward closer economic union among themselves, and the United States supplying the necessary goods and money.

Informed officials believe the Secretary's program of preventing disintegration and chaos in Europe cannot cost this country less than 6 billion dollars a year for three years if it is to succeed.

U. S. Prosperity Involved

This estimate is based on the present and prospective dollar deficits of the United Kingdom, France, Italy and western Germany, with the needs of the smaller countries also taken into account.

Unless dollars or their equivalent in goods are provided on at least this scale, Administration experts here are convinced Europe cannot go on buying the wheat, coal and other American supplies which have kept its people alive since VE-Day.

The stoppage of these supplies, officials here are sure, would cut American exports and endanger American prosperity in addition to causing what Marshall called "economic, social and political deterioration" in Europe.

Not Loan But Gift

There is no thought of a loan to meet Europe's colossal needs; a direct grant-in-aid appears inevitable, since a loan under present or near future conditions in Europe could not be repaid. The only return America can expect, as Administration experts see it, is a reshaping of Europe's economy so that the ravaged continent can be prosperous and self-supporting once more.

The growing belief here is that a special session of Congress will be needed to grapple with this problem in the fall. The dollar shortage abroad is gathering such speed that action will be too late if it is delayed until the start of the regular session in January.

Paid For Out of Taxes

Moreover, some officials are convinced that these huge new outlays will have to be met out of American taxes and savings if they are not to have dangerous inflationary consequences here. Although six billion dollars a year for three years is a colossal sum by any standards, it represents about 3 per cent of America's present phenominal gross national product.

It is felt that the country can easily stand this 3 per cent outlay in its present prosperous condition, especially if it will put America's best customers back on their feet economically.

Whether these arguments can be persuasive with an economy-minded and tax-cutting Congress is anybody's guess.

Truman Calls Hungary Coup Outrage, Indicates Action

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday declared Communist seizure of power in Hungary an outrage and indicated this Government would take positive action in the matter.

He would not say what action was planned, but said the United States would not stand idly by in the face of what he described as a terrible situation. The State Department, he added, was making a complete investigation, and he made it clear this Nation's action would be swift when the investigation was completed.

The President declined to say whether the State Department would cancel the Export-Import Bank's cotton loan to Hungary. He did not know what the department had done, he said.

Asked by a reporter if the United States was ready to start shaking a fist instead of a finger, he said this country certainly would not stand idly by in the Hungarian situation.

Among measures this Government might take, though there was no indication from any source that any of them was in prospect, are:

1. Open support of the ousted Hungarian leaders, possibly by enabling them to establish a government in exile here.
2. Tight closure of all avenues of economic aid to the new Soviet-dominated government.
3. A strong protest to the Soviet government, holding it responsible for the coup and charging it with violation of the free election clauses of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements.
4. A strong protest to the United Nations.

Indications last night were that a protest to Russia was likely to be the first move in whatever action this Government takes. According to the Associated Press, the State Department had such an appeal under consideration.

The same source said the State

Nations Exploiting Human Misery For Political Profit Warned in Speech

Cambridge, Mass, June 5 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall called today upon the countries of Europe to take the "initiative" in drafting a reconstruction program to put that continent on its feet economically and promised American assistance "so far as it may be practical."

He coupled this pledge with a warning that the United States would oppose anyone seeking to profit politically by perpetuating "human misery"—whether they be governments or parties.

Speaking before the Harvard alumni after that university awarded him an honorary doctorate of laws, Marshall mentioned no foreign country by name as he gave a broad outline of America's long-range foreign policy.

Situation "Bodes No Good"

Asserting a "very serious situation is rapidly developing" in Europe which "bodes no good for the world," the Secretary said:

"The rehabilitation of the economic structure of Europe quite evidently will require a much longer time and greater effort than had been foreseen."

Showing that a vast new aid program would be required, he said:

"The truth of the matter is that Europe's requirements for the next three or four years of foreign food and other essential products—principally from America—are so much greater than her present ability to pay that she must have substantial additional help, or face economic, social and political deterioration of a very grave character."

Marshall said it was "logical that the United States should do whatever it is able to do to assist in the return of normal economic health in the world, without which there can be no political stability and no assured peace."

Countries Must Agree

"But," he declared, "it is already evident that, before the United States Government can proceed much further in its efforts to alleviate the situation . . . there must be some agreement among the countries of Europe as to the requirements of the situation and the part those countries themselves will take . . .

"It would be neither fitting nor efficacious for this Government to undertake to draw up unilaterally a program designed to place Europe on its feet economically," he said. "This is the business of Europeans. The initiative, I think, must come from Europe."

Marshall said the role of the United States should "consist of friendly aid in the drafting of a European program and of later support of such a program so far as it may be practical for us to do so."

"The program," he asserted, "should be a joint one, agreed to by a number—if not all—European nations."

While emphasizing that it was "virtually impossible" for the American people to assess the European situation from so far away, he said:

"Yet the whole world hangs on the proper judgment, the realization of the American people of what is needed, what can best be done, what must be done."

Clark Denies Missouri Vote 'Whitewash'

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday angrily denounced as "untrue" charges that he had tried to whitewash an investigation into alleged election frauds in President Truman's own Missouri political bailiwick.

Meanwhile President Truman told his news conference he did not know if there was a case for a Federal grand jury or not. He said the investigation should be carried through to its logical conclusion, adding that no one wanted to condone a vote fraud.

Clark faced a day-long grilling before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee into the conduct of an FBI inquiry into the Democratic primary election in Kansas City, Mo., last August.

FBI Probe Renewed

In the primary, President Truman, with the aid of the Pendergast machine, succeeded in purging Representative Roger C. Slaughter (D., Mo.), a foe of long standing, only to have the Democratic candidate lose to a Republican in the final election.

Charges that Clark had directed a "whitewash" of ballot fraud charges against the Pendergast machine were made by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) after FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover produced records of the directives received by the FBI from the Attorney General.

Hoover said that the FBI is now going ahead with a "full investigation" of the election frauds following the dynamiting of a safe and theft of impounded ballots in Kansas City last week.

Hoover admitted that the Attorney General's orders had restricted the FBI last fall to a "preliminary investigation" consisting only of interviews with two reporters from the Kansas City Star, which uncovered the irregularities, and four members of the election commission.

Hoover said that a full inquiry was directed by the Attorney General last Friday after a State grand jury had returned 78 indictments.

The FBI chief said it was customary procedure to limit the

Five Injured In Stork Race Collision

Mother Among Those Hurt as Car Crashes Into an Empty Bus

An expectant mother won a race with the stork yesterday morning, but at the cost of injuries to five persons, including herself.

The mother, Mrs. Juanita I. Cumberland of 715 D st. ne., was being driven to the hospital about 8:30 a. m. when the vehicle collided with an empty bus crossing the intersection of 10th st. and New York ave. nw.

Rushed to George Washington Hospital, a few blocks from the scene, Mrs. Cumberland gave birth to a girl, her third child, at 9:04 a. m. Her physician, Dr. Robert H. Harmon, who delivered the child, said mother and daughter were resting comfortably.

Possible Internal Inquiries

Hospital officials said the 19-year-old mother suffered bruises and cuts and possible internal injuries.

The others injured were:

Edward R. Harbaugh, 23, of 710 K st. ne., who was identified as the driver of the car. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for abrasions and discharged.

Mrs. May A. Cumberland, 19, of 715 D st. ne., a sister-in-law of the mother, who was treated at George Washington for bruises and discharged.

William C. Cumberland, jr., 16, of the D st. address, a brother-in-law, who was also in the car, was treated for bruises at Emergency Hospital and released.

Tudor U. Heeter, jr., 46, of 4616 Highland ave., Bethesda, who was returning the Capital Transit Co. bus to the garage, was treated for bruises and shock at the firm's clinic.

3 Store Fronts Sheared Off

Police said the collision knocked the bus driver out of his seat and sent the bus careening along the sidewalk, shearing off three 6-foot store fronts at 902, 904 and 906 10th st. The car, a 1947 Plymouth sedan, bounced up on the curb just behind the bus.

Harbaugh was charged with

Messersmith Quits as Envoy To Argentina

Mission to Restore Accord Completed, Truman Declares

Resignation of George S. Messersmith as United States Ambassador to Argentina was announced last night by the State Department soon after President Truman had said Messersmith had succeeded in his mission to restore accord between the United States and Argentina.

Announcement of the Messersmith resignation followed by 24 hours that of the resignation of Spruille Braden, Assitant Secretary of State for Latin American affairs. The two had been at loggerheads on American policy toward Argentina, Braden advocating a "tough policy" toward the regime there of President Juan D. Peron, and Messersmith a more cooperative one.

Accord Confirmed

President Truman's statement at his press conference confirmed earlier indications that the United States has finally reached an accord with the Peron government, which recently has been moving to carry out its agreement to oust Nazi influences from Argentina. Its earlier failure to do so had been the basis of Braden's stiff opposition to the Peron regime.

The State Department announcement last night said only that "it is now possible to announce that Ambassador Messersmith's mission having been completed, his resignation has been accepted and he will return to the United States." Neither the department nor President Truman fixed any date for the return of the Ambassador. Braden's resignation was accepted to take effect July 1.

What He Went There For

Mr. Truman said simply that the Ambassador had accomplished his mission, that we are now on friendly terms with Argentina and that is what Braden went there for. The President said he had not recalled Braden and had taken no action at all in the matter, since the Ambassador took his assignment on the understanding that when his mission was completed he would want to come home.

The Associated Press said that James C. Bruce, vice president of the National Dairy Association, has been mentioned as a possible successor as Ambassador.

First Four Peace Treaties Are Ratified

Bipartisan Votes Approve Italian, Three Other Pacts

By overwhelming bi-partisan votes, the Senate yesterday ratified the first four of the peace treaties of World War II.

It approved the treaty with Italy by a roll-call vote of 79 to 10, a margin greater than expected in view of the determined campaign against the treaty by Italian-American groups in this country.

The vote was one of the most decisive indorsements ever given by the Senate to a peace treaty with a former enemy.

Loud Chorus of "Aye"

The roll call on the Italian treaty was followed by three voice votes, each with a loud chorus of "aye" from both parties, for ratifying the treaties with Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania.

Those who voted against the Italian treaty were Republican Senators Bridges, Brooks, Dworshak, Langer, Malone, Watkins and Wherry, and Democratic Senators Eastland, McCarran and O'Daniel.

Fears of communism in Italy, intensified by the seizure of power in Hungary, dominated the closing debate yesterday as it did during the previous two days of discussion.

Opponents of the treaties argued that ratification would throw Italy wide open to Communist pressure and domination, since it would remove the few Allied occupation troops still left there.

Delay Resolution Defeated

This minority mustered its greatest strength just before the ratification vote when it lost, by 67 to 22, a resolution to postpone action on the treaties until January 25 of next year. The proposal had come from Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.).

An overwhelming majority, however, took the word of Senator Tom Connally(D., Tex.) one of the negotiators of the treaty, that refusal to ratify would "result in utter chaos and utter confusion, and would lay Italy wide open to the infiltration of Communism."

"The confusion and chaos, the uncertainty and controversy which would come in Italy would be

Jap Prison Camp Boss Seized by FBI On Soldier's Tip

Los Angeles, June 5 (U.P.)—Tomoya Kawakita, 25, American-born Jap, was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today on a treason charge growing out of his cruelty to American prisoners of war in Japan.

U. S. Attorney James M. Carter said Kawakita went to Japan in 1939 on an American passport as a student and returned in 1946 on the same passport by concealing his activities during the war.

The attorney said Kawakita was accused by ex-prisoners of war of having beaten them between August, 1944 and 1945 when he was a foreman at the Oeyama Prison Camp on Honshu. FBI agents said an alert soldier, Sergt. William L. Bruce, a former prisoner, recognized Kawakita on the street. If convicted Kawakita faces a possible death penalty or at least five years in prison.

Charges Called 'Well Founded'

2 D. C. Policemen Suspended In Probe on Student Attack

Two District policemen were suspended yesterday pending complete investigation of charges by a Georgetown University student that one of them assaulted him without cause with a blackjack.

Acting Superintendent of Police Walter Thomas, in sanctioning the suspensions, declared that the student's charges "appear to be well-founded." Initial investigations disclosed, he said, that the patrolmen were involved in another public altercation less than an hour before the "Georgetown incident." Thomas ordered the investigation at the request of Commissioner John Russell Young.

Suspended were Pvts. James A. Stewart, jr., 35, of 5701 N. 10th rd., Arlington, Va., the alleged assailant, and his companion at the scene, Warren L. Garrett, 32, of 1549 35th st. nw. Both have been on the force since early 1941.

Complainant is Daniel J. Fitzpatrick, 22, GI student in junior grade classes at Georgetown University's foreign service school. He charged that Stewart called him "a collegiate punk" and struck him at least once on the back of his head with a blackjack at 5:30 a. m., Wednesday.

Preliminary investigations showed, Inspector Thomas disclosed, that both patrolmen were off duty at the time. An hour earlier, at 4:30 a. m., Wednesday, they entered a Little Tavern at 3331 M st. nw., and got into an altercation with two employes, there, he said.

The argument followed a counterman's protest when one of the policemen placed a bottle of whisky on the counter. One of the patrolmen was said to have dashed a glass of tomato juice in the face of Counterman John Meadroe and the other chased a second employe.

Senate Clears Nuptial Path for 3 at Annapolis

By The Associated Press

Romance is a magic word—even in the U. S. Senate.

Senators proved that yesterday when they went into emergency action so that several future admirals can be married at Annapolis Saturday.

It all came about because of a clerical error. Whose? Who cares now?

Several weeks ago, the Senate Armed Services Committee put through the list of Annapolis graduates to receive their Navy commissions this weekend, and 26 were incorrectly listed.

One was James Gibson, Las Vegas, Nev. He and two buddies, Elliott Dewey, New York City, and R. D. Lochner, San Diego, Calif., were planning to be married Saturday after graduation.

The error meant that their commissions would be held up. Without their commissions they could not—under academy rules—be married.

Tearful brides-to-be were repacking organdy and tulle, heading for home. Distraught groomsto-be were wringing their hands.

Gibson, or a near friend—nobody would say just who—took his troubles to Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) yesterday morning. The Senator hustled the sad story right over to Senator Gurney (R., S. Dak.) Armed Services chairman.

Gurney polled the committee at once by telephone. The necessary changes were made. The correct list went to the Senate, and was passed.

Physics Truism Trapped Cabbie But He's Out Now

What happens when an irresistible force meets an immovable mass?

Simple. The irresistible force gets a traffic ticket.

This problem in physics was carried into Municipal Court yesterday when Cab Driver Vernon Derrickson, 409 Ridge rd. se., answered to a charge of obstructing traffic.

Derrickson told Judge Armond Scott he was about to turn east on 4th st., from Independence ave. sw., last Sunday when a streetcar operated by "Uncle Billy" Varnes "eased up" on him from the opposite direction and blocked his turn.

The cabbie said he asked Varnes to move his streetcar back and related Varnes answered: "I'll die before I move." Derrickson said he decided he'd stand his ground, too.

The impasse wasn't settled until 23 minutes later when police unmeshed the traffic snarl.

Judge Scott dismissed the charge against Derrickson.

First Jet-Propelled Bomber, New Fighter Planes Unveiled

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Muroc Dry Lake, Calif., June 5.—An awesome array of experimental jet and rocket warplanes, America's bid for future air supremacy, was unveiled here today.

This Nation's first jet bomber, several dazzling new fighters and radical craft built to fly faster than sound were publicly flown for the first time over the windswept stretches of this ancient lake bed. North American's XB-45 powered by four General Electric Allison J-35 jets roared overhead at a speed over 400 miles an hour. Its throttle was only partly open. Test pilots said the clean-lined XB-45 had been flown recently in excess of 500 miles per hour.

But two tiny single seater "flying laboratories" stole the show from mighty aircraft. They are gathering data on supersonic speed problems before attempting to "crack the wall of sound."

One was the Douglas Skystreak, flown for the first time Tuesday. The jet-propelled craft has been flown as yet at only 325 miles an hour, but is capable of 800 miles an hour. Air turbulence and other unknown factors of flying at such speeds, however, are expected to delay any attempt to "break the sonic barrier" for months.

The other was the rocket-powered Bell XS-1. It was dropped from the belly of its "mother ship," an Army B-29 at 21,000 feet. "Slick" Goodlin, Douglas test pilot, zoomed his craft up another thousand feet, circled for a time and then landed. He told reporters his top speed on the run was 551 miles an hour.

Previously, Goodlin has hit 620

Peron Is Reported Conducting Purge

Acts Alone

U.S. Ignores New Regime In Nicaragua

By The Associated Press

The United States yesterday cold-shouldered the new Nicaraguan regime headed by Gen. Anastasio Somoza, who seized power in a coup.

Without waiting for a final decision by the other American republics, this Government made known it is not disposed at this time to have official relations with the regime

The verdict was given by the State Department to Dr. Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, Ambassador of the shortlived administration ousted in last month's bloodless revolt by the army under Somoza, the former President.

Other American governments including Panama, Guatemala and El Salvador, likewise already have recorded their intent to withhold recognition from the new regime even though formal consultation among the American republics has not yet started.

The consultation procedure has been followed by the 21 republics for the past five years to determine their joint attitude toward any overturn by force in the hemisphere. Advance informal discussions already are taking place.

Dr. Sevilla Sacasa was in the Nicaraguan capital when the army under Somoza last month ousted the government of President Leonardo Arguello, who had succeeded Somoza on May 1. Following his return to Washington yesterday, he called at the State Department on his own initiative. Dr. Sacasa was received pointedly as a private individual rather than as an official envoy by Ellis O. Briggs, director of the Department's Office of American Republics Affairs.

Nationalists in Bad With U. S. Believed Leaving Government

Buenos Aires, June 5 (AP).—Resignation last night of Gen. Filomena J. Velcazo as chief of federal and Buenos Aires police evoked reports today that President Juan Peron was purging his government of nationalists whose wartime pro-Axis sympathies had embittered U. S. Argentine relations.

Velcazo was succeeded by Gen. Arturo Bertollo, former military attache in Washington. He was decorated recently by the United States for outstanding service as a delegate to the Inter-American Defense Board.

Juan Queralto, a nationalist leader, was placed under arrest today. He was head of the Alianza Libertadora Nacionalista (National Liberty Alliance), a group opposed to "foreign" interests in Argentina. He was charged with intervening in a strike.

Reliable reports persisted that the purge may include Oscar R. Silva, military secretary-general for Peron.

"Voice" Heckles Peron

Buenos Aires, Argentina, June 5 (U.P.).—A speech by President Juan D. Peron over a nation-wide radio hook-up was interrupted tonight by a mysterious voice which attacked the President and his government. The interference lasting about a minute and a half, virtually drowning out the chief executive's voice.

The intruder identified himself as "the voice of those who have twice gone into the streets to save the dignity of Argentina." Some believe the interruption might have been the work of extreme nationalists.

Italians Riot For Food Gifts From Perons

Rome, June 5 (U.P.).—More than 6000 Italians rioted today in an attempt to crash police lines and get food packages distributed as gifts from President and Senora Juan Peron of Argentina.

Six persons received head wounds from police clubs.

Steps for Balkan Federation Hinted as Coup Aftermath

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Soviet-dominated countries (diagonally-shaded) may form Balkan federation of states in eastern and southern Europe following Communist coup in Hungary (screened), diplomats speculated yesterday. Move would be regarded as a Moscow rejoinder to the United States aid program to Greece and Turkey (black)

By The Associated Press

Diplomatic authorities speculated yesterday whether the Communist coup in Hungary may be followed by steps to set up a Balkan federation of Soviet-dominated states in eastern and southern Europe.

Until last week, Hungary's non-Communist government was the sole break in an otherwise solid lineup of Moscow-controlled nations extending from the Baltic to the Adriatic seas.

A formal Balkan federation would be regarded as (1) a curt Moscow rejoinder to the American program of aid to Greece and Turkey and (2) a move to solidify the Soviet bloc before final ratification of the satellite peace treaties forces withdrawal of Red army occupation forces.

Diplomats consider as possibly the next Russian step some action to perpetuate the Communist-domination of Czechoslovakia. Recent Rightest trends have suggested the Communists might slip back to second or third place in the next national balloting, unless they strengthen their grip on the country.

Truman Calls Hungary Coup Outrage, Indicates Action

Department was considering ways and means of appealing to the United Nations. The question was whether it would be better to direct it to the Security Council, where Russia has a veto, or to the General Assembly, which meets at New York in September.

At the Hungarian legation here, 11 members of the diplomatic mission joined Minister Aladar Szegedy in refusing to accept orders from Budapest or to return home as ordered. Legation Counsellor Paul Marik was named charge d'affaires by telephone from Budapest and accepted the office, together with two of the staff who went along with the new government. Marik said he would call at the State Department as soon as he received his credentials.

One of the 12 who quit the legation was Frence Nagy, jr., son of the ousted Premier. He was quoted by United Press as saying:

"My father could remain in Switzerland, but this country is a far better place politically than any he could find in Europe. In America he will have a chance to live, a chance for freedom that doesn't exist in Hungary, especially under the Communists."

In Budapest it was reported by the Associated Press that British and American representatives had taken the first step toward a possible United Nations inquiry into the situation when they asked for copies of the Russian "proof" used to unseat Nagy's majority government. Nagy's Small Landholders Party polled 57 per cent of the votes in the general election of 1945, in which the Communists cast 17 per cent.

Resigned by Telephone

Nagy was in Switzerland when the Communists seized the government and resigned by telephone. Bela Varga, speaker of the National Assembly, was reported to be in the American zone of Austria, although the Associated Press quoted reports from Istanbul that he had been killed before he could escape from Hungary. Foreign Minister Janos Gyongyosy was said to be "in seclusion."

The United States last March 17 vigorously protested Soviet methods in Hungary and charged a Communist effort to seize power by "unconstitutional tactics." This Government's note specifically protested arrest of Bela Kovacs, secretary general of the Small Landholders Party, on charges of anti-Soviet activities. Requests for an investigation were twice turned down by Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, Soviet commander in Hungary.

Coup Designed to Hide Kovacs Death, Is Charge

Vienna, June 5.—A former high Hungarian official declared tonight that Bela Kovacs has been starved to death in a Soviet prison and that the Russians engineered the Communist coup in Hungary to keep secret the fate of the one-time secretary of the Small Landholders Party.

This official, who escaped into Austria, gave the first definite news of the fate of Kovacs, who was arrested by the Russians last February 22.

Claiming that Kovacs died a month ago, the official said the Communist coup was staged when the then Premier Ferenc Nagy learned of his friend's death and demanded return of the body with the added threat of exposing the way he died.

Last week, the Russians on the basis of alleged "depositions of conspiracy" taken from Kovacs, accused Nagy of secretly plotting the overthrow of his own coalition government in order to install the former regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, now in exile near Munich.

This official said the Hungarian people—as shown in their election voting—are anti-Communist generally, and "hope for American intervention."

Bulgar Chief Hits Truman Policy Stand

London, June 5 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow today quoted Bulgarian Premier Georgi Dimitrov as expressing the opinion that President Truman's recent declarations on United States policy in the Balkans "cannot be considered as a contribution to peace and democracy."

The Communist leader of Bulgaria made this statement in response to one of a series of questions put to him by John Fisher of the London Daily Mail, the broadcast said.

"In spite of my respect for the President of such a great power as the United States of America," Moscow quoted Dimitrov as saying, "I cannot but stress that in my opinion the speeches of the American President in the present moment are encouraging anti-Democratic circles and the rearmaments of Fascist regimes and therefore cannot be considered as a contribution to peace and democracy.

"I do not think that similar speeches can contribute to clear the atmosphere of the distrust which exists between some Balkan states and to the speediest establishment of tranquility, peaceful development and security in the Balkans."

Seaplane Crashes Into 4 Pa. Homes

Pittsburgh, June 5 (U.P.).—A seaplane crashed into four homes today, killing its three occupants and sending householders fleeing to the street in panic.

Its filled gasoline tanks exploded. A flash of fire broke out on each roof and burst into a ball of fire as the plane settled on the fourth house and burned furiously. Firemen brought the flames under control but only after the four homes were heavily damaged.

After a shaky take-off from the Ohio River, the plane plummeted into housetops in the Northside, across the river from the Golden Triangle. Skipping off the roofs of three, it buried itself in the roof of the fourth. If it had skipped off the fourth roof, it would have plunged into a playground crowded with romping children.

The victims were William G. Check, 24, Corliss, Pa., the pilot; his wife, Nell, 23, and Albert M. Kabancek, Homestead Pa., a friend.

Medgyesy Lines Up

New York, June 5 (AP).—Laszlo L. Medgyesy, former acting consul general for Hungary in New York, said tonight the present Hungarian government "is a slave of the Soviets . . . I am, therefore, joining the Hungarian Minister in Washington, Aladar Szegedy-Maszak, and members of his staff in refusing to carry out orders of the present Hungarian government."

Recognized by Bede

London, June 5 (U.P.).—Istvan Bede, Hungarian minister to Britain, announced today that he recognized the new pro-Communist Hungarian government, thus splitting the country's diplomatic ranks abroad.

Bede's stand opposed that of the Hungarian ministers to the United States and Switzerland, who refused orders to return home and condemned the new regime as unrepresentative.

Russian Zone Chiefs Quit Reich Meeting

Munich (Germany), June 6 (Friday) (U.P.).—Minister presidents of the five German states in the Russian occupation zone withdrew early today from the German Economic Conference and announced that they would leave for their homes at 7 a. m.

The delegates from the Soviet zone, who consented only at the last moment to attend the meeting of German administrators from the four occupation areas, walked out of a preliminary session of the conference when delegates from other zones declined to include political questions on the agenda.

The Russian-zone presidents announced only yesterday that they would attend the conference. Minister presidents from the United States, British and French zones had previously accepted invitations to take part.

Soviet Ignores Food Pact

Berlin, June 5 (U.P.).—A British official report said today that one of the most successful four-power projects of the occupation—the feeding of 3,750,000 Berliners—had broken down because Russia has pulled out of the agreement.

The report, by the British Control Commission, said the Russians had issued orders to feed their sector "separately." American authorities said they had not heard of any such orders, but admitted that the Russians had distributed their meats, fats and sugar recently only to their zone, which includes about one million Germans in eastern industrial Berlin.

The British report said flatly that the four-power food machinery which had "worked well to date," had now broken down.

Berlin is deep in the Russian occupation zone and dependent on the Soviet occupied territory around it for fresh vegetables and some fresh meat.

Stofberg Heads Section Of Funds Campaign

Appointment of Charles Stofberg, special assistant to District Commissioner John Russell Young as chairman of a special gifts section of the Junior Police and Citizens' Corps campaign to raise $25,000, was announced yesterday by G. Howland Shaw, president of the board of trustees and former assistant Secretary of State.

French Rail Strike Threatens

Paris, June 5 (AP).—The threat of a general railroad strike still hung over France tonight following inconclusive talks between union leaders and Transportation Minister Jules Moch.

Union leaders said they would confer directly tomorrow with Premier Paul Ramadier on their demands, which a Cabinet spokesman said would cost the government 20 billion francs ($166,000,000) a year.

The spokesman indicated the government was willing to offer workers in the nationalized railway system partial concessions, but could not meet all their demands, one of which called for general wage increases through reclassification of all jobs.

Meanwhile Paris traffic began to thin noticeably. More and more gasoline pumps dried up as the gasoline workers' strike continued.

A bread strike ended when bakery workers in the Paris region voted to accept a government decree granting them a 7 per cent increase in pay and a $4 monthly bonus, but new troubles appeared for Ramadier when 800,000 construction workers quit for two hours in a token strike.

Jap Officer Sentenced

Sydney, Australia, June 5 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Masao Baba, who as commander of the thirty-seventh Japanese army ordered a death march in Borneo in 1945, was sentenced today to the gallows. Statements from Japanese soldiers said prisoners were shot during the march when they became too ill or weak for labor.

Cost of U. S. Aid to Europe Is Estimated at Six Billions careful not to say how much the new program will cost, how quickly it will be needed, and how long it will have to be continued.

Backs Stassen Ideas

For guidance on these matters he is still awaiting studies now being made by his new policy-planning staff at the State Department under the direction of George Kennan.

The Secretary has already decided, however, that a vast new program of assistance is needed, and that the first impetus must come from the Europeans themselves with a pooling of their resources as well as their needs.

His speech at Harvard was his first public indorsement of the thesis put forward officially by Undersecretary Dean Acheson last month, and unofficially by Harold E. Stassen and others, that bold and large-scale action is needed to meet the dollar crisis.

The Secretary saw enough on his trip to Moscow, and heard enough from his officials in Europe, to convince him that there was no alternative.

Europe's Belt Tight Enough

He was told it was unrealistic to expect any further belt-tightening by hungry Europeans, although leaders of the British Labor government have been talking bravely of drastic new reductions in imports of food, tobacco and other supplies requiring dollars.

One of the causes of Europe's present plight, as seen from the State Department, is that consumer goods are already too few to provide any incentive to greater production.

The Secretary at Harvard cited the farmers who no longer bring their food to the cities because there is so little for them to buy with the proceeds. The same is true, in varying degree, of the miners in the Ruhr or South Wales, or of the factory workers in Lyons or Leeds.

More Consumer Goods Needed

The workers in Western Europe no longer feel that the currency in their pay envelopes will buy what their families want and need. The conviction here, therefore, is that Europe must have more consumer goods to revive its sense of incentive, as well as more food to revive its unmistakeably flagging physical energies.

If the people of Britain and the Continent are asked to tighten their belts any further, there will be "trouble." This is the message Secretary Marshall received from his advisers, and this is one of the bases of the program he outlined yesterday.

The "trouble" will not be Communist revolution—certainly not in England—but it will be serious enough, the Secretary was told, to endanger political and economic stability without which there can be no peace.

In using these arguments at Harvard the Secretary was repeating some of what he said in an unpublished speech at the final dinner in the Moscow Kremlin, on the last day of the Moscow conference.

On that occasion the Secretary, with Generalissimo Stalin sitting next to him, argued that the main objective of American policy was to see Europe's people fed, its industries revived, its normal life restored, for otherwise there could be no peace in the world.

Although Stalin did not comment on the Secretary's speech, he got up immediately and proposed a simple toast "to President Truman and Secretary Marshall." It was Stalin's only toast of the evening.

The response of the European governments is felt to be essential if the program is to work. So far the only example of a voluntary pooling of resources on the Continent has been the so-called "Benelux Agreement" of closer economic union among Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

These three little countries have deliberately set out to make their national frontiers unimportant in economic matters. They have created a customs union and pooled transportation and other other services, not only in their own little homelands but in the huge colonies of the Belgian Congo and the Netherlands Indies.

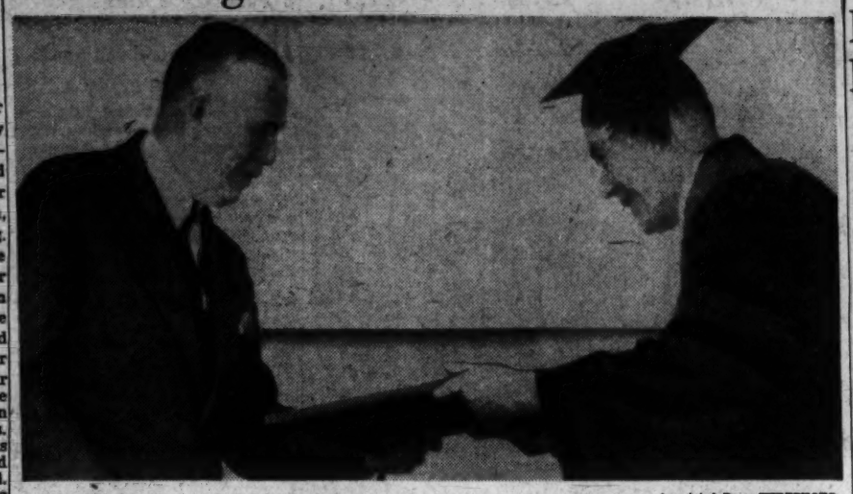
The new economic union thus created is said to be the third largest trading area in the world. The pattern is one that appeals to American officials here and abroad, and is one they would like to see followed, to some extent, between Britain, France and other European countries.

Neighborhood House To Hold Boys' Night

"Boys' Night" will be held by Barney Neighborhood House, 470 N st. sw. tonight at 8, with a program in the garden including boxing and tumbling exhibitions, music, and awards to winners of the year's boxing and pool tournaments.

Forty boys from 6 through the teen ages will take part in the program, to be given before Barney Neighborhood House members, their parents and friends. Proceeds of the sale of tickets, at 10 cents each, will go toward purchase of equipment.

Harvard Degree for Marshall . . .



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

SECRETARY OF STATE HONORED—An honorary degree of doctor of laws is presented to Secretary of State George C. Marshall (left) by Dr. Reginald Fitz, Harvard University marshal. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, veterans' administrator, also received an honorary degree at Harvard commencement exercises yesterday at Cambridge, Mass.

Marshall's Speech at Harvard Defining U. S. Foreign Policy

The text of Secretary Marshall's address at Harvard University yesterday follows:

I NEED not tell you gentlemen that the world situation is very serious. That must be apparent to all intelligent people. I think one difficulty is that the problem is one of such enormous complexity that the very mass of facts presented to the public by press and radio make it exceedingly difficult for the man in the street to reach a clear appraisement of the situation. Furthermore, the people of this country are distant from the troubled areas of the earth and it is hard for them to comprehend the plight and consequent reactions of the long-suffering peoples, and the effect of those reactions on their governments in connection with our efforts to promote peace in the world.

In considering the requirements for the rehabilitation of Europe the physical loss of life, the visible destruction of cities, factories, mines and railroads was correctly estimated, but it has become obvious during recent months that this visible destruction was probably less serious than the dislocation of the entire fabric of European economy. For the past ten years conditions have been highly abnormal. The feverish preparation for war and the more feverish maintenance of the war effort engulfed all aspects of national economies. Machinery has fallen into disrepair or is entirely obsolete. Under the arbitrary and destructive Nazi rule, virtually every possible enterprise was geared into the German war machine. Long-standing commercial ties, private institutions, banks, insurance companies and shipping companies disappeared, through loss of capital, absorption through nationalization or by simple destruction. In many countries, confidence in the local currency has been severely shaken. The breakdown of the business structure of Europe during the war was complete.

Recovery has been seriously retarded by the fact that two years after the close of hostilities a peace settlement with Germany and Austria has not been agreed upon. But even given a more prompt solution of these difficult problems, the rehabilitation of the economic structure of Europe quite evidently will require a much longer time and greater effort than has been foreseen.

THERE is a phase of this matter which is both interesting and serious. The farmer has always produced the foodstuffs to exchange with the city dweller for the other necessities of life. This division of labor is the basis of modern civilization. At the present time it is threatened with breakdown. The town and city industries are not producing adequate goods to exchange with the food-producing farmer. Raw materials and fuel are in short supply. Machinery is lacking or worn out. The farmer or the peasant cannot find the goods for sale which he desires to purchase. So the sale of his farm produce for money which he cannot use seems to him an unprofitable transaction. He, therefore, has withdrawn many fields from crop cultivation and is using them for grazing. He feeds more grain to stock and finds for himself and his family an ample supply of food, however short he may be on clothing and the other ordinary gadgets of civilization. Meanwhile people in the cities are short of food and fuel.

So the governments are forced to use their foreign money and credits to procure these necessities abroad. This process exhausts funds which are urgently needed for reconstruction. Thus a very serious situation is rapidly developing which bodes no good for the world. The modern system of the division of labor upon which the exchange of products is based is in danger of breaking down.

The truth of the matter is that Europe's requirements for the next three or four years of foreign food and other essential products—principally from America—are so much greater than her present ability to pay that she must have substantial additional help, or face economic, social and political deterioration of a very grave character.

THE remedy lies in breaking the vicious circle and restoring the confidence of the European people in the economic future of their own countries and of Europe as a whole. The manufacturer and the farmer throughout wide areas must be able and willing to exchange their products for currencies the continuing value of which is not open to question.

Aside from the demoralizing effect on the world at large and the possibilities of disturbances arising as a result of the desperation of the people concerned, the consequences to the economy of the United States should be apparent to all. It is logical that the United States should do whatever it is able to do to assist in the return of normal economic health in the world, without which there can be no political stability and no assured peace.

Our policy is directed not against any country or doctrine but against hunger, poverty, desperation and chaos. Its purpose should be the revival of a working economy in the world so as to permit the emergence of political and social conditions in which free institutions can exist.

Such assistance, I am convinced, must not be on a piecemeal basis as various crises develop. Any assistance that this Government may render in the future should provide a cure rather than a mere palliative. Any government that is willing to assist in the task of recovery will find full cooperation, I am sure, on the part of the United States Government.

Any government which maneuvers to block the recovery of other countries cannot expect help from us. Furthermore, governments, political parties or groups which seek to perpetuate human misery in order to profit therefrom politically or otherwise will encounter the opposition of the United States.

IT IS already evident that, before the United States Government can proceed much further in its efforts to alleviate the situation and help start the European world on its way to recovery, there must be some agreement among the countries of Europe as to the requirements of the situation and the part those countries themselves will take in order to give proper effect to whatever action might be undertaken by this Government. It would be neither fitting nor efficacious for this Government to undertake to draw up unilaterally a program designed to place Europe on its feet economically. This is the business of the Europeans.

The initiative, I think, must come from Europe. The role of this country should consist of friendly aid in the drafting of a European program and of later support of such a program so far as it may be practical for us to do so. The program should be a joint one, agreed to by a number, if not all European nations.

An essential part of any successful action on the part of the United States is an understanding on the part of the people of America of the character of the problem and the remedies to be applied. Political passion and prejudice should have no part. With foresight and a willingness on the part of our people to face up to the vast responsibility which history has clearly placed upon our country, the difficulties I have outlined can and will be overcome.

Scientists Are Named Laboratory Advisers

Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, and Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, chairman of the National Research Council, have accepted membership in the Scientific Advisory Committee of Brookhaven National Laboratory.

The laboratory, a Government-financed project, is concentrating on basic research and peacetime application of atomic energy. Operated by Associated Universities, Inc., under contract with the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, it will serve as a training and research center for universities and other institutions of the Northeast.

Harvard Gives Marshall, VA Head Degrees

Cambridge, Mass., June 5 (AP).—Harvard University conferred honorary degrees of doctor of laws today on Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, veterans' administrator.

President James B. Conant described Marshall as "an American to whom freedom owes an enduring debt of gratitude, a soldier and statesman whose ability and character brook only one comparison in the history of this Nation."

General Bradley, commander in Africa and Europe, was cited as "a master of the art of war who now serves those whom he once led; a courageous administrator, the Nation is doubly in his debt."

The degrees were two of a dozen honorary citations announced at commencement exercises in the "yard" at which some 2250 students were granted degrees.

Other awards went to T. S. Eliot, Missouri-born English poet; J. Robert Oppenheimer, former director of the Santa Fe, N. Mex., laboratory that perfected the atomic bomb; and William Francis Gibbs, vice president of the Naval architects' firm of Gibbs and Cox, Inc.

In his address, Veterans Administrator Bradley said it may cost the Government 12 billion dollars to educate the former GI's.

The cost for the 20 months since the war ended is nearly two and half billion dollars, he said, and of 2,300,000 students now in colleges 1,200,000 are veterans getting their education at Government expense.

Bradley added that the 12 billions was "barely enough to have run the war for several more weeks."

Mrs. Frank Knox of Manchester, N. H., widow of the former Secretary of the Navy, has given one million dollars to Harvard to provide fellowships for exchange of students "throughout the world," it was announced. It will be a memorial to her husband, who received an honorary degree from the university in 1942.

2 Attorneys File Suit for Voiding Of Job Dismissals

Two attorneys in the solicitor's office of the Department of Agriculture yesterday filed suit in District Court here asking that their "economy" dismissals be voided.

The lawyers, Robert D. Elder, of 4233 32d rd., S. Arlington, Va., and Greene C. Furman of 1927 G st. nw., claim war veteran preference over other attorneys in the office not being dismissed.

They also claim they are entitled to a 30-day dismissal notice instead of the one-week notice they received on May 29, to become effective today. Judge James Proctor declined to issue a temporary restraining order.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton A. Andeson has five days in which to file answer to the suit.

Electric Shock Frees Bloated Bull From Fence Hole

Moultrie, Ga., June 5 (U.P.).—Ferdinand the bull, a 1200-pound Hereford, wedged himself half through a fence-hole today and gobbled down 100 pounds of meal. Thirsty after such a feast, he swilled several gallons of water from a trough beside the meal sack.

Even Ferdinand should have known that meal and water make a very bloated bull. He became stuck fast, halfway through the fence.

Farmer Allen Lashley, his owner, remembered that a bee-sting was applied to the legendary Ferdinand the bull's hindquarters to galvanize him into action. Lashley didn't have a bee so he used an electric battery.

One brief application and Ferdinand jumped clear, bringing part of the fence with him.

Griswold, Allen Get Key Posts in Foreign Aid

Machinery for the administra- began to be set up yesterday, with tion of the Greek-Turkish and gen- the announcement of appointments eral European relief programs for two key positions.

At his morning conference, President Truman named Dwight Griswold, former Nebraska Governor, as director of the Greek program, and Richard F. Allen, former Red Cross European chief, as field director of the 350-million-dollar post-UNRRA foreign relief program.

At the same time, State Department reports said George C. McGhee, special assistant to Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton, would be given charge of coordination of the Greek and Turkish programs for the State Department.

Temporarily, at least, the Turkish program will be administered in Turkey by American Ambassador Edwin C. Wilson, it was reported. Wilson, a 53-year-old career diplomat, has been with the State Department since 1920.

Griswold on Clay's Staff

Outside of Wilson, the three others mentioned are comparatively new to State Department tasks. All, however, have had administrative experience that would help equip them for the jobs ahead.

Griswold will go into his position with the 250-million-dollar Greek program, directly from his duties as one of the principal officers on the staff of Gen. Lucius Clay, United States commander in Germany.

In Germany, Griswold is director of Civil Affairs. He was named last November, several months after having been defeated for the Republican nomination for Senator from Nebraska by Senator Hugh Butler.

Griswold had been Nebraska Governor for six years, after having previously been defeated three times for that post.

Griswold is a veteran of World War I, although he did not get overseas. The son of a Gordon, Nebr., banker, he left that profession after the war to publish a country newspaper, and to enter politics.

He was a member of the State Legislature for eight years, and served a term each as State commander of the American Legion and president of the Nebraska Press Association. He was born in 1893, is married and the father of two children.

At the Chicago Republican convention of 1944 he was prominently mentioned as a vice presidential candidate, losing out to a fellow Republican Governor, John W. Bricker of Ohio.

Allen, 57, a native and former postmaster of Craig, Mo., resigned a commission as first lieutenant of infantry in France in April 1919, to become director of personnel for the American Red Cross in Europe. Later, in 1919 and 1920, he was relief commissioner to Poland, administering to Polish and Russian refugees. He was decorated by both Poland and Montenegro, and the Polish and Russian Red Cross.

After liquidation of the European Red Cross, Allen returned to this country, as assistant to the president and later general manager of the Rogers Peet Co. of New York. He quit that post in 1931, and spent a year studying economic and social problems in South America and the West Indies.

Late in 1932, during the depression, Allen returned to the Red Cross as general administrative assistant, handling conversion of 844,000 bales of cotton into clothing for the needy.

In December, 1933, he was named manager of the Eastern area of the Red Cross, including most of the States east of the Mississippi.

In 1940 Allen was appointed Red Cross delegate to Europe until January, 1942, when he was named vice chairman in charge of insular and foreign operations.

In that post until October, 1945, he was responsible for overseas shipments to the armed forces and for a large foreign civilian relief program.

In 1945, Allen went to California for a rest. He returned recently, and for several weeks has been serving as consultant in the State Department.

McGhee was born in Waco, Texas, 35 years ago, of Scotch-Irish ancestry, is married and has three children. His education was at Southern Methodist and the University of Oklahoma, where he graduated in 1933, with graduate work at Oxford University and the University of London.

Most of his civilian experience was as an oil geologist in Texas and Oklahoma.

In June, 1941, McGhee entered Government employ with the Stockpile and Import Shipping Branch of the Office of Production Management and War Production Board. He was later deputy executive secretary of the Combined Raw Materials Board.

In January, 1946, he joined the State Department as special assistant to the Undersecretary for Economic Affairs, a position he is still occupying.

In June, 1943, McGhee joined the Navy as a reserve lieutenant and served from November, 1944, to August, 1945, as Naval liaison officer with the Twenty-first Bomber (B-29) Command in Asia. For his war service he was awarded the Legion of Merit. His home is 3100 P st. nw.

British Land Bill Nearing Passage

London, June 5 (AP).—The Labor government's town and country planning bill, described in some quarters as a step toward the nationalization of all land in Great Britain, was approved on its second reading tonight by the House of Lords.

The measure already has passed Commons and its final enactment is now only a formality.

Under its provision, the ministry of town and country planning will exercise sweeping control over all land development. Permits will be required for any changes and taxes will be imposed on certain developments.

In other instances the government may forbid the use of land for certain purposes.

To compensate land owners for losses, a fund of 300 million pounds ($1,200,000,000) is to be established.

Manpower Policy Cut Shell Output, Dr. Garsson Says

Dr. Henry M. Garsson yesterday blamed short-sighted manpower policies for holding down his output of 8-inch shells during the war.

Dr. Garsson claimed he was only trying to serve the public interest when he and his brother, Murray, took their complaints to former Congressman A. J. May.

All three are on trial in the District Court for bribery and conspiracy. The Government claims the Garssons bought May's influence as House Military chairman for more than $50,000. They deny May helped them get their more than 78 million dollars in war business.

The trial will resume Monday, being called off for today because Justice Henry A. Schweinhaut must go to the Circuit Judicial Conference.

House Passes Bill To Exempt Fairs From Gate Tax

The House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill exempting agricultural fairs from the graduated Federal tax on admissions.

Meanwhile, the Universal Match Co. told Congress yesterday that the excise tax on matches is "the beginning of the end of about the only thing our people get for nothing."

A company statement submitted to the House Ways and Means Committee said "the free distribution of 300 billion wooden and paper book matches annually, about 60 per cent of total production, is fast fading from the American scene."

The company blamed the tax of 2 cents per 1000 on matches.

Chinese Reds Attack Mukden

Nanking, June 5 (AP).—Six Communist divisions—possibly 100,000 strong—pressed a combination frontal assault and flanking movement aimed towards Mukden today.

Chinese newspaper dispatches said the government was massing all immediately available troops at Tiehling, 41 miles northeast of Mukden, to try to halt the direct attack, while reinforcements were hastening to the Manchurian metropolis from China proper.

The Communists' flanking maneuver was reported already to have reached within 20 miles east of Mukden.

Acosta, Famed Flier, Enters Monastery

Peekskill, N. Y., June 5 (U.P.).—Bert Acosta, 52, famous aviator of the 20's whose sensational escapades gave him the newspaper title of "the Bad Boy of Aviation," has retired to the monastery of the Franciscan Friars of Atonement near here, it was reported today.

Priests at the monastery refused to say how long Acosta has been there. Those who seek shelter with the friars may leave if they decide later to end their seclusion.

Germans Fight Deportation

The long-drawn fight of 149 German nationals to escape deportation to their homeland was resumed yesterday in District Court.

Through their attorney, James J. Loughlin, the German nationals, who so far have been blocked in all legal steps to escape shipment back to Germany, argued for an injunction which would prevent Attorney General Tom Clark from putting into execution a deportation order issued several months ago.

The arguments were heard by Justice James M. Proctor who reserved decision.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay and his assistant, Daniel B. Maher, asked for dismissal of the complaint for injunction arguing that the court has no authority to review removal proceedings which involve enemy aliens.

The complaint filed last April in behalf of the German nationals contends that it would be "inhumane to deport them to Germany because the plan is to send them to the Russian zone of occupation which would mean perpetual servitude and perhaps death."

It also argues that while peace has not been formally declared, the war emergency is now at an end.

The German nationals sought to prevent the Attorney General from issuing a deportation order more than a year ago. They were denied relief then by District Court and later by the Court of Appeals.

A second move, for release of the Germans on a writ of habeus corpus, also failed in District Court and the Court of Appeals. They are now detained at Ellis Island, N. Y., and Crystal City, Tex.

Japan Wants Okinawa Back

Tokyo, June 5 (AP).—Japan would like to regain Okinawa and some of the Kuriles, Foreign Minister Hitoshi Ashida declared today.

The new cabinet member said that Okinawa was "not very important" to national economy but Japan would like to have it back "for sentimental reasons."

Americans conquered the big island in 1945 after three months of some of the deadliest fighting of the entire war.

Ashida mentioned it in discussing peace treaty possibilities. He said the Potsdam declaration had called for limiting Japanese sovereignty to the four main home islands and "such minor islands" as the Allies might determine.

He said there was some doubt how this applied to Okinawa and certain of the Kuriles, all of which he classified as "minor."

The Kuriles were handed to Russia as a consideration of her entry into the war. Okinawa remains American-occupied, with its future uncertain.

Ashida said Japan was "very willing" to start peace treaty talks at any time and any place, but no official preliminary discussions had yet occurred.

Decision Postponed on Anti-Fascism Tract

The House Administration Committee yesterday delayed for two weeks a decision whether to publish a 325-page document on "Fascism in Action."

The postponement came after Representative Busbey (R., Ill.) asserted it would produce a "nasty fight" over Spain and Catholicism on the House floor unless revised.

Chairman LeCompte (R., Iowa) told reporters the delay was ordered to give Representative Patman (D., Tex.) and the Legislative Reference Service, which compiled the material at Patman's request, a chance to make changes. He said both have agreed to do so.

Busbey, a committee member, said he objected in particular to:

1. The foreword which was written by Patman. He said it contains statements which should be eliminated unless Patman is willing to support them with "evidence."

2. Certain "smears on business" which he did not itemize.

3. References to Spain, which he contends call for "drastic revision," because "the Spanish situation is very, very ticklish at this time, and should be given very delicate consideration in view of the situation in the Mediterranean and the policies of President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall."

Busbey said he doesn't think people of the Catholic faith would like the document, but Ernest S. Griffith, the reference service director, told reporters he knows of no section which mentions the Catholic Church directly or indirectly.

Previously the legislative service has compiled a document on "Communism in Action," which the House ordered printed for publication and sale.

Painter Injured In Scaffold Fall

Army to Be on Completely Volunteer Basis by June 30

The Army will be a completely volunteer force by June 30, Maj. Gen. W. S. Paul, chief of personnel, said yesterday, when the last draftee shucks his uniform.

It will be the first time since 1940 that the Army has been composed altogether of volunteers. The only draftees remaining at that time, Paul said, will be those in confinement, awaiting trial or in hospitals.

A minor exception will be a few medical, dental and other highly specialized officers who were drafted, received their educations at Government expense and then were commissioned.

Current enlistments, Paul said, are about half the 30,000 a month deemed necessary to maintain the Army at authorized strength. Paul said, though, that enlistments were expected to rise sharply in June when a fresh crop of young high school graduates will be available and when the effect of new recruiting methods can be felt.

He revealed that the entire recruiting system of the Army had been overhauled on the basis of recommendations by a civilian board quietly appointed last winter. This board consisted of James Adams, president of Standard Brands, Inc.; Father Cavanaugh, of Notre Dame University; Amon Carter, of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and Paul Griffith, national commander of the American Legion.

Current strength of the Army, he said, was 1,050,000, which is 20,000 under the 1,070,000 authorized by Congress for July 1. Of those now on the rolls, 90,000 to 100,000 were classed as noneffectives, including men on terminal leave, in hospitals, under arrest or otherwise not available for service.

B-29s in Germany

Giebelstadt, Germany, June 5 (AP).—Nine B-29 Superfortresses of the United States Army Air Force arrived here today after a training flight from the United States. They flew non-stop from the Azores on the last leg of their journey from Salina, Kans.

Overwhelming Senate Vote Ratifies First 4 Peace Pacts

fertile soil for Communism or any other fatuous ism that might be invented," Connally declared.

"Italy would remain subject to the terms of the military armistice. She would not be able to become a member of the United Nations. Her position will be immeasurably enhanced by taking off the shackles of military government and letting her resume her position as a free and independent state."

Answering criticism of the reparations clauses of the treaty, Connally said "mountainous demands for reparations were scaled down drastically" through the efforts of the American delegation in the treaty negotiations.

He admitted that the new Free Territory of Trieste might not work 100 per cent, but insisted the solution "was the best one that could be devised in a very troublesome and explosive situation."

"If this treaty is not ratified," he warned, "it would take armed force to do what some Senators are urging us to do to regulate Italy's internal affairs and determine the character of her government.

Would Break Obligation

"To write a separate peace with Italy would break our solemn obligation in the United Nations Declaration of 1942. To reject this treaty would make it more difficult to conclude the treaties with Austria and Germany."

Connally ignored the recent Hungarian upset in his argument for the treaty, but Hungary figured prominently in other speeches.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., R. I.) contended that the peoples of the entire Danube Valley would benefit from ratification now. He said it would bring them under the jurisdiction of the United Nations, and would give them better assurance of basic human rights.

Senator Brien MacMahon (D., Conn.), urging postponement, insisted the withdrawal of American troops from Italy would expose her to "Hungary's fate."

Senator Malone (R., Nev.) bitterly attacked the reparations clauses, saying they would impose a system of "slave labor" on Italy. He estimated it would take 1,385,000 Italian workers a full year to pay off reparations to Russia and other claimants.

At one point in the debate, Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) said ratification would violate President Roosevelt's pledge that the United States would "keep faith with Italy." This drew from Senator Millard Tydings (D., Md.) the retort that there was no need for Democrats to uphold Rosevelt's memory, since the Republicans were doing it for them.

In the end the vote took place in businesslike fashion and without demonstration of any kind, although the floor and galleries were crowded.

Yesterday's ratification ended almost two years of bipartisan effort, with the help of Senate leaders, to get the treaties negotiated and approved. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who presided yesterday, was one of the American negotiators throughout the long and weary conferences in London, Paris and New York; Connally, who wound up the debate, was another.

The smooth course of the Senate hearings, debate and final vote were attributed in large measure to the influence of Vandenberg and Connally and to the close relationship with them established by former Secretary of State Byrnes.

As soon as Russia and France have ratified, the four treaties will come into effect and will bring momentous changes with them. The British Parliament has already approved them.

Their terms provide, among other things, for the withdrawal of occupation troops within 90 days; for early admission of all four countries to full membership in the United Nations; for guarantees of basic freedoms to all their people, and for the creation of a brand-new Free Territory of Trieste under United Nations control.

A Governor of Trieste has not yet been appointed, but the Free Territory can come into being under provisional military government as soon as the treaty comes into effect. Although all troops must be withdrawn from Italy proper within 90 days, troops will not be withdrawn from the Trieste Territory until the new Governor feels it would be safe for them to leave.

Soviet Russia will still be able, under the terms of the Hungarian treaty, to keep troops in Hungary to maintain lines of communication with Vienna.

The military government in Hungary will be dissolved, however, when the treaty comes into effect. It is believed here that this will lighten some of the Soviet pressure on Hungary and will make it more possible for the anti-Communist elements there to assert themselves.

Text of Truman Answer to Taft Charges

The text of President Truman's statement yesterday on Senator Taft's charges regarding prices follows:

SENATOR TAFT is reported to have said that "apparently the President and the Administration are abandoning talk of keeping prices down in favor of heavy spending abroad that will keep them up." The Senator said that loans to other countries for the purchase of goods here increase the competition on home markets and thus force prices up.

The Administration did not advocate the Greek-Turkish aid program for the purpose of bringing prices down. It advocated that program for two important reasons—first, to extend aid to starving millions and to help restore their economies so that the world may regain its prosperity in the long run; and second, to help those nations which want to preserve their freedoms and to set up a bulwark against totalitarian aggression. The Administration fully recognized that these foreign aid programs would place some strain upon the American economy, particularly in the current inflationary situation caused by the high domestic demand and the shortages of some goods. But the fact that necessary foreign aid programs add to our economic problems at home makes it all the more important that we handle these domestic problems with vigor and common sense.

Price reductions, wherever they are possible, are made even more urgent because of the additional strain which the world situation inescapably places upon our own economy. To say that we should abandon our efforts directed toward enduring world peace and freedom because these efforts create economic problems is like saying that we should have abandoned our war effort because it created economic problems.

DURING the war, the tremendous demand for goods would have forced prices to fantastically high levels except for price control. With price control, we held prices at reasonable levels. Yet, because of the tremendous volume, business made fine profits even after taxes. We now have a tremendous peacetime demand, domestic and foreign, but we have no price control. In such a situation, it is up to those whose profits are high at the current inflated prices to reduce these prices voluntarily—in their own interests as well as the interest of the American economy and the world situation. The very heart of my request for voluntary price reductions is that business intelligence must now take the place of Government regulation if our economy is to operate in the interest of all the people.

The economic implications of Senator Taft's argument should be fully recognized. The Senator states that the only way to bring prices down is to reduce the demand for goods. If this were true of foreign demand, it would also be true of domestic demand. Let us see where this would lead us. If the Government were to abandon its vitally necessary loan and expenditure program, if wages were reduced, if savings were exhausted, and if unemployment set in, then there would be less demand and prices would drop. Senator Taft would call this an adjustment. I would call it a tragic recession or depression. There is nothing novel and nothing worthy about getting a price collapse through reducing the demand. That is the typical road to a depression.

THE problem facing the American people is to maintain full employment, full production, and high demand, and still to keep prices at reasonable levels. This is the problem to which I have constantly addressed my efforts. Senator Taft's argument that high demand justifies or necessitates high prices is fallacious and dangerous. It is based upon the idea that prices should seek as high a level as the traffic will bear, rather than the lowest level that is consistent with fair profits. That kind of practice is indefensible, and in the long run it would destroy both prosperity and profits. The higher and more stable the demand, the more opportunities there are to sell goods—and with assured high volume operations there is less and less justification for wide margins of profit per unit.

Senator Taft's economic philosophy follows the old idea of boom and bust. Under this economic philosophy, when demand is high, those who have it within their power to administer prices charge every penny that they can get. After a while, purchasing power is unable to keep up with the excessive price level. Then unemployment, business failures, cuts in production, and price reductions all follow in rapid succession.

For my part, I utterly reject this defeatist economic philosophy. I believe in maintaining a full employment, full production economy. This necessarily means a high demand economy. But a high demand economy should not be a high price economy. On the contrary, high demand makes it feasible to earn good profits at reasonable prices. The boom and bust approach could endanger our prosperity even at a time when underlying economic conditions are favorable.

On the General Price Situation

MY INTEREST in voluntary price reductions is undiminished. They are as important now as ever before—if not more important.

The drive for voluntary price reduction, while it has not gone far enough, has already yielded substantial results. First, the peaceful wage adjustments in some of the major industries took place without corresponding price advances, and this helped to bring production and purchasing power into better balance. Second, in recent months, the trend toward extraordinary price increases which commenced with decontrol has been checked and moderate price declines have taken place. This is illustrated by the following table.

Weekly Wholesale Prices (Bureau of Labor Statistics)—1926—100

	Prices on June 29, 1946 (Original basic price control act expired on June 30, 1946)	Peak Prices and Dates When Reached	Prices on May 31, 1947 (latest available data)	Points of Decrease in index from Peak to May 31, 1947
All commodities	112.7	149.4 (3/29/47)	147.4	—2.0
Farm products	140.3	184.2 (3/15/47)	178.4	—5.8
Foods	113.4	170.7 (3/8/47)	161.6	—9.1
All other	105.4	132.4 (4/19/47)	132.3	—0.1

Price reduction in many items of farm products and foods is as important as in the case of industrial products. As the table shows, these prices have been reduced recently. Further reductions may be anticipated. Neither the individual farmer, however, nor the trader, nor the Government can—in the absence of price—control—determine agricultural prices. They depend largely on competitive market conditions.

On the other hand, in the case of many industrial products deliberate voluntary price reduction is feasible, and in some cases, such as construction and construction materials, high prices impede activity of the higest economic and social importance. Yet, as the table shows, industrial prices have not come down as much as prices of farm products and food. They have been more resistant to desirable decreases. It is true that intensive foreign demand has kept some farm prices higher than they otherwise would be. But this is no reason for keeping industrial prices high where they could now be reduced for the long-run advantage of business and the country.

ing his action. The second will probably clear the Senate today.

Elisabeth May Craig, Portland (Me.) Press Herald reporter, asked why Mr. Truman picked out Taft, when other Republicans had said much the same thing.

The President replied that Taft made a statement that would'nt hold water and it had to be answered. Besides, he added, Taft represented that kind of economy.

Not a Price Project

He was 10 minutes reading his prepared criticism of Taft's price policies. In it he said the Administration did not advocate the Greek-Turkish aid program for the purpose of bringing prices down but for these two important reasons:

1. To extend aid to starving millions and to help restore their economies so the world in the long run might regain its prosperity, and

2. To help those nations which want to preserve their freedoms and to set up a bulwark against totalitarian aggression.

Strain Recognized

"The Administration fully recognized that these foreign aid programs would place some strain upon the American economy, particularly in the current inflationary situation caused by the high domestic demand and the shortages of some goods," he said.

"But the fact that necessary foreign aid programs add to our economic problems at home makes it all the more important that we handle these domestic problems with vigor and common sense."

He said price reductions wherever possible are even more urgent because of the additional strain of the world situation.

During the war, he said, business made fine profits despite controls that held prices at reasonable levels, but now "we have no price control." He said that puts it up to those whose profits are high to reduce prices voluntarily.

Sees Unemployment Threat

The President accused Taft of saying in effect "that the only way to bring prices down is to reduce the demand for goods."

He said demand would fall off and prices would drop if the Government abandoned its loan and expenditure programs, if wages were reduced, if savings were exhausted and unemployment set in.

"Senator Taft would call this an adjustment," he said. "I would call it a tragic recession or depression."

He said Taft followed the "boom and bust" idea that prices should seek as high a level as the traffic will bear, rather than the lowest level consistent with fair profits. After a while, he said, purchasing power is unable to keep up with the excessive price level—unemployment, business failures, cut in production and price reductions all follow.

"For my part, I utterly reject this defeatist economic philosophy," he said. "I believe in maintaining a full employment, full production economy. This necessarily means a high demand economy. But a high demand economy should not be a high price economy. On the contrary, high demand makes it feasible to earn good profits at reasonable prices."

Hearing Delayed On Arnold Lines Fare Increase

The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted a one-week postponement to the scheduled hearing, June 16, on proposed fare increases of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co. The hearing was reset for 9:30 a. m., June 23.

Postponement was requested by the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission because the commission's rate analyst would be unable to testify on the earlier date. Meanwhile, the commission is examining the bus firm's books, as requested by the transportation company.

The W. V. & M. Coach Co., more commonly known as the Arnold Lines, is asking a 5-cent increase in cash fares and establishment of a system of tokens to sell eight for $1 and be worth 15 cents each.

Despite the company's merger last March with the Arlington and Fairfax Motor Transportation Co., with an estimate dannual savings of $100,000, the bus firm claims it is losing what will amohnt to $30,000 a month by the end of this year.

Cabinet-Rank Health Unit Approved by Committee

Legislation to create a department of health, education and security in the Federal Government, headed by a Secretary with Cabinet rank, was approved yesterday by the Senate Expenditures Committee.

Sponsored by Senators Fulbright (D., Ark.) and Taft (R., Ohio) the bill calls for appointment of three Undersecretaries who would have charge of the three principal divisions of the department.

Its duty would be to "promote the general welfare of the people of the United Statees by aiding and fostering progress throughout the Nation in the fields of health, education, public welfare and related services contributing to individual, family and community well being."

The legislation says no authority is given any Federal official to exercise control over the operations of any State or local health, education or welfare agency.

Blanketed into the new department would be the Federal Security Agency and its constituent units, the United States Public Health Service, the Food and Drug Administration, the United States Office of Education, the Social Security Administration and a number of minor agencies.

Dr. Lowell S. Goin, speaking for the California Medical Association, said he agreed with the general principles of the bill but took issue with a number of its provisions. He said there was a confusion of the words "health" and "medical care," adding:

"It seems to me that the Federal Government, if sincerely interested in health and welfare of the people, might well turn its attention to some of these other problems rather than attacking the minor fraction of the problem called medical care."

Woman Hurt in Leap to Escape Flames As Firemen Rush With Ladder to Rescue Her

UNHURT—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Flis waited on the roof of the front porch at 227 9th st. ne., yesterday until firemen raised a ladder and helped them down. Flis, a motorcycle delivery man, kept his wife from leaping as smoke and heat drove them from their second-floor front room

PHOTO-DIAGRAM—Mrs. Eunice Taylor, 30, leaped from back window (arrow) of house at 227 9th st. ne., yesterday as she fled smoke and heat rising through the structure from a basement fire. She was seriously injured

HUSBAND COMFORTS WIFE—Earl Taylor talks with his injured wife, Eunice, in Casualty Hospital. She suffered broken ankles, spine and pelvis in the leap from the second-floor back room. Firemen, trying to reach her, were making their way through the house next door as she leaped Trapped by smoke and heat funneling from a basement fire at 227 9th st. ne., Mrs. Eunice Taylor, 30, yesterday leaped from her second-floor back room, severely injuring herself as she struck a concrete walk. She dropped 15 feet.

Two other roomers in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Flis, escaped through the window of their second floor front bedroom to a porch roof. Flis, 26, a motorcyle delivery man, and his wife, 22, remained there until firemen put up a ladder.

Mrs. Lera Shepherd, who lives next door at 229 9th st. n.e., said she phoned an alarm. Later, looking out her back window, she saw Mrs. Taylor preparing to leap, and cried out to her to wait, she said. Running to the front of the house, Mrs. Shepherd called to firemen who had arrived. They took a ladder through her house, reaching the back in time to see Mrs. Taylor jump.

Mrs. Taylor was admitted to Casualty Hospital, with broken ankles, spine and pelvis. Her husband, Earl Taylor, rushed to the hospital from his work as driver for Uline Ice, Inc.

Cause of the fire, which started in the basement and mushroomed up the stairs, was not immediately determined. Both the first and second floors were damaged considerably.

Everette C. Thomasson, who rents the house from the owner, Mrs. B. L. White of 1451 Park rd. nw., has been operating an electrical repair shop in the basement and occupies the ground floor.

Moss Found Antibiotic for Tuberculosis

Atlantic City, N. J., June 5 (AP).—A new antibiotic for tuberculosis, discovered in California Spanish moss, was described to the American College of Chest Surgeons today by Dr. Francis J. Weber, United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C.

An antibiotic is a chemical compound manufactured by nature that stops germs from growing. Penicillin and streptomycin are examples of antibiotics.

It has not been tried on human beings. Whether the moss stuff will be useful for humans is not predictable now, but in test tubes it kills the human kind of tuberculosis germs. It has been given to guinea pigs 24 hours after they had been inoculated with enough TB germs to cause virtually certain death. Most of the pigs were saved by the antibiotic treatment.

The California discovery was credited to Alfred Marshak, of the United States Public Health Service, now at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, New York City.

It was discovered first that the California moss is remarkably free from germs of all kinds. This led to search for the reason, which was found in a chemical the moss manufactures for its own protection.

From the kitchens of Blue Plate Foods

New Kind of Cinnamon Toast

—with the nourishment and "fresh-roasted" peanut flavor of Blue Plate Peanut Butter. Spread bread generously with new, smoother Blue Plate Peanut Butter. (It spreads easily and stays smooth to the bottom of the jar.) For each slice, mix:

1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Sprinkle over Blue Plate Peanut Butter and toast under broiler. Cool slightly before serving.

New! Smoother—and stays smooth to the last spoonful. Richer peanut flavor too!

John H. Moore, out of the tavern and down Bank st.

Fitzpatrick said that the assault on him occurred at Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw., while he awaited a trolley car to take him to his home at 4412 46th st. nw. The second patrolman, Fitzpatrick said, did not participate in the scuffle as far as he knew.

Private Stewart, however, had later told his commanding officer, Lieut. Paul Barnes, acting police captain of No. 7 (Georgetown) police precinct, Fitzpatrick was disorderly, cursed him and threatened to "get" him for arresting the student a week ago on a drunk and disorderly charge. Fitzpatrick had forfeited $15 collateral on the earlier charges.

Wheeler Hit By Witness on Railroad Bill

By The Associated Press

Edward W. Bourne, representing railroad bondholders' testified yesterday that former Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana "undertook to exert pressure" on the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Bourne, counsel for the Protective Committee for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. general mortgage bonds, told a Senate Commerce Subcommittee that Wheeler did this by making a speech in the Senate last year in support of a case then pending before the ICC "in which his own son was counsel."

Bourne appeared before the subcommittee to oppose legislation which would permit stockholders of railroads in bankruptcy to reorganize voluntarily under supervision of the ICC. He protested specifically against provisions which apply to reorganization plans pending in the courts, including a Rock Island program.

Wheeler Speech Cited

Bourne said that Wheeler's son, Edward K. Wheeler, appeared as counsel last year for the Alleghany Corp., a railroad holding company, in support of a petition before the ICC for removal of the trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the trustee of the Frisco Railroad.

He said that former Senator Wheeler spoke in support of this petition last June 15 in Senate debate of a railroad reorganization bill.

Harry C. Hagerty, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., also criticized as a "speculators' dream" provisions of reorganization programs now be the pending bill which apply to fore the courts.

Opposed by Insurance Officer

Hagerty said proponents of the bill are "rabble rousers against the best interests of insurance policyholders and savings bank depositors."

Former Governor Frank Lausche of Ohio, supported the legislation on the ground that earnings of railroads now in reorganization had improved to a point that justified reappraisal of their financial structures.

Lausche, appearing as a representative of the Federation of Railway Progress, suggested that the time had come when the ICC might take another look at railroad finances in the light of present conditions.

He noted that most reorganization cases under the Bankruptcy Act were instituted before the war when earnings were far below those during and since hostilities.

press."

Saying he did not know what the true situation in Hungary is, he said he didn't think Hungary is a Russian satellite.

Wallace said he suspected the resignation of Spruille Braden as Assistant Secretary of State resulted from Braden's opposition to the policy of arming Latin American republics.

He said that Latin American revolutions used to be rather friendly affairs but that if we supply their armies with American guns, we'll be giving them "dangerous toys to play with."

In his address, the former Vice President said that the world needs a peace treaty between the United States and Russia, adding that "We shall never have a really firm understanding until American capitalism demonstrates its ability to get along without violent depression, and Soviet communism demonstrates its ability to furnish the basic freedoms."

miles with only one of the XS-1's four rocket cylinders operating, he told this reporter. The craft carries only enough fuel for about 2¼ minutes of powered flight with all four cylinders open.

North American's XB-45 is America's first jet bomber to get into production. The company has an order for 96 from the Army Air Forces. The speedy bomber is capable of carrying 10 tons of bombs about 2000 miles.

Also shown was Douglas XB-43, first American jet bomber to fly. The craft, however, is not going into production. Another experimental jet flown was Consolidated Vultee's XB-46. The Army said preliminary tests show "exceptionally good performance."

Tests to date on the XB-45, the AAF said, indicate that "general handling, performance and maintenance characteristics will meet all expectations."

Col. S. A. Gilkey, Army Air Base Commander, said the Army, Navy, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and commercial plane builders want to concentrate virtually all flight test work here. The huge dry lake bed

Senators Ask Teeth in Mine Safety Code

By The Associated Press

A Senate Investigating Committee yesterday called for legislation to enforce an "adequate" Federal safety code in the Nation's mines as a check against such disasters as the Centralia, Ill., mine explosion which claimed 111 lives.

Reporting on its inquiry into the Centralia tragedy last March 25, the Senate group said the immediate cause of the blast was "the use of explosives in a nonpermissible manner . . . contrary both to the Federal mine safety code and to the Illinois statute."

"In summing up, committee members found that almost everyone concerned was guilty of negligence to one degree or another—management, the miners, the mine workers' union, State bureaus and Federal bureaus."

Noting the rapidly dwindling ranks of coal miners, the committee said this was due to many causes, including the inherent hazards of mining and "the high rate of casualties resulting in a great degree from lack of enforcement of an adequate safety code."

Senator Cordon (R., Oreg.), chairman of the Public Land Subcommittee which conducted the investigation, told the Senate Congress should pass a law giving the Bureau of Mines or some other Federal agency the authority to enforce safety codes.

Clark Denies Vote 'Whitewash' scope of an investigation in an election or civil rights case.

Clark termed the preliminary investigation extremely thorough, and said it had furnished no evidence leading to a conclusion that Federal statutes had been violated.

Kem

Repeatedly he pointed out that the Federal law requires proof of conspiracy to defraud a voter of his election rights in an election for Federal officials.

Subcommittee chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) introduced into a record a memorandum from D. M. Ladd, assistant director of the FBI, to J. K. Munford, his assistant.

The memorandum covered instructions by Ladd to Dwight Brantley, FBI agent in charge in Kansas City, as to what he should say concerning his report to U. S. Attorney Samuel Wear in Kansas City.

Text of Memorandum

The memorandum read:

"Mr. Brantley was instructed that the copy he sends to the United States Attorney Wear should have a covering letter specifically and carefully pointing out that its contents do not constitute the results of an investigation but pursuant to the specific instructions of the Attorney General are merely a summary of the data developed by the Kansas City Star and the election board and turned over to the bureau for the consideration of the Attorney General and the U. S. Attorney.

"This procedure is being followed in an effort to prevent the possibility of our reports being cited as the result of an investigation proving that further investigation or prosecution is not justified."

Across the memorandum, Hoover had pencilled "Were we so restricted by Department orders?" Ladd, who testified last week in a closed session, had pencilled, "We were."

Inquiry Clarified

"Did you get an indication that your report was going to be used as a whitewash?" Ferguson shot at the sleuthy FBI chief.

"Most certainly not," Hoover replied coolly, "I merely wanted to make sure that it was understood this was a restricted or preliminary investigation."

On October 25, 1946, Hoover sent a memorandum to the Attorney General covering the result of the preliminary investigation and stating that the FBI inquiry was concluded "unless further investigation is desired."

Hoover said that the full scale inquiry now being conducted would be hampered by the fact that the ballots had been stolen.

Mystery Letter Quoted

Clark was asked about a mysterious letter he had turned over to the FBI last November.

The letter beginning "Dear Tom" was signed only with the initials H. V. C.

It charged that the Kansas City Star was trying to trick the Attorney General into ordering the ballot boxes opened.

"It won't affect the election," the letter read, "but it would be enough to discredit Truman and the Democratic Party."

Clark said it was only an anonymous letter to him and added that he received plenty of them.

Kem and an aide, Alden A. Stockard, a Jefferson City (Mo.) attorney, reviewed the evidence which the Kansas City Star had turned over to the Justice Department.

They contended that there was plenty of evidence to warrant a full scale Federal probe.

Dead Woman Listed

Reading from the affidavit of one man who found his wife's name on the polling list as having voted, Stockard quoted, "My wife died in July. I am positive my wife did not vote."

Voters were turned away from the polls with a brief "You've already been voted." Others were voted and found it out afterward. Still others found election judges insisting on marking their ballots and putting them in the boxes. Some got $4 for a vote but at 6 o'clock at night the funds ran low and after that the going price was $1.

Republican and Democratic election officials gaily whacked up the piles of ballots at the end of the day, putting some in the straight Democratic ballot pile (that was the machine pile), some in the split Democratic heap, and others in the Republican.

Mutual Help Suggested

A little matter like finding Republican ballots or split ballots in the machine pile was overlooked. A Republican election judge was offered first $50, then $75 to let the Pendergast machine run its own Democratic primary the way it saw fit. There was a promise that when the Republicans wanted to run theirs they'd get help, too.

Clark said that these appeared to be violations of the State and not the Federal law.

Kem said that in 1936 the FBI had made a thorough and complete investigation of fraud charges in Kansas City. It was not until 1941 that the rule went into effect that the Department of Justice would direct the type of inquiry to be made into Civil Rights cases, the hearing disclosed.

Clark Grows Angry

"But in 1946 there was no such investigation, but rather an attempt to whitewash it," Kem declared.

It was then that Clark, who had faced a day-long grilling, boiled over.

Judge Rules Eisler in Contempt of Congress; Jury Will Determine if Mistake Was Wilful

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

The Government has proved that Gerhart Eisler is in contempt of Congress, District Justice Alexander Holtzoff declared yesterday.

Prosecutor William Hitz, he said, had "made out a prima facie case on the evidence" of Eisler's contempt in refusing to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee February 6.

The jury will decide if the contempt was wilful, Justice Holtzoff said in denying a motion for acquittal offered by Defense Attorney David Rein. The motion declared the Government had not proved its case.

The diminutive German Communist, said by the committee to be the fountainhead from which flowed the party gospel in this country, listened unperturbed.

"For a witness to appear physically and then refuse to take the oath is as much a frustration of purpose as walking out" of the committee hearing, Justice Holtzoff said.

On the plea that Eisler was prepared to testify after he read a statement to the committee, the justice declared:

"A witness before a tribunal has no right to state the conditions under which he will testify."

Co-Defense Counsel Abraham J. Isserman declared that Eisler had been told to object to taking the oath of the committee before reading a statement which set forth his legal rights.

Every effort by Isserman to introduce evidence other than pertaining to Eisler's refusal to testify was forbidden.

At a bench conference, out of hearing of the jury, Isserman declared he was trying to prove that Eisler's arrest two days before he was to appear at the committee was illegal. Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the committee, was trying to abuse, intimidate and harass Eisler, said Isserman, for his political beliefs and to prevent his departure for Germany.

Representative Thomas was called twice yesterday to testify, once for the Government and again for the defense. Despite Isserman's constant objections to introduction of the committee report on the Eisler hearing, the report was read into the record.

During cross-examination by Isserman, Thomas was asked what record he was using to refresh his memory of the proceedings.

Thomas happily responded by reading the entire stenographic report of Eisler's refusal to testify. Isserman stormily objected and vainly tried to shut off Thomas.

Isserman tried again with witness James M. McInerney, first assistant in the criminal division of the Department of Justice, to show that Eisler was being harassed. When the calm and frequent objections of Prosecutor Hitz were sustained, Isserman declared:

"I am trying to show that Eisler tried to leave the United States for Mexico before the war ended and then tried to leave for Germany after it ended."

Eisler arrived in this country in 1941 as a refugee. The committee reported last February he had tried to leave in 1946 aboard a Soviet freighter under an assumed name. No reason has been given why or how he was denied the right to leave.

The trial will be resumed Monday.

Baby Dies After Bullet Is Taken From Brain

Memphis, Tenn., June 5 (AP).—Fifteen-month-old Frederick Adkins, jr., died early today after having a "stray" bullet removed from his brain.

A .22-caliber bullet pierced the baby's skull while he was being rocked in his grandfather's arms on the porch of their home last Monday night. An operation was performed yesterday.

Succeeds Ramsey

D. C. Health Group Picks Dr. McIntire

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, former United States Navy Surgeon General and White House physician, yesterday was named to head the Washington Metropolitan Health Council.

Dr. McIntire

He succeeds Dr. Herbert P. Ramsey, who served as chairman of the council from its inception in the fall of 1944.

Named vice chairman was Howard Strong, former head of the department of health division, United States Chamber of Commerce. Both nominations are subject to approval by the head of the Council of Social Agencies.

McIntire promised to make the council "a real force in our metropolitan area" in assuming its chairmanship at a luncheon meeting of the coordinating committee in Hotel Roger Smith.

Reappointment To Tariff Post Hits Senate Snag

The Senate Finance Committee yesterday delayed action on President Truman's reappointment of John Price Gregg, Oregon Republican, to the Tariff Commission.

Chairman Millikin (R., Colo.), said "We are looking into the question of whether Gregg is a free-trade advocate."

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), said majority members want to know, before they act on the appointment, "What kind of a Republican Gregg is."

Scouts to Honor Thomas Rehm, 16

Thomas Rehm, 16, will receive the Eagle Scout award at the Western District Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts, National Capital Area Council, at 8 tonight at the Alice Deal Junior High School, Fort dr. and Nebraska ave. nw.

Other awards scheduled are the Eagle Palm of bronze for Philip Jelly, Troop 14; Douglass R. Shanklin, Troop 23, and John M. Russell, jr., Troop 56; and the Eagle Palm of silver for John B. Brady, Troop 4. Lesser awards will go to more than 100 others.

Fred J. Eden of the District Advancement Committee will preside.

Jury Convicts Pastor Of Raping Girl, 16

Wessington Springs, S. Dak., June 5 (U.P.).—A 35-year-old minister listened calmly as a jury convicted him late today of the statutory rape of a 16-year-old girl who lived at his parsonage.

W. F. Ballard, with his wife and children sitting nearby, was found guilty of having intimacies in 1945 with Opal Buchholz, now 17, farmer's daughter. Opal testified that Ballard seduced her several times. The minister was arrested near Pittsburgh. The maximum penalty is 20 years in prison.

Mellett Asks Speedy Hearing On Hollywood 'Red' Charges

Columnist Lowell Mellett last night assailed what he said were the "hit-and-run or smear-and-run" methods of the House Un-American Activities Committee and demanded an immediate hearing on charges that he once persuaded movie actor Robert Taylor to make a pro-Soviet film.

In a letter to Committee Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) he said that denial of his request for an open hearing would be "the denial of my rights as a citizen; would be, indeed, the essence of un-Americanism."

The charge against Mellett was leveled last month when a three-man Un-American Activities Subcommittee made a two-week investigation of alleged Communistic activities in Hollywood. The subcommittee, headed by Thomas, held a series of hearings on the West Coast.

Withheld Comment

In testimony before the subcommittee, Taylor said that Mellett personally persuaded him to appear in the pro-Soviet movie, "Song of Russia," against his will. The actor said his entry into the Navy was delayed until he consented to appear in the film. Mellett was an official of the Office of War Information at the time of the alleged coercion.

Thomas made Taylor's charge public. Mellet said he made no comment right away because he wanted to make his reply before the committee.

He said in his letter that he assumed he would be allowed to testify on June 16, when the committee was originally scheduled to begin its hearing on communism in Hollywood. But now, he said, he has discovered that the hearings have been postponed until September.

"Disregarding the utter unfairness of your action in broadcasting an outrageous and absurd charge to the world without having made any real effort to ascertain the facts," he said, "I assumed that I still would be heard by the committee at the earliest opportunity."

He indicated he thought that September was too long to wait for a hearing.

"I wish to protest this hit-and-run or smear-and-run action," he said, "and now respectfully request an immediate open hearing on the charge you have made." He added that he would be willing to appear "at any time the committee may designate" in the near future.

Writers' Aid Asked

Hollywood, June 5 (U.P.).—Eric Johnston, movie producers' association president, today revealed an "off-the-record" talk with screen writers in which he called American Communists traitors and exhorted the writers to make a joke of them.

The movie czar asked the scenarists to use their wit and talent to help run communism out of America by ridicule.

"American Communists are treasonable and subversive. They are potential foreign agents—dupes and suckers for the 14 men who sit in the Kremlin and pull the strings which make Communists toe the party line everywhere," Johnston said.

"We ought to ridicule the so-called intellectuals who have made a good living denouncing those who believe in the American system as having economic halitosis and political B. O."

Floods Disrupt 'Bread Basket' Area Plantings

Chicago, June 5 (U.P.).—Heavy rains and floods have disrupted the planting and growth of major crops in many areas of the Nation's breadbasket States, a survey showed today.

The generally cold and wet spring thus far has caused little damage to crops, but flood waters threatened truck gardens and wheat. However, prospects still are bright for a bumper wheat crop.

Rain and cold weather have delayed the planting of corn in many areas.

A half-dozen central Iowa rivers were swelling toward record crests today and Red Cross officials at Ottumwa said 200 families were being moved to higher ground.

Slave Labor

In their desperate struggle to remain free of all restraints labor union chieftains are trying to whip up a storm of protest against what they call the "slave-labor bill." But not a line can be found in it anywhere to support this extravagant ranting. If the rank and file of citizens, union men included, will study the document carefully, they can scarcely fail to be impressed by its general fairness and moderation. In many instances it will have the effect of emancipating individual workers from tyrannies imposed upon them by some of the very men who are now crying, "Slave labor bill." For those who believe in law and order and fairness for all groups in our society the absurd propaganda which is being loosed against the bill will discredit only those who disseminate it. This applies with particular force to the anti-labor bill tirade launched in New York Wednesday by the demagogic Mayor O'Dwyer.

Truman Vs. Taft

President Truman has taken a rather unusual step in issuing a formal statement denying Senator Taft's charge that the Administration has apparently abandoned talk of keeping prices down in favor of heavy spending abroad that will keep them up. Evidently the Taft attack has created deep concern for the future of the foreign relief program, as well it may. For it is calculated to arouse popular opposition to that program by directing attention to its price-lifting effect.

The President concedes that foreign-aid programs place "some strain upon the American economy, particularly in the current inflationary situation caused by the high domestic demand and the shortages of some goods." But, as he points out, that is all the more reason for trying to reduce prices voluntarily in the absence of governmental price controls. The purpose of foreign aid is to succor the starving, help restore world prosperity, and "set up a bulwark against totalitarian aggression." These important major objectives of policy far outweigh the incidental adverse effects on our price structure resulting from the drain on our material resources.

The President reiterates his belief that price reductions are feasible in case of many industrial products, but concludes that in the absence of price control, agricultural prices depend largely on competitive market conditions. However, he takes comfort from the fact that wholesale prices of farm products and food have declined from their spring peaks, although admitting that intensive foreign demand has kept some farm prices higher than they otherwise would be. He is also cheered by the knowledge that wage adjustments have been effected recently in some major industries without accompanying increases in prices of products. While the evidence indicates that the Administration's price-reduction drive has at best only halted the rise in industrial products, that in itself is an achievement of considerable importance. The President believes that further reductions are possible, and he appeals again to those industrialists whose profits are high to lower prices in their own interest as well as in that of the American people and the world at large.

This vigorous presidential rebuttal would have been more effective without the direct attack on Senator Taft's presumed economic views. In our opinion, there is no warrant for assuming that the Senator's comment on the foreign-aid program implies a belief that the only way to bring down prices is to reduce the demand for goods. Insofar as the foreign-aid program is concerned, the President admits that under existing conditions of shortage, foreign demands for our goods do add to inflationary pressure. Hence a reduction of such demands would relieve that pressure. It detracts from the force of the President's appeal for support of the foreign-aid program for humanitarian reasons and on grounds of political self-interest to admit that such aid tends to raise prices and then attack Senator Taft as a potential wrecker of the domestic economy who would allegedly welcome any means of bringing about a reduction of demand.

We do not believe that the senior Senator from Ohio can fairly be charged with espousing such extreme doctrines. His attacks on OPA were based on his belief that controlled prices were holding back production and that increased output would follow decontrol, bringing price adjustments in its wake. As we warned at the time his hopes have not been realized. But the nonfulfillment of his predictions does not warrant the assumption that Senator Taft thinks the only way to bring down prices is to reduce the foreign demand for goods. Nor is it fair to conclude that advocacy of a reduction in foreign demand logically implies advocacy of a reduction in domestic demand for goods brought about by wage decreases, exhaustion of savings, and unemployment.

• Senator Taft's statement was obviously a partisan attack, designed to embarrass the Administration. It is a waste of ammunition to read into it unwarranted implications that present him to the public as a believer in the boom-and-bust economic philosophy. If Senator Taft were the economic defeatist the President assumes him to be, he would hardly be devoting time as chairman of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report to a study of economic conditions with a view to determining whether Government action can avert the threat of a future business recession.

Continental Plan

It is so easy to tear down, so difficult to build up. Hitler and the war made much more of an economic desert of Europe than we had realized. Not only was there physical devastation; all manner of links which meshed the economic fabric of Europe were broken in pieces. The most significant of these links was the town-country relation. Urban Europe is in want while many farmers and peasants are eating well. The reason is obvious. Why should the farms yield their produce to the cities while the cities themselves are producing little or nothing in exchange? Secretary Marshall in his Harvard speech spoke about this basic problem in the reconstruction of Europe. It is satisfactory that even at this late date, two years and more after VE-Day, the State Department has sized up the task that, as the Secretary of State said, "history has clearly placed upon our country." It is to restore the European fabric across international lines.

Whether a "continental plan" will be undertaken depends, of course, upon Congress. Secretary Marshall did not go into any details of the scheme in contemplation. But it is plain that what the Secretary of State has in mind is something of the same nature that already has been proposed by Mr. Stassen. There are those who say that Mr. Stassen spoke out of turn. But, when the scope of the European problem is understood, it is never too premature to try to gain the comprehension of the American people. Other leaders of both parties appreciate the need. They hesitate to speak out in public, because it would put a new light on, say, tax reduction. But the problem cannot remain in the closet much longer. It will burst its confines when the Europeans begin to scrape the barrel of their dollar resources. The only relief then would be to slap import restrictions on the American goods that can be bought only for dollars. That will expose the specter, and not as a European, but as an American problem. Our prosperity at this moment cannot afford a break in our 15 billion dollars a year export market. Any backing up in our exports would result in loss of jobs for our workers in our bloated capital goods industries and loss of income for our farmers.

But a good deal remains to be done before any scheme for the restoration of "a working economy" in Europe gets to Congress. Mr. Stassen has been interpreted as thinking that we should impose a program. He said nothing of the sort. On the contrary, he talked of a plan "by agreement." Secretary Marshall thinks that a scheme should be sponsored by a European combination. In our view the job should be explored and undertaken (and supervised) in common, more or less on the lines of the mutual-aid program of wartime experience. This is a task which is so vital to prostrated Europe and trading and capital-rich America that it lies outside the lender-borrower category.

The first continental project, as we have contended these last two years, is the coal-laden Ruhr, which is down to 40 per cent of capacity and is still going down. Coal is the key to European economic revival, for without it the manufacturing industries of a dozen countries are unable to make enough of those goods which the farmers need before they will dispose of their food, and which the coal miners themselves insist upon before they will work the mines at capacity. The times call for what Ferrero calls that rarest of things, namely, great constructive minds. What Hitler and the war have destroyed is mighty difficult to repair. It is doubly so because the Russians clearly hope that by withholding their cooperation they might promote a fire sale of Europe. But we are confident that the forces of reconstruction will triumph when there is general realization that the great task of which the Administration has now taken the measure is necessary to our well-being and Europe's.

Hungary's Exile

The record of the Hungarian Minister to the United States made his decision to ignore his recall to Budapest inevitable. Aladar Szegedy-Maszak is a man who has paid a bitter price for his convictions. When Hitler browbeat the Hungarians into declaring war on the United States, the Minister refused to accept the verdict, and continued, even intensified, his anti-Axis opposition. His bondslave government, at the behest of the Nazis, cast him into a concentration camp. He suffered a great deal of hardship in his incarceration, and escaped with his life only because of the unexpected liberation of his camp by Gen. Wade Haislip. Now that his government has again been captured by what the President bluntly dubs an "outrage," Mr. Szegedy-Maszak again refuses to bow the knee, and has elected to stay here, if necessary, in exile. It must have been a harsh decision to make, for the lot of the exile is unpleasant, and the severance of ties with home over an unknown period must leave a void. But there was no choice for this man of principle, nor for the seven of his staff who will remain with him; they felt that they could not in conscience do otherwise. The number of these exiles in America is growing with the spread of tyranny, and deserves the attention of one of our private foundations.

Raising The Roof

The Senate has now joined the House in approval of a bill to raise the cost of American homes. Like the House, it chose to do this not in candor but by subterfuge. Under the guise of extending rent control until February 28, 1948, it has authorized widespread decontrol together with a substantial lifting of rents in the area where control is retained. At the same time, it has followed the House lead in stripping the housing expediter of virtually all the powers conferred on him by the Veterans Emergency Housing Act of 1946 for the purpose of promoting the construction of new homes for veterans. Thus the bill at one stroke would impede new construction and increase the cost of the pathetically inadequate number of dwelling units available.

The most barefaced feature of the bill, embraced by Senate and House alike, is the provision for a "voluntary" 15 per cent rent increase. Senator Hawkes, who sponsored an amendment to this effect in the Senate, was reported by The Post to have said that the average tenant would rather strike such a "good faith" bargain now (that is, a bargain to boost his rent by 15 per cent) than take a chance on a "landlords' choice" rent boost of 20 to 100 per cent when rent control ends, probably next spring. So much for the "voluntary" character of the provision. Senator Tobey sized up the situation quite accurately when he remarked, "now that the Hawkes amendment has been adopted, the real estate lobbyists and real estate organizations throughout the country are singing te deums and hallelujahs in their hearts over the accomplishment by indirection of what they were unable to accomplish by direct means."

Mayor Of Boston

Refusal of the Supreme Court to hear James M. Curley's appeal of his conviction for mail fraud leaves him no alternative but to go to jail to serve his 6-to-18-month sentence, though doubtless his attorneys will find technicalities on which to delay matters further. But even now Boston is not to be freed of Curley's tentacles. The city counsel has ruled that Curley can continue to run Boston from the penitentiary, and Curley has showed no intention of resigning. Actually the unappetizing prospect of a convict Mayor for Boston is something of an academic issue at this point. The president of the city council, one John B. Kelley, who by law would succeed Curley on the latter's resignation, is himself under indictment for soliciting bribes and attempting larceny.

A good case could be made for the contention that the majority of Boston voters don't care about the character of their mayor, since there already was a considerable cloud over Curley at the time of his election. Indeed, it has seemed that Curley has a magic name, for he has been in Boston politics for 50 years as mayor, United States Representative and Governor of Massachusetts, despite the trail of chicanery at his footsteps. It would be an interesting study to determine just how Curley has managed to retain his hold. There has been the usual liberal patronage of the machine and pious attention to destitute widows, but beyond that there has been a sort of blind loyalty elicited in part by appeals to religion and national origin. The spectacle in Boston is a reminder of Bryce's comment in his classic "American Commonwealth" that our municipal politics is the weakest link in our American polity.

The Bawl Bawls

Do you know that . . . Henry Wallace has been named manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers under a contract permitting him to raise corn in the outfield? Or that the directors of the New York Central have Young ideas? Or that the National City Bank of New York is pushing Reno, Nev., bonds because so many people seem to want to switch? Or that Republican Presidential Aspirant Taft has foot-in-mouth disease? That he caught it from President Truman, and that the President is getting over it. It seems as if the affliction was imported from Mexico via the Sacred Cow. And do you know also that Moody's is ready to start rating blonds?

If you don't know those fancies, then you haven't read the Bawl Street Journal, annual fun-poking publication of the Bond Club of New York, out today.

The Bawl jibes at bankers, brokers, businessmen, and, of course, Washington. It takes the stuffing out of stuffed shirts and so performs in the accepted American tradition. No man, no matter how high and mighty nor in how much money, escapes the witster's scalpel. In this the Bawl is to Wall Street what the Gridiron Club dinners are to Washington. Once a year, in the Bawl Street Journal, Wall Streeters dish it out to themselves, though, increasingly, more and more Bawl darts are directed at Washington. For instance, this time, there's the double-entry bookkeeping system designed by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder to win votes left and right; there's the great social event of the season, the Truman musicale, in which Margaret sings and Truman plays the "Missouri Waltz"; there's the award by President Truman to Emil Schram because the New York Stock Exchange was the first major enterprise in the United States to reduce prices.

The numerical importance of Washington gags is a sociological note of first importance. In its choice of subject matter, the Bawl alights on a basic trend—the shift in the control of the national economy from Wall Street to Pennsylvania ave. Is that what the stock market has been saying?

"Export-Import Controls"

In your editorial "Export-Import Controls" on May 26, you say, in referring to the need for continuation of export controls, that "it is essential for exports . . . industrial raw materials be allocated among buying nations . . ."

I agree. Present export controls of industrial materials such as iron and steel supplies (with the exception of tin), do not, however, accomplish this. A certain quantity of these materials so vitally needed in reconstruction abroad, is "set aside" for export, but quantities are not earmarked by countries but rather by groups of countries. As an official of the Office of International Trade told me only the other day "we have no interest or control over the country of destination, and do not care where it goes."

To further show the inefficiency of the present system of controls, mills or exporters who have orders from foreign purchasers merely apply to OIT for an export license and receive them on what amounts, virtually, to a "first come first served" basis regardless of country of destination. That this results in a highly inequitable distribution, is obvious, as under such a procedure one or two countries (usually those willing to bid on "gray market" prices or those in the favor of the supplier) may get almost all of the exportable supply for a period, and others may get relatively none.

Controls are necessary for equitable distribution of essentially needed items, as you state, and past experience has shown the inadvisability of removal of controls. Under the present system, however, better distribution would result if all controls were removed. I would suggest, therefore, that you further investigate this matter before giving the support of your paper to continuation of the present methods. C. M. B.

Attack On Lincoln

Let us not be unduly disturbed by the unmitigated attack of Dr. Charles C. Tansill of Georgetown University upon Abraham Lincoln, for Lincoln's place in history is secure. His memory and deeds stand as a golden statue and attacks such as Dr. Tansill's do not tarnish, but only serve to burnish.

Dr. Tansill's apparent ignorance or disregard of the history and facts preceding the Civil War is astounding, or else how could he accuse President Lincoln, who arrived on the national scene less than a decade before the war, of precipitating the outbreak of hostilities? Does he not know that Southern statesmen had planned and hoped for a breakup of the Union for nearly 30 years before Sumter was fired on? Doesn't he know that the Southern press and statesmen openly talked of a system of government patterned after Britain's monarchy, which, to the everlasting shame of all concerned, would have been established upon the foundation of the institution of slavery? Would Washington, Jefferson and Jackson have been proud of that kind of government?

If Jefferson Davis had truly been the champion of free peoples, would he have sanctioned the cause of slavery as he did?

Before Dr. Tansill attacks a man of Lincoln's stature, let him reflect upon those whom the South pleases to call great, Robert E. Lee, for example. Lee was a graduate of West Point and as such must have sworn to defend his country, yet when the hour of decision came, he aligned himself with her enemies. However, has any citizen of these United States ever said that Lee should have been shot as just retribution for the traitor that he was?

The people of the South must blush in shame for Dr. Tansill and he should by all means retract the reckless remarks he made in the Capitol. DAVID H. BROWN.

Brunswick, Md.

"Rent Control"

The Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO, heartily endorses your editorial of May 31 exposing the "booby-trap" rent control bill passed by the Senate. As you indicated, and as has already been confirmed by Senator Hawkes, this bill opens the way for a straight 15 per cent rent increase across the country. Furthermore this bill has the effect of giving official Government sanction to landlords' unwarranted and unjustified rent hikes.

At this critical juncture in our economy—faced as we are with a business recession arising from the run-away of prices after the OPA was killed—the rent increases authorized by this bill will only serve to aggravate the growing economic crisis. Businessmen should recognize that the substantial increase in the Nation's rent bill occasioned by the passage of this legislation will force tenants to reduce their food, clothing and other expenditures drastically.

The lesson of the national rent control bill must not be lost on the Washington community. Fortunately, the Abernathy bill, HR 3131, provides for a straight extension of the present D. C. rent control act. This bill has been endorsed by an overwhelming majority of our residents, the D. C. Commissioners and the D. C. Rent Control Administrator. If we in the District are to avoid the fate of the rest of the Nation's tenants immediate hearings must be held on H.R. 3131. The Industrial Union Council therefore urges District tenants to recommend to the D. C. Commissioners the necessity of their pressing for immediate committee hearings on H. R. 3131.

MRS. ANNE STEIN.
Chairman, Cost of Living Committee, Washington Industrial Union Council.

Evans F. Carlson

I want to tell you how much I appreciated Murray Marder's piece in The Post of June 1 on the late General Carlson. Among all the nice things that have been said and written about the Raider, it seems to me that Marder caught the essence better than any.

I was never associated directly with Carlson, but from what I saw and knew of him, I've always rated him in the same god-like category with Franklin Roosevelt, Cordell Hull and Lowell Mellett. Like those men, Carlson had a concept of mankind so much bigger and nobler than one ordinarily encounters that his early death should be viewed as a definite loss to people everywhere.

Carlson was with my outfit on Roi-Namur in the Marshall Islands in February, 1944. He sailed back to Hawaii with us when we turned over the islands to defense battalions. He alone, of all the officers, merchant mariners and naval gunners aboard, refused to take his noonday meal when he learned that the "troops" were being fed only twice a day. Always he identified himself with the "men."

I remember, too, when word got around on Saipan that Carlson had been hit, seriously. Details were not clear, but it was said that he was participating in a raid on an enemy-held cave that had been giving our men a bit of trouble. He was a lieutenant colonel then, and even in the Marine Corps officers of that rank are not expected to do such things. Carlson knew that, but, with his sharp appreciation of the values of life and death, he took the chance.

When he died, I'm sure he died unafraid—although, perhaps, with a nostalgic feeling for the things left undone. He was a man who had learned to think beyond the self-interest motives that guide most men's actions. He was first of all a good man, and aside from that, he was a damned good Marine. DICK TENELLY.

Senator Taft And The Labor Bill

Irrespective of one's opinions as to the provisions of the labor bill just enacted by Congress, one must recognize the statesmanlike ability with which Senator Taft engineered its passage. His objective was to secure a workable measure that would carry out the party commitments, and that would command sufficient support in both branches of Congress to override a veto in the event the President should take such action. To attain this objective, he put aside personal preferences as to details, centering his attention upon the major issues.

In its essentials, the measure enacted is largely the result of his work and his views. It was put into final form after extensive public hearings for proponents and opponents, after lengthy consultations and careful consideration.

As chairman of the majority Steering Committee, Senator Taft had opportunity to determine the membership of the Labor Committee of which he is also chairman. By no stretch of the imagination could it be called a "packed" committee. It includes critics of the Senator's views from his own party as well as from the minority party.

At the closing debate on the bill in the Senate just before the vote, Senator Taft gave the major part of the time allotted for discussion to others, according the lion's share to the leader of the opposition. Only a few moments prior to the hour scheduled for voting did he take the floor himself to speak briefly and objectively on the measure. He could afford to do this, knowing what the outcome would be. Earlier he had passed up an opportunity to score a personal triumph on an amendment which he desired. This was because the margin of victory would have been so slender as possibly to have endangered the passage of the entire measure.

In selecting the Senate conferees to work with the House group in trying to evolve a single bill from the two widely conflicting drafts, again he chose not "me too" men, but men of varying shades of opinion. Among these he included his ablest opponent in his own party.

To induce the chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor and the other House conferees to put aside the matter of prestige and accept the milder provisions of the Senate measure for their more drastic proposals was of itself a major accomplishment. It was especially noteworthy as the House bill had passed that branch by an almost 3 to 1 vote. His success in securing agreement on the measure in a form that would insure adequate support in the Senate to make it into law even if vetoed by the President indicates a high order of leadership ability.

His singleness of purpose and his success in pursuing an objective are further evidenced by the fact that he ignored the sniping directed against him from certain sections of the press. In some of these attacks he was accused of a Machiavellian intent to use the labor bill purely for political purposes and actually to be inviting its defeat while ostensibly giving it his support. The passage of the measure under his generalship effectively answers such innuendoes.

R. M. JOHNSON.

Housing Flop

THE DESPERATE need of this country today is for decent homes for millions who cannot find a place to live and for other millions who are living in miserable slums. While it does not often find expression in the headlines, the signs of this need are seen in a thousand different ways.

It is, above all, in the pressure of people crowded into quarters pathetically inadequate. The rise in juvenile delinquency is one sign. So is the rise in the divorce rate.

Now we see Congress destroying the last safeguards that gave some protection to the most defenseless. The so-called rent control extension bill, with its 15 per cent increase, will work great injustice on millions of people. It throws out the remaining restrictions intended to channel materials into houses which families with small incomes could buy.

What makes this harder to understand is that both the Democratic President and the leader of the Republican majority in Congress are for Government aid to housing. Both Mr. Truman and Senator Robert A. Taft have earnestly advocated steps that would help to break the housing deadlock.

IN THE CURRENT issue of the Republican, Taft has an article with the title "We Must Have Decent Homes." As the principal sponsor of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, he presents a forceful, effective plea for his own moderate proposal. He recites the now familiar facts and figures on the bottom one fourth or one fifth of our people who live in homes that "do not meet a low minimum standard of decency."

"We must," says Senator Taft, "improve or get rid of six million substandard dwellings and at the same time provide decent shelter for the six million families who have occupied them.

"The problem must be attacked from every angle. I believe we cannot pour in all the assistance from the top, which is all private industry can do, or be expected to do. I think we must attack it from the bottom."

Yet in spite of this urging from so important a Republican, it is almost certain Congress will turn down the Taft-Ellender-Wagner proposal to subsidize low-cost housing by 100 million dollars to 200 million dollars a year. A Senate committee has reported it favorably by a 7 to 6 vote. The Senate may even adopt it by a narrow margin. Then it will die without a chance of a vote in the House. That was the history of this same measure in the previous Congress.

Why should this be so? Can't Senator Taft persuade the members of his own party to go along on such a moderate proposal? Is it that Senator Taft doesn't really want a housing bill and is merely talking for political effect?

The answer to the last question is definitely no. Taft has given every evidence of his sincerity in backing the House measure. He was shocked and a little hurt when the House last year firmly shut the door in his face.

CONSIDER, NOW, Mr. Truman's position. He has asked for a unified National Housing Agency which would help pull together some of the loose ends of past housing efforts. His housing expediter, Frank R. Creedon, has pleaded for retention of the controls that remain. But the Truman Administration, it must not be forgotten, started the retreat away from controls—and with a bang. That was when the wartime building control, Order L-41, was thrown out shortly after VJ Day.

Congress shows not the slightest intention of heeding Mr. Truman. Even when he had what were at least nominal Democratic majorities, he could not get housing legislation passed. In city after city today, new construction has all but stopped.

Is the power of the real estate and building lobbies enough to explain this? They have successfully fought all controls right down to the last gasp of the present. That is part of the answer but it is hardly a sufficient answer.

Another part of the answer is the difficulty of Government under our system of divided powers. Even when the same party holds both executive and legislative branches, it takes exceptional leadership, with the gift of dramatization, to move against inertia and the resistance of organized pressure groups. When the powers are divided between the two parties, then we must expect stalemate and inaction. Neither Senator Taft nor Mr. Truman can break the jam.

Farm View

As an illustration of the farmer's viewpoint on city rent control I should like to draw the following close parallel:

Say a farmer had a commission man come onto his farm and offer him $24 a hundred for his hogs and the deal was made. Then the commission man would come back and load up the hogs and a Government man would tell the farmer that on the basis of 1941 prices the commission man need pay only $12 a hundred. Say the farmer demanded the hogs be unloaded on his farm and the Government man told the farmer, "As in rent control you have no right to evict a tenant, neither may you unload your hogs."

Perhaps I should not have pointed out another opportunity for the Administration to favor a majority group, as the votes from those who eat meat far outnumber the votes from those who raise the meat. In the case of meat, possession was nine points of the law.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

World Figures Eye Romania

MR. ANDREI VISHINSKY, of the Russian Foreign Office, is currently taking the waters at Carlsbad, the famous Czechoslovakian spa. His boss, Mr. V. M. Molotov, is believed to be visiting Belgrade. Mr. George Tatarescu, Romanian Foreign Minister, has paid a call on the American diplomatic mission in Bucharest. These social snippets, taken together with other evidence, add up to an interesting probability. That is simply that the Kremlin's coup in Hungary is only part of a process which has been going on for a long time, and which will shortly come to a head elsewhere.

It is most likely to come to a head in Romania first. When Mr. Tatarescu approached the American mission, he sent out a tentative feeler. He wanted to know whether, when the worst came to the worst, the Americans would help him fly the coop. The American mission was of course disappointingly unresponsive, not only because American diplomats abroad do not indulge in this sort of hankey pankey, but because the Americans would have nothing to do with Tatarescu at any price. Yet the twitchiness which obviously lay behind Tatarescu's feeler is significant.

Tatarescu's twitchiness is undoubtedly justified. He is certainly one of the cleverest and most agile political acrobats in eastern Europe, which is saying a good deal. Throughout the war he collaborated busily and profitably with the Nazis, and his name automatically stood high in the list of war criminals.

It was removed soon after the war on the insistence of the Russians. They have made good use of him. But he has had long practice at sniffing the political wind, and his sniffs now evidently suggest to him that the jig is up.

THE JIG began to be up early this spring when Mr. Tatarescu's colleague, Mr. Gheorghiu Dej, Communist minister of trade and industry, made a trip to Moscow. According to reliable reports, he returned with instructions to begin the process of taking over complete control of Romanian government. This process started on March 10, when the mass arrests of non-Communists began. Some 2000 people have now been arrested without charge, and thrown into jail. Descriptions of conditions in the jails have been carefully circulated—the 500-calories ration, the sickness, the rats and the overcrowding, the frequent deaths—to discourage the independent-minded.

The process will end, if the instructions received by Mr. Dej are correctly reported, by the elimination of such unreliable and no longer useful decorations as Mr. Tatarescu, Mr. Petru Groza, the premier, and possibly Michael, Romania's young king.

The King may well be retained as a useful figure. Yet last May Day there was one of those unpleasant little straws in the wind which affect the pulses of non-Communist politicians in Russian-dominated countries. During the May Day parade, the portraits of Groza and Michael which had previously flanked the heroic posters of Stalin and the rest of the Kremlin hierarchy were noticeably absent.

One symptom of the conditions which made it necessary for Mr. Dej to receive his new instructions occurred at the Romanian E. T. A. textile works in Arad on April 26. That morning the textile workers arrived in a body, determined to demand their bread rations, which they had not received in some days. When the rations were not forthcoming, the workers killed the local Communist leader and one other Communist. Then they went to the local Communist headquarters in the town, killed the caretaker, and destroyed the building.

THIS EPISODE was only the most dramatic and overt evidence of the seething discontent of the masses of the people. There has been plenty of other evidence, such as the vote last November. The Communists thought they had it thoroughly rigged, but rigging and all, the anti-Communist vote was so heavy that the figures had to be feverishly juggled before they could be published. Yet the fact that the Arad episode involved workers, on whom the Communists rely for what support they have, was significant. A number of workers have thus been included in the recent indiscriminate arrests, to encourage the others.

At any rate, the closest observers of the Romanian scene are inclined to the view that the Kremlin has decided that the tattered facade of the Groza government is no longer enough for their purposes, and that something a great deal tougher, on the Hungarian model, must be substituted.

Groza, like Tatarescu, owes his present unenviable job to Mr. Vishinsky. Soon after Yalta, Vishinsky made an excursion to Bucharest, and told Michael that Groza, a former lawyer for the big land owners, who knew on which side his bread was buttered, must be substituted for General Radescu, the Prime Minister. The substitution was duly made, and the bonds of Russian control began to tighten. This previous Vishinsky excursion suggests that his present junket to Carlsbad is not exclusively for the purpose of enjoying the famous waters. There is some likelihood that Czechoslovakia, which has up to now enjoyed a considerable measure of independence, will soon enter the Groza stage.

Mr. Molotov's reported trip to Belgrade has also no doubt been undertaken for a purpose. This purpose may be to change the whole basic relationship between the Soviet Union and her Balkan puppets. The recurrent reports of the forthcoming formation of a Greater Slav Soviet Socialist Republic may not be without foundation.

Griswold Choice Happy Compromise

THE LONG and anxious search for an administrator for the American program in Greece has at last come to a fortunate end. Former Gov. Dwight P. Griswold of Nebraska has perhaps as many of the innumerable qualifications for the post as could be found in one man.

Lindley

In his three terms as Governor of Nebraska, he made a creditable record as an administrator. Prior to that he had had legislative experience. During the last few months, since his third term as Governor expired, he has been with General Clay in Germany, as director of internal affairs and communications. As a young man he saw military service on the Mexican Border and during the First World War.

In domestic affairs generally, Mr. Griswold has been middle-of-the-road or moderately liberal. He has been a firm supporter of a strong foreign policy. The foreign policy issue was sharply drawn in his unsuccessful primary campaign against Senator Hugh Butler a year ago. That was the campaign in which Harold E. Stassen went into Nebraska to support Mr. Griswold.

THE GRISWOLD appointment emphasizes anew the nonpartisan or bipartisan nature of American foreign policy today. It is satisfactory to Senator Vandenberg and to other Republicans who have had a hand in framing American policy. Most of the Democrats, including the President, probably will feel less uncomfortable with a Republican in charge of the extremely difficult enterprise in Greece. The criticism—and there is bound to be a great deal—will not fall exclusively on Democratic heads.

The quest for an administrator in Greece has been embarrassing, and at times heart-breaking, for the President. Several able men had a New Deal background which made them objectionable to important Senators. Even the name of Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal and the United States representative on the U. N. Balkan Boundary Commission, ran into opposition among both Republicans and conservative Southern Democrats.

A good many prominent businessmen were considered and several of them were asked or sounded: William H. Harrison, Paul G. Hoffman, and Philip Reed, among others. In some instances the groundwork was poorly done: it was easy for the man sought to sidestep a job which involved personal sacrifices, the certainty of sharp criticism, and the risk of failure. In others, belated objections were raised to men who might conceivably have been persuaded to accept.

THE SITUATION became most embarrassing for the President when the bill authorizing aid to Greece and Turkey was finally sent to him some seven weeks after the original dateline. He was still without an administrator for Greece. The search became frantic. It looked on several occasions as if the Administration would have to fall back on an Army officer or a relatively obscure civilian.

Former Governor Griswold's name apparently was not introduced into the active discussion about an administrator until quite late. The assignment of persuading him to accept fell to Secretary of War Patterson, who personally had formed a high opinion of the Nebraska Governor during the war. The final word that Mr. Griswold would accept was received Thursday morning. The President lost no time in announcing the appointment.

The hazards of the assignment to Greece are undoubtedly as evident to Mr. Griswold as to everyone else. To face them required real courage and a deep sense of patriotism.

Final Debate Defers Action In Senate on Labor Measure

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Still too full of argument to come to a vote on the conference labor bill, the Senate yesterday deferred final action on it.

Last-minute speeches by Senators, mostly those opposing the measure, may be completed today, however. If so, the Senate might vote on the bill before nightfall. Its passage is assured. The only questions remaining are whether Mr. Truman will veto it, and if so, whether the veto will be sustained or overridden.

The measure, a compromise between earlier versions passed by the House and the Senate, was approved by a 320-to-79 vote in the House on Wednesday.

Yesterday the principal attack on the bill was launched by Senator Morse (R., Oreg.), one of the two GOP members who voted against the earlier draft of the bill in the Senate.

Bill Held "Unworkable"

He declared that the conference committee changes in the measure made it "impracticable and unworkable." The issues he discussed were highly technical, but he insisted that it was just such technical and procedural provisions which constituted the evil nature of the legislation.

He argued that no matter what the content and substantive provisions of the law were, it would be rendered useless, or even vicious, by its rules on procedure for unions and for the National Labor Relations Board.

So-called "minor amendments" made in conference, he said, would open a "Pandora's box of vexatious litigation." They constituted an invitation to antilabor employers to "litigate union treasuries out of existence," to delay certification of unions as collective bargaining representatives, and to disrupt the processes of Wagner Act labor relations activities.

"It would be fairer and more honest to American labor to repeal the Wagner Act entirely," Morse said.

Specific Complaints

Speaking only of changes written into the bill in the Senate-House Conference Committee, Morse complained, among others, of these specific sections:

1. A redefinition of "agents," which has the effect of making a union liable for any acts done by a member, where they were authorized or not. Morse argued that this would be the ruination of union treasuries. Antilabor employers, he said, would be given a perfect device by which to carry on long and costly suits for recovery of damages from the acts of "agents," whether the union was responsible for them or not.

2. The insertion of a provision asserting the right of employes to refrain from joining a union. The clause is needless, Morse said, but its inclusion, coupled with a section prohibiting union coercion, was an invitation to bring damaging suits against unions.

3. "A dozen" additional subjects on which unions must file information in registration statements with the Secretary of Labor. Accidental omission of any one would mean that a union could not qualify as a bargaining representative. Employers, said Morse, "will be quick to charge" that unions have not fully complied. Delay in the normal functioning of collective barganing can thus be provoked at the "whim of any employer, malcontent employe or employer stooge."

NLRB Provisions Cited

4. The NLRB is denied the use of economic analysists, yet it is required to decide all jurisdictional disputes, and in which economic issues are paramount. It is also obliged to solve the economic problems of what constitutes reasonable, nonexcessive union initiation fees.

5. The NLRB is forbidden to turn jurisdictional disputes over to arbitrators. Yet it will not have the time nor the resources to decide them itself.

6. The definition of free speech is so amended that nothing an employer says, provided he is not threatening, can be used as evidence of an unfair labor practice. Thus, Morse argued, an employer could urge the formation of a company union, prescribe its regulations and campaign for its officers. But, in an investigation by the NLRB of the unfair labor practice of promoting a company union, the employer's remarks could not be cited as evidence of his motives, intent or action.

Truman Promises Study

7. The device of a "prehearing election" is forbidden to the NLRB. Yet, Morse said, it was extremely useful in speeding up board work and in advancing collective bargaining.

8. An employer need not reinstate or pay back pay to an employe fired "for cause." This means, Morse said, that an employer could discharge a worker for the real reason of union activity. But if he could ascribe some other legitimate reason why the man should be fired, he could escape the consequences of having committed an unfair labor practice.

At the other end of Washington, meantime, President Truman promised a group of Democratic Representatives, who visited him, that he would study the bill "very carefully" before deciding whether to approve or veto it.

He also called a Cabinet meeting a day early, reportedly to seek advice on whether to veto the labor bill and also the income tax reduction measure passed this week by the Congress.

Reds' Prisoners Charge 'Horror'

London, June 5 (U.P.).—The foreign office tonight acknowledged receipt of a protest from 263 political prisoners in Romania charging "horror conditions" in the Communist-operated Pitesti prison camp.

The prisoners appealed to the Allied Control Commisson in Romania to investigate their camp.

Beirne Blasts CIO Attempt To 'Raid' His Telephone Union

CIO attempts to "raid" the National Federation of Telephone Workers (Independent) were blasted yesterday by NFTW President Joseph A. Beirne.

The union chief, who masterminded the recent Nation-wide telephone strike, charged the CIO with doing a "disservice to the telephone labor movement and to labor in general" by its organizing efforts.

He contended, moreover, that the drive to "enroll telephone workers" is "falling apart even before it gets started." He claimed that the soon-to-be-born Communications Workers of America (Independent), which will succeed the NFTW, is already assured a membership of at least 177,399 phone workers.

Meanwhile, Ted F. Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO's Telephone Workers Organizing Committee, countered with a charge that the prospective CWA constitution contains an "undemocratic" clause which would "negate the wishes of the telephone workers to abandon isolationism and to unite with the CIO."

Formal launching of the CWA will begin at a convention opening Monday in Miami Beach, Fla. The two Washington telephone unions, covering some 6000 workers, will be represented.

'Typhoid John' Found After Five Die, 45 Fall Ill

Taylorville, Ill., June 5 (U.P.).—A male "Typhoid Mary," has caused an outbreak of typhoid fever in a 20-mile area near here in which at least 45 persons have been made ill and five have died, health authorities disclosed today.

D. Jerome Sievers, of the State health department at Springfield, said the outbreak was traced to a man who operated an ice cream parlor at Palmer, a community of 350 near here. Practically all of the victims had eaten ice cream purchased at the "carrier's" store, Sievers said.

Sievers said the male "carrier" had typhoid fever about 40 years ago. He was ordered to close his store and agreed not to handle food.

Sugar Rationing Records Banking Is Discontinued

Another wartime operation was discontinued yesterday when the Agriculture Department announced that banking of sugar ration evidences will be halted beginning Monday.

"The action is taken to reduce expenditures," the department announced.

The action affects retailers and industrial and institutional users after Monday. Wholesalers will get an additional week to clear accounts at banks, the announcement said.

Truman Indorses Savage, Hailed As Wallace Man

President Truman promised party support yesterday for Charles A. Savage, Democratic nominee for Congress in Washington's Third District, who was hailed as a "Wallace Democrat" when he won the primary contest last month.

Asked at his news conference about Savage's candidacy, Mr. Truman said he was the party nominee and would be supported by the Democratic National Committee, Executive Director Gael Sullivan of the national committee similarly indorsed Savage on May 21.

Truman Urges Public Calm on Palestine

President Truman yesterday asked American citizens to refrain from any activities which may "inflame the passions" of Palestine inhabitants while the United Nations is considering the Palestine problem.

British Ambassador Lord Inverchapel recently has protested advertisements appearing in American newspapers, which he reportedly said incited the Jewish disorders in Palestine. In addition, money for the underground has been solicited in this way.

Mr. Truman, powerless to halt these maneuvers through official action, was believed to have issued his appeal in deference to Britain.

The President's statement follows:

"The General Assembly of the United Nations in special session on May 15, 1947, unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"'The General Assembly calls upon all governments and peoples, and particularly on the inhabitants of Palestine, to refrain, pending action by the General Assembly on the report of the special committee on Palestine, from the threat or use of force or any other action which might create an atmosphere prejudicial to an early settlement of the question of Palestine.'

"The search for a fair and workable solution of the Palestine problem is one of the most difficult and important tasks confronting the United Nations. It is in the interest of the United States as well as of the United Nations that the efforts of the United Nations to solve this problem meet with success.

"Activities calculated further to inflame the passions of the inhabitants of Palestine, to undermine law and order in Palestine, or to promote violence in that country are certain to create an atmosphere prejudicial to an early settlement of the Palestine problem and to render still more difficult the tasks which the United Nations has before it.

"I therefore urge every citizen and resident of the United States, in the interests of this country, of world peace, and of humanity, meticulously to refrain, while the United Nations is considering the problem of Palestine, from engaging in, or facilitating, any activities which tend further to inflame the passions of the inhabitants of Palestine, to undermine law and order in Palestine, or to promote violence in that country."

Inverchapel had objected particularly to newspaper advertisements financed by the Palestine Resistance Fund and written by Playwright Ben Hecht, cochairman of the American League for a Free Palestine.

Hecht's open letter said, in part: "Every time you blow up a British arsenal, or wreck a British jail or send a British railroad train sky high, or rob a British bank or let go with your guns and bombs at the British betrayers and invaders of your homeland, the Jews of America make a little holiday in their hearts."

The State and Treasury departments have been reported studying whether it was illegal to solicit tax-free funds for Palestine resistance efforts.

To Do Research

Dr. Spencer Quits Cancer Institute Post

Dr. Spencer Dr. Scheele

Dr. R. R. Spencer, 3917 Oliver st., Chevy Chase, has resigned as chief of the National Cancer Institute to devote full time to cancer education and research.

Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, 5521 Johnson ave., Bethesda, assistant chief of the institute, will succeed him July 1.

Also announced yesterday was the appointment of Dr. A. C. Ivy, vice president of the University of Illinois, as executive director of the institute's advisory council.

In addition to research, Dr. Spencer will direct the Institute's program of training young physicians in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

Dr. Scheele has been with the Public Health Service since 1933, and was on the staff of the Cancer Institute for five years before the war. For preventive medicine work in the military government, he was awarded two American and several foreign decorations.

Letter-Bombs Received by Eden, Bevin

London, June 5 (U.P.).—Scotland Yard said today that more prominent Britons, among them Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and his predecessor, Anthony Eden, had received vicious letter-bombs from Italy, making a total of 11.

[From Jerusalem, the Associated Press reported that the Stern gang, a powerful underground group, asserted the letters were mailed by members of its European branch from Italy.—Editor's Note.]

A spokesman for the Yard reported that the British Embassy in Paris also had received one of the ingenious bombs of gelignite, a pencil-sized battery and a detonator, all packaged in a cream-colored envelope. A spokesman for the embassy in Paris said, however, that there was "absolutely no truth" to this report.

Bevin never saw the letter-bomb intended for him. A secretary intercepted it and sent it to Scotland Yard.

Eden, now second in command of the Conservative Party, probably had the narrowest squeak so far reported. He carried it about in his briefcase for 24 hours before recognizing what it was. Only press of work kept Eden from opening it when he received it.

According to government sources, three other cabinet Ministers besides Bevin have been sent bombs. They are Minister Without Portfolio Arthur Greenwood, Food Minister John Strachey and President of the Board of Trade Sir Stafford Cripps.

None of the bombs so far has exploded.

Rail Station Blown Up

Jerusalem, June 5 (AP).—Jews blew up the railroad station at Athlith and an oil pipeline near the Arab village of Galabi today. The outlawed Irgun Zval Leumi announced its agents had planted the bombs in both cases.

The bullet-riddled bodies of two Arab farmers were found near a combination motion picture theater and labor club at Rehovoth, southeast of Tel Aviv. A police patrol heard a burst of gunfire, but when it reached the scene, the Arabs were dead and the killers had disappeared.

The Irgun said the bombings were in reprisals for deportations to Cyprus.

A special United Nations commission is due in Palestine next week to open an on-the-spot investigation of the Holy Land problem.

Roosevelt Plan For Population Shift Revealed

New York, June 5 (U.P.).—The late President Roosevelt was preparing to act on recommendations for the mass migration of 20 million persons from 10 countries at the time of his death, the magazine United Nations World said today.

A secret commission of the President's, after a two-year study of the refugee problem, proposed the migration of surplus populations and establishment of an international security authority with extensive power over refugee activities at an initial cost of 25 million dollars, the magazine said.

Now Buried in Files

The article, written by United Nations World Correspondent Larislas Farago, said that reports on the study are now "buried" in Mr. Roosevelt's secret files and some sections have been destroyed.

The M (migration) project reports, Farago said, listed the United States, with emphasis on Alaska; Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia, Venezuela, northern Australia, Canada and Manchuria as countries which would easily absorb millions of refugees.

Countries listed as having too large populations for their resources were Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Italy, Bulgaria, Greece, Japan, Korea and China.

Farago said the M project was carried out under the direction of Dr. Robert Strauez-Hupe of the University of Pennsylvania at a cost of $180,000.

5 Million in Immediate Need

The group reported that five million persons were in need of immediate resettlement and placed the eventual total at 20 million.

The magazine article said that the study found countries such as the Dominican Republic unable to absorb refugees even though willing to accept them.

Farago said the report also found that the Negeb area of Palestine was unable to take large numbers of persons despite British and Arab assurances that it could.

American Law Institute Elects New Yorker

Harrison Tweed, president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, was elected president of the American Law Institute as it opened its twenty-fourth annual meeting yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Today the institute will consider a proposed code of commercial law being prepared jointly with the National Conference of Commissioners on uniform State laws. Judge Learned Hand of the U. S. Court of Appeals will speak at an 8 p. m. dinner.

Tweed, director of the Legal Aid Society of New York and chairman of the standing committee on legal aid work of the American Bar Association, succeeds George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, who became the new chairman of the Council of the Institute.

John Grier Buchanan of Pittsburgh and William A. Schnader of Philadelphia were elected vice presidents. Judge Herbert F. Goodrich of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit succeeded William Draper as director of the institute. Lewis had served in that position for 24 years.

The members and guests of the institute attended a reception tendered them by the British Embassy yesterday evening.

In connection with the institute meeting, the St. Thomas More Society of America held a luncheon in the Mayflower yesterday, with Austin F. Canfield, president of the District Bar Association, the guest speaker. His subject was "St. Thomas More, Lawyer." Assistant Attorney General A. Devitt Vanech was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Hounds Trailing Man After La. Rape Attempt

Baton Rouge, La., June 5 (U.P.).—East Baton Rouge authorities jailed one Negro today and were using baying bloodhounds in an attempt to capture another, following two attempts to rape white women here today.

Sheriff Newman H. DeBretton said one woman escaped after pleading a recent operation. Her assailant was arrested. Another man escaped after attempting to attack an 18-year-old white girl. Her screams scared him off.

Single Airline Hearings Ended By Senate Group

By The Associated Press

Senate hearings on a bill to establish a single American international airline were completed yesterday with a statement from Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) that it is the only way to keep the American flag flying on the world airways.

McCarran is one of the sponsors of the bill. His statement to an Aviation Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee criticized those who argued that competition among individual carriers is "the American way."

"The competition in the field of international air transportation," McCarran wrote, "is between nations, not between companies . . . International aviation under the American flag stands today at the same crossroads where, decades ago, international shipping under the American flag took the wrong turn . . ."

D-Day Relics Still Evident On Famed Normandy Beaches

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

On Omaha Beach, where American infantrymen stormed ashore in the D-Day invasion of Normandy, June 6, 1944, a little French girl plays in the sand. The invasion beachhead is now a playground

Cherbourg, France, June 5 (AP).—Waving fields of buttercups twinkle between the hedgerows in Normandy and bathers gambol in the waters off Utah and Omaha beaches where just three years ago American infantrymen splashed ashore to blast a German army that had vanquished Europe.

Maj. Crisson

In a mammoth German bunker of reinforced concrete 4 feet thick, a French family, whose home was destroyed in the attack, lives quietly on the sands where American and German troops first met in hand-to-hand clash in western Europe.

Airstrip matting makes a fence to guard the family's precious garden from chickens scratching in the once blood-drenched sand.

Today, on Utah Beach is one of the few survivors of the 600 "dog-faces" of that first wave to hit the beach. He tells how elements of the Fourth Division came splashing ashore to fight their way through another mile of inundated swamp after the beach was taken.

Rope Ladders Still Hanging

Only last week the mines were cleared away along 200-foot cliffs between Utah and Omaha where the United States Second and Fifth Ranger Battalions scaled the heights in the face of small arms fire.

A few rope ladders still are hanging where the Rangers climbed to knock out high caliber German guns.

In the American sector of Omaha, where elements of the First and Twenty-ninth Division ran head-on into a Nazi division practicing beach defense maneuvers, French children play on the sand.

At St. Mere Eglise tomorrow, the townsfolk are to honor a handful of men from the Eighty-second Airborne Division. The little village along the beachhead liberated three years ago are having celebrations, too. In fact, the D-Day anniversary starts off a series of liberation celebrations that progresses inland, following the trail of the troops that fought their way across Normandy.

First Wave Survivor

A leading figure at the celebrations along the Utah beach this year will be Maj. Robert Crisson of Birmingham, Ala., who commanded one of the four companies in the first wave across the beach. His unit was Company C, Eighth Infantry Regiment, Fourth Division. Crisson, attached to the American Graves Registration Command, says he knows of only seven of the original 600 men in that first wave that are still alive.

Crisson, struck in the legs with shrapnel two hours after H-hour, went AWOL from an English hospital and returned to his company to fight on to the end of the war. He was wounded three times and captured twice.

"There wasn't a man in my company who couldn't run 15 miles," he said today. That's why they went 4 to 7 miles inland that first day."

Junior College Shows Vitality

Montgomery Junior College, Bethesda, Md., born of the GI rush for higher education, last night observed its first anniversary convocation with a promise of permanence.

The institution, first public junior college in the Washington area, was sponsored and supported by the Montgomery County and Maryland State education systems. That it will continue as a public institution of higher learning was promised last night by its dean, Hugh G. Price.

Last night's academic services were held at the Leland Junior High School auditorium, with Dr. John Dale Russell, chief of the division of higher education, United States Office of Education, as the principal speaker.

The college has been housed in the buildings of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School during the first year, with classes between 4 and 10 p. m. daily. Plans for construction of two temporary buildings to be ready in September have been announced. The school was opened last September.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

'Royallized' Archivist May Now Be 'Taberized'

Lucy Weidman was an archivist in War's Office of Engineers in Baltimore. She was classified a P-3, starting salary of $4149.60.

Everything was going nicely, thank you, until War Undersecretary Kenneth C. Royall put over his arbitrary program to downgrade many civilian employes. In this process, Miss Weidman, admittedly an excellent employe, was "Royallized." She was downgraded to a P-2, starting salary of $3397.20.

Like many another demoted employe, Lucy Weidman resigned. Besides, she preferred to work here since she lived here and had to commute daily to Baltimore.

Yesterday Miss Weidman went to work at the National Archives in a temporary P-2 job. She had worked at Archives for three years and had specialized in Engineer records before she had transferred to Baltimore.

But she's still a war service appointee and her Archives job is most insecure in these uncertain days for Federal agencies. In fact, the Archives budget is slated to be reported to the House late next week, and if a sizable cut is made in it by the House committee, Miss Weidman is very likely to be "Taberized." In other words, be fired for economy reasons dictated by Chairman John Taber of the House Appropriations Committee.

Being "Royallized" and then "Taberized" would be rather rough treatment for any ambitious and hard-working girl.

But the point of the story is this—Miss Weidman is the niece of John Taber, the big ax man.

WAR: A hundred or so of its employes in the Office of the Chief of Finance will have their jobs moved to St. Louis before the end of this month. Most of the employes involved are in the accounts division. They have been given five days—until Tuesday—to decide whether they want to be transferred. Those who don't transfer have been warned they will lose their jobs here.

EMPLOYMENT: Ninety Federal workers left their jobs here for each of the 30 days in April. As of May 1, Civil Service counted 2788 fewer employes in this city to bring the total down to 215,196, or 72,000 below the wartime peak of 287,000.

In this country the Federal employe population slumped 18,628 to 1,925,744. In addition, there are 305,000 employes overseas.

Major reductions were made in the War, Navy and Veterans' Administration. Postoffice increased its force by more than 5000.

AGRICULTURE: If sugar rationing is dropped soon as it now appears, several hundred employes who were transferred to the department from OPA to carry on the activity will be fired . . .

CAPITOL HILL: The budget for Government corporations will be reported to the House on Monday and not today as had been planned. The bill, it's reported, will carry sizable slashes for the housing agencies . . . INTERIOR: Its penthouse lunchroom has been closed by Government Services because of lack of help and business.

COAST GUARD: The House Rules Committee has given its okay to a bill to strip Coast Guard reservists of veterans preference. Only a few hundred of the reservists are in Government . . .

WAR: Another one of its cafeterias has been closed. The lunch lines are growing longer; the prices are climbing higher, and the employes are protesting to deaf ears . . .

COMMERCE: A memo is out warning the bureau chiefs and supervisors of "nepotism." It forbids close relatives to work together in the same office.

LOYALTY: Edward J. Ennis, a former Justice official, will speak against the Rees employe loyalty bill at today's session of the House Civil Service Committee. He will represent the American Civil Liberties Union. The group will not oppose the President's plan if a number of "safeguarding" amendments are adopted to it . . .

WHITE HOUSE: The President has ordered creation of a Medal for Merit Board to make awards to outstanding citizens. He'll personally make the awards . . .

ARMY AND NAVY: Representative Engel (R., Mich.) believes the services could economize in their hospital operations. He says a check shows that only 41,000 of their 90,000 beds were filled, and that many hospitals had more employes than patients. And at the same time, he says, more hospitals are being constructed.

CIVIL SERVICE: Its appeals unit is being snowed under by work. More than 150 employes the first three days of this week appealed dismissals, downgradings, and efficiency ratings. Last week 280 appealed. The office, headed by John Overholt, has been given additional help to handle the cases.

ATTORNEYS: There's an awful lot of misunderstanding and confusion regarding the layoff of attorneys. Legal jobs, by law, aren't under Civil Service. In making layoffs, some agencies regard their war service attorneys as permanents, others as war service and temporaries.

A coming Civil Service order may clarify the matter. It will say that status attorneys are to be considered in Group A for discharge purposes, and all others in Group B.

Negotiators Here Seek To Avert Milk Strike

Deadline Tonight In Dispute Between Distributors and Dairy Employes

Representatives of Washington's major milk distributors and their employes met all day yesterday and last night in efforts to resolve a threatened strike, set for midnight tonight.

The negotiators, with James O'Byrne, Labor Department conciliator, held joint sessions at the Hotel Shoreham over terms of a new one-year contract between employers and the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Union, Local 246 (AFL).

A spokesman for the employers stated that "progress" was being made "but there have been no definite commitments."

Business agents for the union, which represents 1700 dairy workers, declined to discuss their demands while negotiations were in progress.

Building Costs Increase for 1-Family Units

Construction costs on one-family, privately-financed homes in the Washington area have leaped from $7800 to $9400 in five months, the Labor Department's Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

In a statement which placed the value of new residential construction in the area at 21 million dollars for the first quarter of 1947, the bureau said if current activity continues, there will be 14,000 new family dwellings built during the year.

Washington ranked fourth among 29 industrial areas surveyed in the volume of private housing units started in the first three months. The Capital figure was bettered by Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco areas.

Nationally, new private housing starts in nonfarm areas were 2 per cent under the same period last year.

In commenting on the increase in construction costs, the bureau said the higher costs per unit reflect "to an important degree" construction of somewhat larger and more expensive homes since elimination of controls over selling prices last December.

Cost figures, it was pointed out, should not be confused with selling price, since they cover only actual cost of construction and exclude construction and contractors' expenses, operating, promotional and sales profits as well as land costs.

Dunbarton's Largest Class Gets Diplomas

The Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, last night charged the Dunbarton College graduating class with the social responsibility of working for a new and Christian international order.

Thirty-one girls, largest graduating class in the 11-year history of the college, received diplomas.

"Yours is the vocation, under God and in collaboration with gentlewomen everywhere, to lift the hearts of men to new heights, to instill in them a world charity, to teach them a world idealism, that out of this scattered warring human race an organic, united human family may at long last come forth into existence," Archbishop Cushing said.

He was introduced by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, administrator of the Archdioceses of Baltimore and Washington.

Eleven Officers Installed by Liberty Chapter

Eleven new officers were installed by the District Chapter of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty at the last session of its eighteenth annual convention at the Raleigh Hotel last night.

The new officers are:

Ruth G. Domdera, state councilor for the District; Damaris Colbert, associate state councilor; Florence Lazarus, state vice councilor; Rose Vernon, state associate vice councilor; Georgie Tyler, state guide; Ella Treynor, state associate secretary; Ruth Hetterly, state associate treasurer; Grace Dietrich, state inside guard; Turner H. Hall, state outside guard; Elsie Fillman, national representative, and Faustina Dorough, national alternate representative. Elizabeth Shepherd and Eva Woodward, state secretary and state treasurer, respectively, were elected previously to serve nine-year terms and will rmain in office during the coming year.

City News in Brief

Higher Rent Sought for Sink Repairs

Owners and tenants of 79 housing units at 55th and Blaine sts. ne., yesterday squared off before a District Rent Control examiner on the subject of leaky kitchen sinks.

Thomas Heffelfinger, owners' attorney, said monthly rent increases of $6 per unit were necessary to enable the owners to make necessary repairs—such as sink replacements.

Tenants, represented by Attorney T. Douglas Davidson, maintained no boost was warranted at units where sinks weren't water tight and back doors didn't hold out the rain.

Heffelfinger said "comparable" housing in the same area was now renting for $55 per month, as compared to the present $49 per month rate at the Blaine st. project.

Examiner Robert Smith took the case under advisement and said he would ask both Heffelfinger and Davidson to accompany him on an inspection tour of the affected areas "sometime next week."

Dog Tags Ready June 16

District dogs will begin sporting new oval aluminum tags July 1, Tax Collector Guy W. Pearson revealed yesterday. "Copies" of the new dog license "plates," which will keep Fido from getting fouled up with the law until July 1, 1948, were received at District Building yesterday. Dog owners may purchase them at either the District Building or New Municipal Center beginning Monday, June 16, Pearson said.

Biting Reminder

Add to signs of approaching summer: the Health Department yesterday issued an early admonition about the danger of dog bites. Parents, said the HD, should "be on the alert for stray dogs in the area in which the children are playing." And dog owners "are cautioned that the law requires that dogs be vaccinated against rabies."

Earned This Entry

Louis Johnson, 42, of 18 G pl. ne., was deprived of his favorite occupation, housebre king, yesterday by Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff, in District Court here. Judge Holtzoff sentenced Johnson to six to 18 years in prison.

Johnson, arrested by District detectives after they delayed a window - washing chore long enough to dust off his fingerprints, had pleaded guilty to multiple charges of housebreakings, larcenies and two assaults. He also waived indictment and jury trial.

Detectives Sergeants Lawrence A. Hartnett and Charles T. Williams were investigating a series of housebreakings in the Northeast sector when they found Mrs. Mattie Hess preparing to wash her windows at 1617 Benning rd. ne. A burglar had dirtied one, she said. The detectives said they found Johnson's fingerprints there, and arrested him later at his home. He pleaded guilty to all information filed on him.

Underpass Cash Far Off

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) said yesterday the District will have no funds for building the Dupont Circle underpass until 1950.

Bates told the House District Committee in a meeting that not even the proposed 1 cent increase in the gasoline tax would furnish enough funds for an earlier start on the Dupont Circle job.

Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst conceded, we don't have the cash in the till right now. We have to hold up on jobs until we are sure we have cash on hand to meet the commitments."

Crippled Children Treat

Five hundred crippled children will be feted today from 1:30 to 6 p. m. on a boat trip on the Potomac River, given by the Junior Board of Commerce. The youngsters will come from the District, Alexandria and Arlington, Prince Georges, Montgomery and Fairfax Counties.

Confession Is Claimed In Shooting

Suspect Is Held For Grand Jury In Wounding of Policeman Fenwick

A 22-year-old man, arrested Wednesday in Baltimore, admitted yesterday firing the shots which wounded Police Pvt. Francis C. Fenwick, police said.

The man was booked as Matthew McIntosh, Baltimore.

He was arraigned before Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill and was held for the grand jury under a $10,000 bond. As of last night, he had not made the bond.

Fenwick, the policeman, was shot three times May 30 when he chased two suspects into an areaway at 736 22d st. nw.

At Emergency Hospital, the 30-year-old policeman last night remained in a serious condition.

McIntosh, police said, was arrested by Baltimore detectives as he walked along a street on the basis of a description and other information sent out by District police headquarters.

The policeman, a former Howard University athlete, suffered gun wounds in the right arm, cheek and forehead.

Judge Barse Speeds Up Civil Trials

Chief Judge George P. Barse yesterday announced plans to speed up jury trial cases in the civil division of Municipal Court here, now confronted with a backlog of untried cases.

Under arrangements agreed upon Wednesday at a meeting of Municipal Court judges, he said, civil division jury trials will be held one more day weekly in July and August than in past summers.

For the remainder of this month, when practical, he announced, the trials will be held five days weekly instead of just Tuesdays and Fridays.

The new June schedule will become effective as soon as necessary arrangements can be completed with attorneys handling pending cases, since many already scheduled cases must be advanced, he said.

Judge Barse said that he and two other judges on general assignment, Judges Ellen K. Raedy and Walter J. Casey, will split the duties of the extra trial days.

Dedicate Borah Statue

The Senate yesterday agreed to recess for an hour at 2:15 p. m. today to participate in ceremonies in the Capitol Rotunda accepting from Idaho a statue of the late Senator William E. Borah. The ceremonies will open with a band concert starting at 2 p. m. Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) will be the principal speaker.

Car Wrecked in Race With Stork

WHILE MOTHER AND DAUGHTER ARE "DOING NICELY"—Policeman Bowie T. Chew examines wreckage of a 1947 Plymouth, which collided with an empty bus yesterday at 10th st. and New York ave. nw., in a race with the stork to George Washington University Hospital. The mother gave birth to a daughter, her third child, in the hospital about 30 minutes later and both are said to be resting comfortably

Fare Increase Boosts Transit Income 10%

Revenue 2% Higher Than Predicted; Sale Of Passes Off 13%

Capital Transit Company's gross revenue increased 10 per cent in the two weeks following the May 11 fare boost granted by the Public Utilities Commission.

CTC President E. D. Merrill reported the increase was about 2 per cent higher than the company estimated during fare hike hearings.

Weekly passenger revenues averaged $548,473, compared with $497,899 for the two weeks immediately preceding the increase, he said.

Biggest surpise, Merrill indicated, was the decrease of only 13.3 per cent in the sale of weekly passes. The company had anticipated a 40 per cent drop as a result of the price boost from $1.25 to $1.50.

Action Is Deferred

The Senate District Committee yesterday postponed until next week a final decision on James W. Lauderdale's nomination to continue as a member of the Public Utilities Commission.

The committee heard Lauderdale warmly indorsed by PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan, and by John H. Connaughton of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Protesting the nomination were spokesmen for the Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO; United Public Workers of America, CIO, and the National Association of Colored Women, Washington Branch.

Henry Beitscher, Industrial Union Council president, protested the nomination because Lauderdale took part in the decision to boost Washington transit fares May 11.

MRS. JUANITA CUMBERLAND, of 715 D st. ne., suffered bruises and cuts and possible internal injuries as a result of the autobus collision, but she got to the hospital before the stork passing a red light at the intersection and traveling at an "unreasonable speed." He was released on bond.

The sedan he was driving was owned by Ernest Del Vecchio of 31? 16th st. ne., who had hired him to wash and polish the brand-new vehicle, according to the police. The car was almost demolished by the collision.

A 21-year-old sailor was seriously hurt late last night when, police said, he ran across Pennsylvania ave. at 12th st. nw. against the light and was struck by a streetcar. He was listed as S/1c James H. Newton of the USS O'Hare. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital, where he was said to have possibly suffered cerebral concussion.

Also seriously injured was an 11-year-old boy who fell from the rear bumper of an automobile on which he had "hitched" a ride. He was Robert Williams, 628 O st nw., admitted to Freedmen's Hospital with head injuries. Driver of the car, who told police he did not know the boy was riding behind, was identified as Wendell A. Parris, 35, 1027 G st. ne. The accident occurred at Marion and P sts. nw, at 1:30 p. m.

Builder to Sue Loan Association For $150,000

Stanley P. Hough, Arlington builder, announced that he will file a $150,000 suit in District Court today against the Hyattsville Building Association.

Hough, who is under indictment in three courts for his failure to complete a veterans' housing project in Oxon Run, Md., last year, is suing for personal and financial damages.

Last year Hough contracted to build homes for 28 veterans who arranged G. I. loans through the Hyattsville Building Association. Hough said he started construction with down payments given him by the veterans. But, he said, when the first committment was due on the loan, the company refused to pay.

The company claimed that he was not sufficiently bonded. Hough says the real reason was their fear that with ceilings off building materials he could not do the job with the money allotted.

Three Girl Scouts To Represent Area

Three girl scouts from the Metropolitan area have been chosen to represent their localities at the international encampment.

They are: Jackie Higgins, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Higgins, 616 Somerset pl. nw.; Margaret Walker, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Walker, 7103 Rhode Island ave., College Park, Md., and Ellen L. Hoover, 2409 North Military rd., Arlington, Va.

Approximately 68 scouts from the 48 States, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone will assemble with representatives from 18 foreign countries on June 26 at Camp Barre, Pa. to participate in the first international girl scout gathering of this kind in 10 years.

Beret Bandit Cows Grocer, Steals $100

Flashes Automatic, Empties Register; Theft Loot Mounts

A bandit with a beret on his head and a long-barreled black automatic in one fist cowed the proprietor of a 10th st. nw. store last night, rang up "No Sale" on the register and walked off with $100.

Police said the gunman, who was setting a new style in headgear for District thugs, was tall and dark-skinned and wore a snappy brown sport jacket.

Isadore Enten, proprietor of a grocery store at 1718 10th st. nw., told police the gunman entered his store about 10:30 p. m., waved him to the rear of the place with his automatic, then went to work on the cash register.

The $100 taken in last night's holdup was added to $1025 loot taken in burglaries reported to police.

Col. James F. Torrence, U. S. Army War Department general staff, reported that between 10 a. m. and noon a burglar broke into his home and took jewelry valued at $750 an an electric clock.

A neighbor, Walter S. Cantrell, 5237 Nebraska ave. nw., reported yesterday that last Tuesday a housebreaker went to his medicine cabinet and removed a woman's wrist watch valued at $150.

At St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 1514 15th st. nw., the Rev. Dillard Brown, pastor, reported $30 stolen from the parish hall.

A picnic-minded thief raided the parked delivery truck of the Trio Market, 511 Morse st. nw., and lifted $45 worth of cold-cuts of meat, Raymond Dreyfuss, proprietor, reported. The truck, he added, was parked near 15th and U sts. nw.

Fred Waldo Edwards, who lives aboard a cabin cruiser, the Gypsy Belle, moored near 19th and L sts. se., reported that aluminum binoculars valued at $40 were stolen from a forward cabin.

'Luxury' Tax On GI Trailer Homes Scored

About 1000 veterans, living in trailers because of the Washington area housing shortage, pay an excise "luxury" tax of about $140 in buying such improvised homes, the House Ways and Means Committee was told yesterday.

Waldron E. Leonard, director of the District Veterans' Service Center, testified the trailers, an important factor in veterans' housing, are largely in nearby Maryland and Virginia. All the 150 veterans living in one Alexandria camp own their trailers, he said.

The 7 per cent tax, which is figured not only on the cost of the trailer but also on the furnishings, including stove and other necessities, is drawing cash from wartime GI savings, Leonard declared.

The Service Center director pointed out after the hearing that trailer production is just starting on a large scale, and said the tax drain on former servicemen should be "nipped in the bud" as soon as possible.

Man Who Foresaw His Death Takes Life by Hanging

A man who, police said, predicted his own death recently hanged himself last night in the basement of his home.

The man, Thomas R. Brown, 55, of 5130 Kansas ave. nw., a British Purchasing Commission employe, was found by his daughter, Mrs. Bertie Hale. A rope around his neck suspended from an iron beam.

According to police, Brown told his family recently that three members of his family were going to die soon and that he would be one of them. He had been on sick leave from work for eight weeks because of a nervous disorder, police added.

His wife, Waunetah Brown, is in Casualty Hospital with burns suffered when she spilled hot grease on herself recently in her kitchen.

Bates Files Single Bill To Hike D. C. Revenues

Measure Providing $14,060,000 Boost Goes Back to House District Committee

Rep. George J. Bates (R., Mass.) yesterday filed in the House a single bill to boost District revenue next year by $14,060,000.

It will be returned to the House District Committee for action today. The committee started discussion of the plan yesterday, but held up action when members wanted more time to study the legislation.

Sponsors hoped to speed the bill without change to the House floor for a decision Monday. Others, critical of some parts, indicated they would let the bill clear the committee, and fight for changes in the House.

Opposes Gas Tax Boost

One of the second group was Rep. John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) who said he would support in the House a move to kill the proposed one cent increase in the gasoline tax.

Bates outlined the revenue plan to the committee yesterday and urged prompt approval.

Bates said new estimates showed the proposed 25-cent increase in the present property tax rate of $1.75 per $100 would raise $4,500,000 more a year. His earlier estimate was four million. He said the extra half million would be the revenue from personal property.

A second feature of the program is extension of the local income tax law to collect from District residents who now escape by having a legal domicile elsewhere, and to apply the 5 per cent corporate tax rate of present law as a franchise tax on unincorporated businesses.

25 Per Cent Water Rate Increase

Bates' plan also calls for a 25 per cent increase in water rates, a four-million-dollar boost in the Federal payment, and doubling of fees to make auto inspections here financially self-supporting.

Meanwhile, Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) ordered preparation of a District sales tax bill which he will sponsor on the House floor.

Horan, chairman of the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, also announced his group today will hear Washington school officials tell about their school building needs.

In place of the 2-million-dollar budget cut advised by Bates, Horan believes a 6-million-dollar budget increase may be needed to start the schools next year toward elimination of part time classes.

Bates told the District Committee his program would make $13,500,000 available in the general fund next year for building, with about half of that for schools. The total, he said, included about $7,500,000 already available.

Bill Planned To Aid Law Graduate GIs

A bill which would waive District bar examinations for Washington law school graduates who entered service before admission to the bar will be introduced on Capitol Hill next week.

Representative Kenneth B. Keating (R., N. Y.) said yesterday his proposed measure would waive examinations for all law graduates who spent as long as two years in the service or as long as one year if they were wounded.

Although Keating said he had no direct opposition to the bill, he heard "some was developing."

Walter C. Clephane, chairman of the District's committee on bar admissions, said he felt law graduates should "brush up" on schooling to the extent that they could pass the bar exam. The law school graduates are eligible for refresher courses under the G. I. bill.

Keating's measure was proposed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Representative said yesterday New York has a similar measure "which has worked successfully without lowering the stand-

Wholesale Prices Rise .3 Per Cent

Wholesale prices rose .3 per cent during the week ended May 21 to the highest level since mid-April and 30.8 per cent above a year ago, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

The rise to 147.4 per cent of the 1926 average, was let by increases for farm products and foods.

Woman, 2 Men Held in Georgia In Bowling Green Kidnap Case

Charles W. Brown, special agent in charge of the Richmond, Va., office of FBI, announced the apprehension of two men and a woman in Savannah, Ga., yesterday in connection with the kidnaping, June 2, of Harold R. Foster of Lewisburg, Pa.

He listed the trio held on charges of kidnaping as Theodore Stanley Wawrzynski, Leroy Eslon Olson and Mrs. Leroy E. Olson, nee Juanita Mae Scroggins, and said the three gave their addresses as 4th st., Buffalo, N. Y.

The three were apprehended by Chatham County police, Savannah, at 10 o'clock this morning and will be returned to Richmond to await prosecution on charges of violation of the Federal kidnaping statute, Brown said.

The FBI agent said the three were picked up as hitchhikers by Foster at South Williamsport, Pa., on June 2 and while en route to Lewisburg the victim was struck on the head several times with a gun and his automobile subsequently commandeered.

Foster then was forced to remain in his car as the vehicle was driven through Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland to a point near Bowling Green, Va., where he was released on June 3, Brown added.

The FBI announcement of the arrest said that Foster was robbed of his money and identification papers and that when apprehended the three subjects had in their possession 15 cents.

H. W. Cord Death Held Natural One

Head Cut Caused Police to Suspect Foul Play at First

The death of Henry W. Cord, Maryland land commissioner, whose body was found in his parked car on the Soldiers' Home grounds early yesterday was due to natural causes, the coroner's office said yesterday.

Cord

Deputy Coroner Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, who conducted an autopsy, said the 58-year-old Democratic leader died of coronary occlusion and conorary scleroris, a heart ailment.

The coroner's verdict ended a police investigation which began with finding of the body. Because of a 1-inch gash above the man's left eye, police at first suspected foul play. The cut apparently was made when his head struck the wheel of the car, officials said.

Police were told he had suffered previous heart attacks.

His body was found on the front seat of the car by Dwight Kneas, 36, of 5021 8th st. nw., who was attracted by the headlights. The car had left the road and rolled into a wheat field. The ignition was turned off.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at St. George's Catholic Church in Ardmore, Md., and burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Cord, a native of Washington, had lived in Prince Georges County at Ardmore for about 40 years. He had been a member of the Democratic State Central Committee for 12 years and its chairman for eight. He was succeeded last fall by Charles S. Early.

He had recently started his four-year term as State land commissioner, an appointment made by Gov. William Preston Lane. He was president of the Prince Georges County Chapter of the Infantile Paralysis campaign; president of the Caravan Club, a Democratic organization; past president of the Twentieth District Democratic Club and a member of the Young Men's Democratic Club, the Southern Maryland Democratic Club, the Knights of Columbus and the Prince Georges County Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Cord, a widower, is survived by seven children:

Henry W. Cord, jr., of Seattle, Wash.; Prince Georges Policeman Arnett W. Cord of Ardwick Park; Robert J. Cord, Theodore F. Cord, both of Ardmore; Mrs. Adell Harllee and Mrs. Josephine Evans of Decatur Heights and Mrs. Cecilia Mae Beall of Ritchie.

He also is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Scott Walker of Washington; Mrs. Louise McMahon of Chicago, two brothers, George R. Cord of Avondale and William A. Cord of Washington and 12 grandchildren.

Dad Ideal? Tell The Post About Him

A dad who helps his children with their homework has been been nominated as Washington's "ideal father."

The entry came from Elizabeth, who writes:

"In winter father wakes up early, so to get me to music on time. When father gets home after work he takes us out for rides. On Sunday, father would like to play golf, but instead takes us to see our friends."

Another entry in The Post's contest to pick the city's "ideal father" is from 5-year-old Carolyn.

"When I hurt myself when I fall down," she writes, "daddy paints funny pictures on myself with mercurochrome."

In addition to being an artist, Carolyn's daddy is an actor.

"When we act out plays, he is the prince in Cinderella and the fox in the Little Red Hen and the giant in Jack, the Giant Killer He does it too funny! I think my daddy is the nicest daddy in the whole world."

If you think that your daddy is the "nicest" and deserves the honor of "ideal father," write down his qualifications and send the letter to the Ideal Father Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Entries must be postmarked by midnight June 10.

On Father's Day, June 15, the winning dad and his family will be guests of The Post for dinner and a show. They will broadcast over station WINX and dad will be presented a plaque.

The winner will be announced June 13.

20 Taxi Stands Here Abolished, One Authorized

Twenty District taxicab stands were ordered abolished yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission because police surveys indicate they are not being used enough by cab drivers.

E. J. Milligan, executive secretary of the commission, said PUC officials had discussed the matter with the city's major cab associations before taking action.

In the same order, PUC authorized a new cab stand at 3d and Kennedy sts. nw., requested by the Independent Taxicab Owners Association.

Taxicab stands were eliminated at the following locations:

Albemarle st. and Connecticut ave. nw.; Colorado ave. and Kennedy st. nw.; Connecticut ave. nw. at I and L sts.; D and 2d sts. se.; N and 17th sts. nw.; K st. nw. at 18th and 23d sts., and Wisconsin ave.; Massachusetts ave. and 9th st. nw.; N and 22d sts. nw.; New York ave. and 18th st. nw.; 12th and G sts. nw.; Vermont ave. and G st. nw.; Virginia ave. and E st. nw.; 2d and T sts. sw.; 6th st. and Adams dr. sw.; 8th and M sts. sw.; 17th and I sts. nw.; 18th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

"AT HOME" TO ROCK CREEK PARK VISITORS—There's a "circus" every day in Rock Creek Park—in the Zoo, of course. Two of the stars of Dr. William Mann's show are the young giraffes, Helen (left), born March 4, 1945, and Twiga, only 10 months old

Zoo in District's 'Back Yard' And Its Dr. Mann Are Popular

(Fourth of a series.)

Washington's Big Back Yard—Rock Creek Park—has a zoo all its own.

Actually, the National Zoological Park is run by the Smithsonian Institution and merely happens to be in the middle of its park neighbor.

The city isn't fooled. To the thousands who daily troop to see the lions, monkeys or the baby giraffe, the Zoo and Rock Creek Park are as inseparable as elephants and peanuts.

Head of this animal kingdom is an inconspicuous, comfortable man with a brush mustache and a slightly pressed suit who knows many of his 2600 wards by name, all by their history.

His Job Is Varied

He doubles as Zoo host for visiting firemen, lobbyist on Capitol Hill for bigger and better lions' dens, and fountainhead of zoological information for half of Washington.

He sat in his Zoo office the other day, wedged carefully in among bulging bookcases, relics of many expeditions, specimens and other mementoes of an active life. The phone rang.

"Dr. Mann?" a woman's voice asked. "Our cat just dragged in a 'possum and it's still alive. Can you please tell me what it eats?"

"Oh, your possum will eat meat, maybe vegetables, or some fruit," Mann answered patiently. And he added: "Keep that cat away, too."

Penguins Are Popular

Such queries pour into the Zoo switchboard steadily. They're carefully referred to Dr. Mann by his own orders.

"Keeps me in touch with people," he says.

How he ever gets out of touch with them is the question. On a brisk weekend, Mann says, between 30,000 and 60,000 people swarm over the Zoo's 175 acres.

These days, it's a good bet many of them are heading straight for the bird house and the penguins.

The Zoo, Mann believes, "has the finest penguin collection in the U. S." The six penguin types on warm days sit on a pile of cracked ice and just gasp quietly.

Two other prime attractions are a wobbly young giraffe and a plump baby "pigmy hippo." Mann also is proud of the park's collection of alligators and crocodiles; of its West African burrowing pythons, and the colorful group of South American birds.

Takes Local Gifts

The Zoo, too, serves as a sort of catch-all for the animals people get tired of tripping over in their homes. "Forty-two people donated animals to us last year," Mann says.

The roster included everything from Pekin ducks and guinea pigs to two coatimundi. Congo, one of the lions, was the gift of a little boy and his relieved household several years ago. She got too big to sit on laps.

Mann feels he has "four of the best buildings in the world" in his Zoo—the mammal, pachyderm, reptile and bird houses. And "three of the most unsatisfactory," too. He thinks a brand new lion house is badly needed.

"And our lions are too old," he adds. "The lion house looks like an old folks' home."

Sabath, Herter Back Information Program

Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) yesterday supported a bill empowering the Administration to operate an information program abroad. Representative Herter (R., Ill.) likewise indorsed the measure.

They were the only ones who got the floor as the House opened debate on the measure, tehn suspended until today for lack of a big enough audience. Fewer than 50 members were on the floor and a quorum roll call, to collect a majority of the members, fell short.

Tydings Seeks Airport Funds Restoration

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) yesterday announced he would ask Senate restoration of House cuts in Federal aid for Baltimore's 12-million-dollar airport.

The House, in trimming airport funds on a national basis, lopped more than $400,000 off Baltimore's $800,000 Federal grant.

Tydings, asserting "Baltimore will be one of the great airports of this country and the world," also told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee that an express highway will link the airport with Washington.

The Maryland State Roads Commission said yesterday that the super-highway project is still in process of study—"on paper, but not on blueprints." The project has been delayed by war and lack of funds.

The Maryland Senator declared National Airport in Washington "is already badly overcrowded on windy and foggy days with planes being stacked above it for long periods. The Baltimore airport can serve as an auxiliary," he said.

Soldier Faces Six Charges

Maryland State police yesterday morning arrested a Fort Meade soldier near Muirkirk after he had successfully eluded Washington and Hyattsville police in the course of a 15-mile chase.

The soldier, Sergt. Lawrence E. Coates, 26, who gave his home address as 2719 11th st. nw., was charged on six traffic counts by Hyattsville police and released under $750 bond for appearance in police court here June 19.

First seen at 5 a. m. by Washington police, Coates was speeding along Michigan ave. toward Prince Georges County, officers said later. Washington police were unable to overtake him and two Hyattsville policemen were unable to block him on Hamilton st., after emptying their pistols at the fleeing automobile.

Coates was apprehended near Muirkirk on U. S. Highway No. 1 by State Trooper Charles Critchey, who was alerted by Hyattsville. He was charged with exceeding 70 miles an hour, reckless driving, turning off his lights to avoid identification, passing three stops signs, driving on an expired permit and failing to stop on an officer's command.

Less than an hour earlier, Officers Moreau and Thompson were more fortunate in their attempts to arrest a speeding driver in the same location.

Andrew Krause, jr., 29, Annapolis, was charged with exceeding 70 miles an hour on Hamilton st. and posted $300 bond for court appearance on June 26.

'Buchenwald Bug' Fatal to Englishwoman

London, June 5 (U.P.).—Mrs. Mavis Tate, former Conservative member of Parliament whose health had been failing since she saw the dead and dying at Buchenwald concentration camp in 1945, was found dead today in her Pimlico home, with her head near the oven of a gas stove.

Mrs. Tate, who was defeated for reelection in 1945, was the only woman member of a parliamentary delegation visiting the camp.

She was ill when she returned and had to stay in bed several months with what was diagnosed as septic throat and severe mental strain. Other members of the delegation also were ill, and, like Mrs. Tate, seemed to be suffering "from the Buchenwald bug."

Of the corpses and starving people at Buchenwald, she said: "I was horrified. I have never seen so much suffering. It could not fail to leave a permanent impression on the mind of anyone who saw it."

Bruce T. Bair

Baltimore, June 5 (AP).—Bruce Thomas Bair, 48, former Westminster attorney and one-time State commander of the American Legion, died at Fort Howard Hospital last night.

Mr. Bair was born in Baltimore in September, 1898, and served in the Navy during World War I. He received his law degree from Columbia University in 1924.

He was first admitted to the bar in Tennessee and practiced at Memphis for five years. He moved to Baltimore from Westminster during World War II.

He is survived by a widow and a son.

Auto Caravan To Gettysburg Listed Sunday

The National Capital Parks will conduct an automobile caravan Sunday to Gettysburg National Military Park.

The caravan will start at 11 a. m. at the checking station, where U. S. Highway No. 15 enters Gettysburg, Capital Parks Superintendent Irving C. Root said.

Special buses will leave from 1416 F st. nw. at 8:30 a. m. Those going, Root said, should bring lunches.

Other weekend park activities will include a historical tour of the Capitol grounds, a Mount Vernon highway tour, a camera stroll through the Franciscan Monastary Rose Gardens, and a walk in Foundry Branch Park to study tree diseases.

A summer campfire series of programs in Rock Creek Park will start at 8:30 p. m., Saturday, with showing of a series of colored pictures on America's colonial beginning. The programs will be held in the campfire area near 16th st. and Colorado ave. nw.

Motion to Quash Heard in Dennis, Josephson Cases

Motions to quash indictments against Leon Josephson and Eugene Dennis, the latter secretary of the Communist Party, yesterday were taken under advisement by Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech, District Court.

Josephson and Dennis had been cited for contempt of Congress for alleged refusal to appear before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Their attorneys had argued that the committee was unconstitutional in that Congress had no right to form such a committee.

Yesterday, in rebuttal, Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly cited a recent District Court decision in a similar case involving the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee that Congress did legally have the right to form the Un-American Activities group.

Committee Heads

Trade Board Names Black And McManus

McManus Black

William J. McManus, vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., yesterday was appointed chairman of the Board of Trade's river and harbor committee.

Renamed as chairman of the city planning committee was Fischer S. Black, assistant to the president of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Both have assumed duties with the two committees and will continue as chairmen through the 1947-48 administrative year.

McManus, Georgetown University and National University law graduate, has been a member of the Board of Trade since 1932 and was vice chairman of the board's river and harbor committee last year.

Black, a University of North Carolina and National University law school graduate, has been vice chairman of the board's postwar planning committee and was named chairman of that committee's peacetime designation—the city planning committee—in May of 1946.

Heinz Plane Crashes

San Francisco, June 4 (U.P.).—H. J. Heinz, of the "57 Varieties" packing company bearing his name, escaped injury when his chartered plane crashed in a bog near Gladstone on the Australian Queensland Coast, according to a radio Australia broadcast monitored here today by United Press. The broadcast said the twin-engine plane tipped over and sank in the mud.

Library's Fair Thrills 5000 Youngsters

There wasn't a would-be Rembrandt in the lot, but do you think that mattered?

To some 5000 wide-eyed Southwest Washington kids, their public library's second annual "outdoor fair" yesterday was fun and good fellowship—and that did matter.

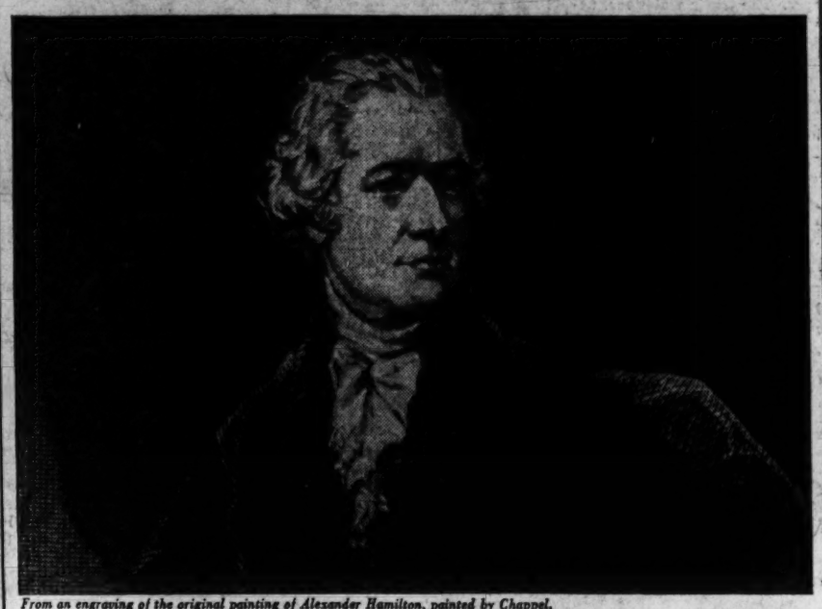
Eager and gay, the youngsters tripped into the playground at 7th and H sts. sw., to take quick looks at such things as maybe they'd never seen before. There were lots besides paintings.

Dozens of enthusiastic children, like bare-footed Patricia Harrigan, 8, of 712½ 7th st. sw., paused before the exhibit of dolls—of all races, colors and creeds—just like the little girls who watched them. The display was called "Brotherhood Club."

Exhibitors in a picture display presented by Barney Neighborhood House included Vale Rousseau, Joaquin Ramirez, and Joyce Oscar, all 9 years old.

One of the happiest groups—and about the youngest—was the group of 24, 2 to 5 year olds, who helped to tell the story of the Southwest Nursery School. While others watched, they played ring games and sang "Sing a Song of Six Pence" and "London Bridge."

Great Characters of 1788...



From an engraving of the original painting of Alexander Hamilton, painted by Chappel.

Alexander Hamilton entered the business world at twelve, and became the first Secretary of the U. S. Treasury at 32. It was his strong character that made him an outstanding figure.

It is character, too, that distinguishes "Carstairs Est. 1788"—justly noted as America's most luxurious blend.

With your first sip of its glorious flavor and mellowness, you'll know why it is the favorite of those who insist on the finest. If you haven't already discovered its superbly smooth quality, why not do so tonight?

2 Reporters, Photographer Win Awards

Two Washington reporters and a photographer were announced yesterday as winners of the Washington Newspaper Guild's 1946 awards for professional achievement.

The winners, each receiving $100, are:

Hanson Hathaway, Times-Herald writer, now managing editor of the Army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, in Tokyo, for his expose of the Garsson case, best national news story.

Cornelia Ball, Daily News writer, for a series on automobile loan usury in the District, best local news story.

Frank Cancellare, Acme photographer, for a photograph of George Allen entitled "Court Jester," the best photograph of the year.

Judges of the competition were Michael W. Flynn, managing editor of the Times-Herald; Alexander F. Jones, assistant to the publisher of The Washington Post; B. M. McKelway, editor of the Evening Star; John O'Rourke, editor of the Daily News, and Milton Murray, president of the American Newspaper Guild.

Cancellare also received honorable mention for his photograph of John L. Lewis reading a newspaper in the Carleton Hotel lobby during the coal crisis. The picture was entitled "Ole King Coal."

Other honorable mentions went to: Sam Stavisky, Post reporter, for a series of articles on veterans; Jerry Kluttz, Post columnist, for coverage of United Public Workers activities, and James Y. Newton, Evening Star writer, for a series on soft coal mines.

Charles Davis, Post writer, was chairman of the Guild's Professional Advancement Committee.

Husky Ex-GI Really Sweats For a Living

New York, June 5 (AP).—Husky Eugene Belner, dressed in a red rayon sash, a wilted shirt collar and not much else, stepped happily into a chamber heated to 125 degrees today and let his 2,500,000 sweat glands perspire freely.

The 23-year-old Belner, former GI with three campaign ribbons, really sweats for a living. He works for a group of textile manufacturers who call him the "human perspirator."

These manufacturers clothe him in the latest fabrics to see what his perspiration does to the color fastness and tensile strength.

Once wilted, the manufacturers dunk that collar into a mechanical "nose" called an osometer and it will measure what even your best friends won't tell you.

Two weeks ago when Belner took the job he weighed 280 pounds. Now he is down to a mere 265.

"I have been going to doctors getting treatments to reduce weight," he said. "Why pay for treatments when I can get paid for taking them?"

Widow Awarded $4000 In Heart Balm Suit

St. Louis, June 5 (AP).—An all-male jury in Circuit Court today awarded $4000 damages to Mrs. Marie Brady, 41-year-old widow, in her breach of promise suit against 86-year-old Fred Neustadt, wealthy retired farmer. She sued for $25,000.

Mrs. Brady, mother of four children, testified yesterday that Neustadt, her landlord, first proposed to her in January, 1943. She said she finally said "yes," and that he then refused to go through the ceremony. Neustadt, a widower, has seven grown children.

Alcatraz 'Graduate' Is Held Under Bond for Gun Assault

John Kendrick, 40-year-old Alcatraz "graduate," who police say fired at but missed Tommy English, erstwhile member of the "Blackface Gang," was ordered held yesterday under $3500 bond on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

He was then removed from the presence of Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell and taken before Traffic Court Judge Armond Scott, who set additional $600 bond against Kendrick on two traffic charges. The traffic violations, police said, came in his flight after firing at English.

Kendrick, police said, waited in his car Sunday night, near English's home at 832 10th st. nw. When English, 34, walked out at 11 p. m., Kendrick fired one shot from a Luger. It shattered the window of a beauty salon at 830 10th st. nw.

The assailant then raced away, said police, but in his haste sideswiped a truck at 11th and M sts. nw. and abandoned his car at 13th and M sts. nw. He was picked up by a police scout car a short time later.

Roads Have 130,000 Boxcars On Order, Hill Caucus Told

Railroads have ordered 130,000 new boxcars and are ordering more as fast as present orders are being delivered, a caucus of Western Congressmen was told yesterday.

J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, also assured the Westerners that the West is "getting its fair share of boxcars."

"We were, and still are, massing cars in the West to start moving the Southwest wheat crop as soon as it is ready," Johnson said.

The caucus was called to investigate the current shortage of cars in the West nad Midwest.

Johnson was asked by Representative Cecil R. King (D., Calif.), chairman of the caucus, if he thought the grand jury inquiry ordered this week by Attorney General Clark would "unearth a national scandal."

King produced a letter Johnson wrote to Cabinet members last November, predicting "a national scandal" if the production of new railroad equipment should be investigated.

"I don't think it will," Johnson said. "What I meant was that when a nation that can produce like this Nation can, can't move that production on its railroads, it was a national scandal."

Johnson said railroads lack about 100,000 boxcars, and 200,000 other types of cars for carrying freight. It will take 10 years to overcome that shortage, he said.

The committee also received a statement from William T. Faricy, president of the Association of American Railroads, replying to Wendell Berge, former Assistant Attorney General. Berge had accused the association of discrimination against Western lines.

"To do this," Faricy said, "Berge had to misstate some facts, misdistort the picture of the relationship between the association and its members.

Girl Honor Student's Body Found Near Pit

Lafayette, Ind., June 5 (U.P.).—The fully clothed body of Anna Catherine Fox, 22, Purdue University honor student who disappeared Tuesday, was found late today beneath a cherry tree near an abandoned gravel pit.

Coroner Wayne Cox said the vital organs would be examined. Police theorized the attractive pharmacy student might have swallowed poison.

Black Market Steel Report Called 'Myth'

By The Associated Press

An official of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh told a Senate subcommittee yesterday that "the purported large quantities of black market steel are a myth."

A. J. Hazlett, Jones & Laughlin vice president in charge of sales, told the group which is investigating problems small businessmen have in obtaining steel:

"The present difficulty is not attributable to inequitable distribution, for there is no steel consuming industry which is receiving its full requirement of scarce steel items . . . The recent shutdowns in the automobile industry highlighted the short supply situation with respect to large business.

"We must conclude that the problem is simply one of an overexpanded demand at the present time."

Hazlett testified that Jones & Laughlin has been "very meticulous" not to supply steel to anyone who might pass it along to the black market. He said every effort has been made to meet the needs of small manufacturers.

"Percentagewise our treatment of our small customers on an average has been better generally than our treatment of the large customers," he said.

Asked whether Jones & Laughlin has shut off any of its old customers without any steel, he said, "there are some and that has been a matter of extreme embarrassment to us."

He denied previous testimony that the company had not treated fairly old customers of the Otis Steel Co. of Cleveland, which Jones & Laughlin bought out in 1942, or that the company has withdrawn from the Bufffalo (N. Y.) market.

Hazlett also disputed testimony given the committee Wednesday that Jones & Laughlin has notified the Troop Water Heater Co. of Pittsburgh that its stocks will be shut off June 30.

Jones & Laughlin lost the production of about 700,000 tons of steel last year because of strikes in the coal and steel industries, he said, telling the committee that if that tonnage had been produced it "would have gone far to close the gap between supply and demand."

Pennsylvania Man Is Exonerated in Traffic Fatality

Edwin F. Shellenberger, 28, Norristown, Pa., was cleared in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday of manslaughtter charges arising out of a traffic fatality March 26.

A fine of $50 for reckless driving was assessed against the driver, whose trailer truck crashed into the rear of an automobile driven by William C. DeNyse, 62, Leeds, N. Y., near Oak Crest on United States Highway No. 1. DeNyse died several hours later from a cerebral concussion in Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale.

Shellenberger testified that De Nyse's car was traveling at a slow rate of speed, and stopped suddenly in the road while he was glancing behind to see if the road was clear to pass.

Rent Hike Protest Sent to Truman

Residents of Hillwood Square, a Federal housing project just outside the town of Falls Church yesterday sent a petition to President Truman protesting a 27 per cent rent increase.

The petitioners objected to the Government increase on the basis of the President's recent appeal for lowered prices.

They told the Chief Executive that the rent boost was out of line with any increase in their wages. They felt that it was not fair for the Government to increase rents when private landlords cannot.

Cemetery Pickets Banned by Judge

Cleveland, June 5 (AP).—A common pleas judge today banned all picketing by striking grave-diggers at Lake View Cemetery, and said from the bench:

"The right of the union to picket is not a sacred right. It is a legal right. The obligation to bury the dead is more sacred than picketing."

The judge, Frank J. Merrick, turned down an offer by Harry Crawford, attorney for the cemetery, to agree to limited picketing.

"Oh no," said the judge, "I won't sign an order of that kind. There will be no picketing at all."

Committee Recognizes Ga. Thomppson Faction

By The Associated Press

The Democratic National Committee disclosed yesterday it has given official recognition to the Georgia faction of the party headed by Gov. M. A. Thompson, and has in effect turned its back on the group headed by former Gov. Herman Talmadge.

The committee announced it has canceled invitations to officers of pro-Talmadge Democratic executive committee to attend a meeting of party leaders here June 19. Pro-Thompson people have been asked to attend instead.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Management, Labor Peace Need Stressed

By S. Oliver Goodman
Post Reporter

Bedford Springs, Pa., June 5.—America's economic machine is seriously out of adjustment on both the domestic and foreign fronts, Washington bankers were told today at the opening of their twenty-ninth annual meeting.

Miller

Peace between management and labor is the major adjustment needed on the home front, declared S. William Miller, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

A halt to the squandering of this Nation's money and substance abroad in an effort to buy peace was urged by Constantine Brown, foreign news commentator.

A serious recession may develop, Miller said, unless a solution to the industrial peace problem is found. He advocated larger and more efficient factory and farm production. Wage stability, lower prices and reduced costs are other problems yet to be settled, he pointed out.

"We are enjoying the highest level of national income and prosperity in our history," Miller declared, "but whether we have a serious recession depends on decisions yet to be made by business, labor and Government."

After emphasizing the dark clouds on the economic horizon, Miller turned to a review of 1946 in the Washington banking field.

The year, he said, was marked by a new record of more than three billion dollars in bank clearings. This was an increase of 20 per cent over the previous year's check transactions and reflected continued high activity in general Washington business. For the first five months this year clearings have continued to set new highs.

Combined resources of the city's banks, he continued, exceeded one billion dollars and deposits, excluding Treasury war loan withdrawals, show a substantial gain.

Greater Loan Demand

"There has been an encouraging increase in demand for loans," he pointed out, "and in spite of prevailing low interest rates for employment of funds and high operating costs, reasonable earnings for the year have been shown."

Reviewing the year's legislation, he lauded congressional passage of a bill which limits to six years the period in which banks may be held liable on Government checks bearing forged indorsements.

He reiterated the bank association's opposition to the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill and the District of Columbia's tax collector's proposal to tax interest on Government bonds.

Among pending legislation which the association is advocating, he declared, are the "prudent man rule" for trust fund investment and the "common trust act" for correcting possible restrictions on national banks acting as trustees in certain cases.

Widening the membership of the District of Columbia Bankers Association to include institutions within a radius of 10 miles of Washington is being actively pushed, Miller stated.

Commenting on foreign complications, Brown pointed out that since VE-Day the United States had made an outlay of about six billion dollars in loans and other assistance, to rehabilitate war-stricken nations.

Despite these attempts, he said, there has been no sign of recovery throughout the world, due to politics in which Moscow plays the major role.

"We are wasting our money and substance," Brown added, "by trying to help weak governments which are being undermined by political agitations . . . if we could buy peace, and this seems to me impossible under the present setups, any amount of cash, manufactures and raw materials would be worthwhile spending. In some countries our loans are being used against our own interest; in others they are just being squandered."

Nominating Group Named

A committee to nominate association officers for the coming year was appointed by retiring President Miller. Committee members are: Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, chairman; Bruce Baird, National Savings & Trust Co., vice chairman; L. P. McLachen, McLachlen Banking Corp.; Francis G. Addison, jr., Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Wilmer J. Waller, Hamilton National Bank.

Committee on resolutions was appointed as follows: Charles H. Doing, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman; Frederick P. H. Siddons, American Security & Trust Co., vice chairman; Thomas J. Groom, Bank of Commerce & Savings; Clarence F. Burton, City Bank, and A. M. McLachlen, McLachlen Banking Corp.

The more than 200 bankers, wives and guests relaxed this afternoon at a cocktail party, golf tournaments and a tennis contest.

Tomorrow's program will include reports by section chairmen and addresses by Curtis R. Holton, industrial relations consultant, and C. A. Sienkiewicz, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

Climaxing the program Saturday will be election of new officers and addresses by Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank of Reconstruction and Development.

There's Even a Derby Finish

'Homestretch' Lavish With Props, Niggardly With Plot and Acting

By Richard L. Coe

"THE HOMESTRETCH" is one of those please-try-to-understand-dear-this-horse-means-an-awful-lot-to-me pictures.

The Capitol's new Technicolor racing film is a thing of lavish beauty. Horses and humans, as Miss Parsons used to say, never looked lovelier. Washington's Robert Bassler, as Twentieth Century's producer, must have had an unlimited expense account to include shots of 11 famous tracks in three countries. The screen gleams with riches.

Maureen O'Hara

The "original story" by Wanda Tuchock, however, would make a colt whinny. Talk about "the vaporings of half-baked, lazy people," Mr. Truman! You should lend an ear to Wanda's sloppy corn.

There's hardly an unexpected development in the plot or a line that doesn't telegraph it's on the way. Maureen O'Hara is a stuffy Boston girl who is willed a race horse, in the sale of which Cornel Wilde tricks her respectable aunt. Girl meets boy.

In the movies, of course, romance strikes. No period of courtship, no meeting of minds. Just physical whammie. Maureen loves Cornel. Cornel loves Maureen.

This puts Maureen adrift in the international set and you know what loose-livers they are! Royal Ascot, Palermo, Churchill Downs, Hialeah, Saratoga, Arlington, Santa Anita, Belmont—ah me, what a gay, dizzy whirl. Cornel lets the old mansion in Maryland go to pot, following the ponies on three continents. It's all too much for Maureen's Beacon Street background. What's worse, he calls her Monkey.

"THE HOMESTRETCH" Twentieth Century-Fox release produced by Robert Bassler. Original screen play by Wanda Tuchock. Directed by Bruce Humberstone. At the Capitol Theater.

Pablo	Tommy Cook

Biological Specialist

After Maureen lets him get away with that you just sit back and let Monkey stew in her own juice. She asked for all the rough treatment she got. Poor Cornel is surprised when he learns there's going to be a little one, rather a remarkable reaction for a script-writer to wish on a man whose life is devoted to breeding horses. Poor Monkey, a few minutes later, catches him sitting on a beach chair with Helen Walker so she jams her car into a tree and has a miscarriage.

Back she goes to Boston and her sensible former fiance. But she keeps her horse and runs him in the Kentucky Derby. And Cornel, by now the owner of his old horse, thanks to the accommodating Miss Walker, runs his, too. But why go on?

The real pity of "The Homestretch" is that so much has been lavished on its production and so little on its story and characters. The writing is good enough for the 12-year-old level but that's all.

Except for Helen Walker's pleasantly disarming "other woman," nothing can be said for the acting except everyone looks purty. Miss O'Hara is certainly Heaven's gift to Technicolor, but the lines she has to mouth not only are cliches, but frequently make no sense whatever. And how Jimmy Gleason keeps popping up in rival stables to further the romantic plot, is enough to make the horses neigh nay.

Mois and Motion

The Capitol's stage show is unassuming and easy to take. Benny Ross and Maxine Stone have some rough cross talk that's earthily amusing. The Reddingtons draw on the audience for a novel tumbling act. The Smoothies turn out vocal impressions of the radio shows. Peggy Taylor's trio is an adagio team of smooth grace, thoroughly eye-catching.

Contralto Connie Krueger rejoins Sam Jack Kaufman's orchestra for two suave numbers, "Falling in Love" and "Night and Day." The busy Miss Krueger, who generally splits her time between Loew's office work and singing with the Columbia Light Opera, is a girl who knows the hows of singing. Good breathing and fine diction complement her velvety voice.

Alex. Band's Back, Ragged But Still Loud

By Leo Brady

If "Alexander's Ragtime Band" doesn't make a triumphant return to Loew's Columbia, at least it makes an undiminished one.

Touted as the archetype of all those musicals based on the work of one song writer, this is still the brassiest, brashest and most unashamed of them all. Its production numbers are not so lavish and it's in just plain black-and-white, but the cliches were younger then.

The music in this case is Irving Berlin's and the shoestring of story traces a mythical Alexander from ragtime in the teens to riches in the twenties. In fact, it winds up in Carnegie Hall, which will embarrass another picture. Within this range, practically every Berlin tune extant when the film was made (1938) is included.

The best moments musically come early in the picture and derive from the numbers staged in the clip-joints which Alexander uses as rungs up the ladder of fame. The blare of the band, the nasal, trombony singers and the Charleston-like dance numbers will give you a chuckle or two.

Merman to the Rescue

Alice Faye retires from singing halfway through the film and hands over some of the jazziest Berlin tunes to Ethel Merman, so that you may be willing to sit out an interminable reconciliation scene just to hear the Merman pipes.

On the theory that nobody should be tried twice for the same crime, the acting in "Alexander's Ragtime Band" had best be left alone. Tyrone Power and Don Ameche pass Miss Faye back and forth as though she were a sack of marshmallows, and it's good to hear Jack Haley sing "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning."

Otherwise, you may enjoy seeing Jean Hersholt, Helen Westley, Paul Hurst and John Carradine.

The film has Berlin's music, played in ear-splitting arrangements, and Director Henry King gives it a rapid-fire pace. For these and reminiscence, you may want to see it.

Ben Thinks Rank Deal A 'Hecht' of a Note

New York.—Last year Ben Hecht made an agreement with J. Arthur Rank, the British film producer, to do one picture for $150,000 and 10 per cent of the gross . . . Hecht is the author of the newspaper ads denouncing Britain's Palestine policy which became an international incident last month. And now his deal with Mr. Rank is suspended, because the Bank of England is refusing to release any money to him. "The British," said Hecht in discussing this retaliatory ruling, "are confusing art with landgrabbing."

Ben Hecht

EXCHANGE: Gladys Hay, whose sister recently played Ophelia in Maurice Evans' "Hamlet," just completed a year of teaching in the schools of Charleston, W. Va. Miss Hay came from Elgin, Scotland, under the exchange teacher plan. She was one of 74 chosen from among Britain's teachers to teach here for a year, while 74 American teachers went to England . . . As an exchange teacher she received the same salary she got in Britain, and therefore was unable to save enough money to pay for her dreamed-of trip through America before going home . . . Some Charleston businessmen heard of this, and privately and anonymously raised a fund to enable her to make the trip. Miss Hay left last week for the West. She'll tour the States, and Canada, and sails for home in August.

AGENCY: James Mason has been deluged with radio offers, and every agency in town was anxious to represent him. Mason selected his agent this way. When he appeared in "Bathsheba" he heard one of the members of the cast saying that Bill McCaffrey is a good agent. Mason found McCaffrey's number in the phone book, called him and said: "Mr. McCaffrey? This is James Mason. How'dya'do. I'd like you to be my agent for radio." . . . And that's how McCaffrey got Mason as a client.

THRILL: Harpo Marx and Screenwriter Art Arthur were playing golf at a Los Angeles course. They were puting on the green of a short, par three hole. The green is obscured from the tee by a hill over which the player must shoot . . . They saw a ball come over the hill and land 8 feet from the pin. "Let's give this guy a real thrill, and tell him he made a hole-in-one," Harpo suggested. They holed the ball, and waited. When the golfer arrived, Harpo and Arthur rushed toward him shouting congratulations and saying: "Wonderful. You made it. It's in. It's in" . . . "That's good," said the player. "It gives me a 4 for the hole."

CHATTER: Gene Fowler, who neither smoked nor drank during his recent trip to New York, suffered an angina attack as soon as he returned to Hollywood, and now must remain in bed for a month . . . Mrs. Aleman, wife of the President of Mexico, will sponsor the three-week engagement of the Roy Rogers troupe in Mexico City, for her pet charity, a home for crippled children . . . Joseph and Stewart Alsop, the columnist brothers, will do a radio series in the fall.

ENTERPRISE: Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, the rare book and manuscript dealer, has two framed items on his desk. The first is a sketch of Keats, made at his death-bed by Severn, with some descriptive notes written by the artist . . . The second is a sign: "'It is naught,' crieth the buyer. But when he goeth his way, then he rejoiceth."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lewis Outsmarts Himself This Time

By Drew Pearson

John L. Lewis, who has outsmarted a lot of people in his day, outsmarted himself in no uncertain terms last week. In so doing, he also left the entire labor movement outsmarted regarding a Presidential veto of the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

O'Neill

What really happened was that the coal operators called Lewis' bluff on wage boosts and walked out—in a coolly calculated move to put Truman on the spot so he would have to sign the labor bill. They knew that with a coal strike threatening the country, it would be difficult for Truman to veto.

Usually it is John L. Lewis who walks out. But this time Lewis was caught flat-footed. A few hours before the breakdown, his lieutenants were spreading word that a settlement, at least with the Northern operators, was "imminent." The operators themselves were cagily maintaining the illusion of a "quick settlement."

In addition, Lewis had two friends among the coal operators with whom he confidently felt he could do business—Charles O'Neill, top spokesman for the Northern operators, and Harry Moses, negotiator for United States Steel's "captive" coal mines. Both men like to boast that they can "get along" with Lewis, even in a tough wage fight, and Moses always makes it a practice to call on the United Mine Workers chief, when in Washington, for a social chat.

Reversing Mr. Lewis

Lewis wasn't unaware that the Taft-Hartley labor bill might affect his own negotiations, but, as one close friend put it, "John didn't think that Charley O'Neill or Harry Moses gave a damn about using the mine negotiations as a bludgeon to force Truman to sign the bill."

However, the burly mine-labor chief got the surprise of his life when he walked into the meeting with the operators. For once, O'Neill and Moses didn't want to "do business" with Lewis. The two operator spokesmen were about as cooperative as cigar-store Indians all during the brief and hostile conference.

Lewis had opened with a demand for a 35-cents-an-hour wage increase. This is usual in wage dickering. Lewis always opens high, waits for a counterproposal, then compromises at a lower figure. This time, however, there was no compromising. O'Neill flatly refused to consider any wage boost above the 15 cents he had offered. It was only then that it dawned on Lewis that the operators apparently were working with business leaders on the outside and intended to use the mine negotiations to put President Truman on the spot.

O'Neill carried out his role to the last with fine theatrical flair, staging a red-faced, belligerent exit from the meeting. It made good headlines, and it put responsibility for a strike partly on President Truman's lap.

Note—John L. Lewis is now in an extremely difficult bargaining position. Recently he told friends: "Before, I had to negotiate with an injunction and a jail sentence facing us. Now I must negotiate with the Sword of Damocles hanging over my head."

Norman Armour

President Truman has selected Norman Armour, one of the top career diplomats of the country, as his new Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin American affairs.

Armour's selection will be regarded throughout Latin America as a gesture of reconciliation toward President Peron of Argentina, inasmuch as Armour previously served as American envoy in the Argentine and is well known and liked in that country.

Regardless of Latin-American reactions, however, Armour is considered one of the ablest of American diplomats, with no political leanings one way or the other except as a strong advocate of the democratic form of government.

Although he served in most of the world's important capitals, Armour has never acted as an executive and hitherto has declined to take a so-called "desk" job in the State Department.

Armour married Princess Myra Koudacheff in 1919, following a period of several years when he was attached to the American Embassy in Petrograd. Since then he has been stationed in Brussels, The Hague, Montevideo, Rome and, shortly after the Japanese earthquake, became counselor of the American Embassy in Tokyo. He also served in France as counselor of the embassy during the crucial period from 1928 to 1932, and helped negotiate the final reparations settlement and the Hoover moratorium.

Armour's first ministerial position was as Ambassador to Haiti from 1932 to 1935. Later he became Minister to Canada, then Ambassador to Chile, and in 1939 he was appointed Ambassador to Argentina.

Armour is 59 years old, was born in England of American parents. He studied and graduated from Princeton in 1909. Contrary to general belief, he is not related to the Armour meat-packing family.

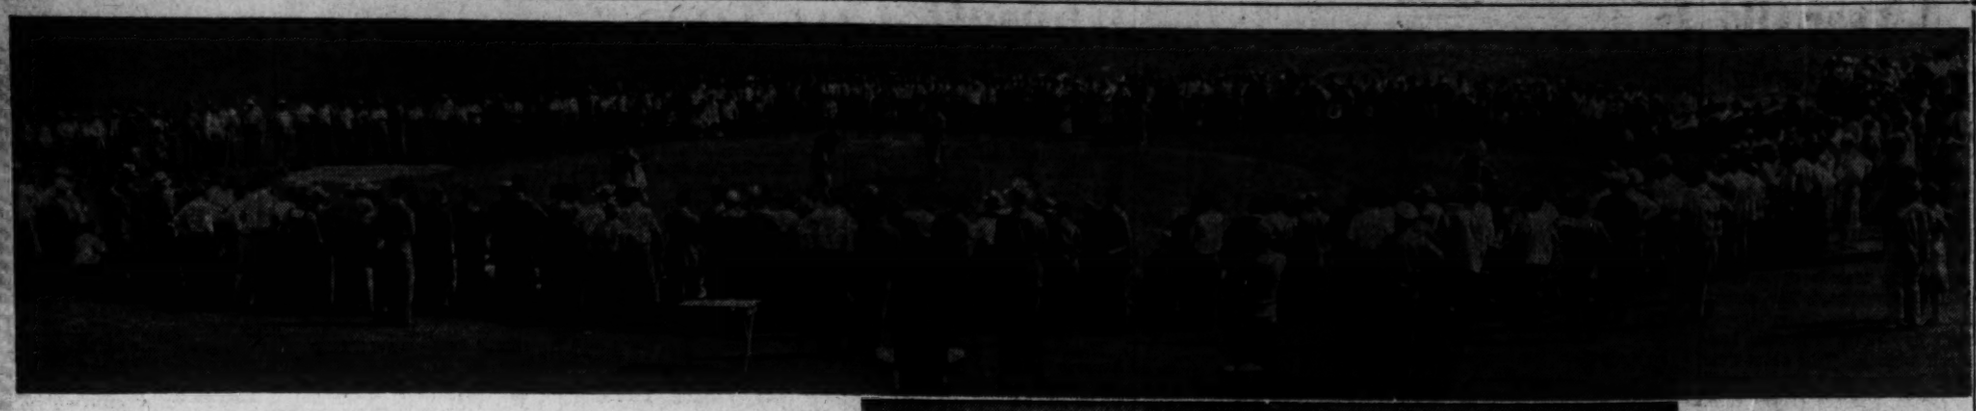
Snead, Thomson, Harrison Fire 66s in Open



This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THOSE WONDROUS vivisectionists who scorn par golf as the mark of a duffer and are not happy unless they're taking some links apart, got in their licks very early in the National Capital Open at the Prince Georges Club yesterday.

POVICH

In fact, sub-par golf wasn't good enough to win the first hole for Lloyd Mangum, the national open champion, and Clayton Heafner, the hefty North Carolinian, who clicked off a pair of birdie three's and walked to the second tee without the honor.

Walking with them, unfortunately, was Sammy Snead, who was also a member of their threesome, and was two under par at the end of the first hole. All Snead did was to blast out of a trap to the left of the green and watch his ball drop into the 4¼-inch cup for an eagle two. Snead, you know, is a notoriously bad putter, and he dotes on non-putt greens on the theory that a no-putt green is never a three-putt green.

Snead was one of the trio who came in with 66's, six below the par for the course, deadlocking with Jimmy Thomson and Dutch Harrison for the first day's lead. They tied the competitive record for the course.

IT WAS A GIDDY pace they were setting at the outset. Over the walkie-talkies manned by the dress-uniformed Marines of the Fifth Reserve Battalion, came the flash: "Snead four under par at the end of five." "Mangrum three under going to the fifth tee." "Harrison six under at the sixteenth." At the turn, though, it was Jimmy Thomson who was the sensation, six under par.

The long-hitting Thomson, who was reducing the course to a drive and a pitch, and putting as well as he ever did in his life, was smiling as he posted his 66 at the finish. "Same old Thomson," grinned the big fellow who hasn't won an important tournament since the 1937 Los Angeles Open, and doesn't expect to win another one immediately.

But he knows his place in golf is secure as long as he can continue to out-drive everybody else in the business, and score moderately well.

The day was made for scoring. Prince Georges officials resisted the temptation to trick-up the greens and left the flags as easy targets, and no breath of wind was apparent until midway of the afternoon. "If they can't score today, they're off their game," commented Al Houghton, the home pro who negotiated a two-under card of 70, to prove his point.

IT WAS SNEAD, not Bobby Locke, who pulled the biggest gallery, attesting to the drawing power of slamming Sammy even at a time when Locke is the newest sensation of the game. Snead has appeal not only to the fans who seek to marvel at his sparkling woods and irons, but to the sadistic among them who wait for the West Virginian to mess up the putts that most pros drop consistently.

There were no three-putt greens for Snead yesterday, but his putting wasn't good and there were traces of the yips, as the golfers say. He had a fair shot at enough one-putt greens to give him an outgoing 29, instead of the 32 he did shoot, if his putting could match the rest of his game, the added wonder is that he was playing with a new set of clubs delivered to him an hour before starting time.

Snead can marvel, too, not at himself, but at his contemporaries who are good putters. When big Clayton Heafner, one of the best, got down a 35-footer on the seventh just after Snead struggled to avoid a three-putt green, slamming Sammy threw his hat high in the air in applause for the kind of skill of which he knew the value but didn't own.

THE EYES OF the curious, though, were attracted to Locke, and his pronating swing with the flat take-back, and they didn't have to wait for him to post his 67, to recognize his skill. They saw it off the first tee when he all but drove the green, and his style was a sop to all the unorthodoxy of the veriest duffer.

Locke was a hit with the gallery, tipping his cap to the applause, and tolerant with the autograph seekers who ducked the ropes to get his signature. He doesn't make it a grim game, in the fashion of too many stony-faced American pros, and when he barely missed a 15-footer on the eighteenth that would have brought him a leader-tying 66, the moans of the gallery were genuine.

Locke played in a three-some with E. D. Furgol, a handsome young pro who travels the tournament circuit as a Spaulding representative, and is eighth among the 1947 pennant winners. He posted a tolerable 75 yesterday, despite what you thought was a strange hitch in his swing. Later you found out that warn't no hitch, and that Furgol's arms didn't quite match. The very skinny one, the left, knows about infantile paralysis.

Wynn Hurls 3-0 Victory Over Indians

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

Cleveland, June 5.—With Early Wynn and Sherry Robertson teaming up to make life miserable for the Indians, the Nats today evened up their Western trip with a 3-0 triumph over the Tribe in a most satisfying manner.

Wynn spun a six-hitter as he handcuffed Indians who didn't get a man to third base until the ninth.

Prior to their last inning flurry which consisted of two singles, the best the Tribe could do off Early was to get Manager Lou Boudreau to second when he clocked a double to left.

Fifth For Wynn

It was Wynn's fifth victory against four defeats and his first shutout of the season. He didn't walk any but may have done the Tribe a lot of damage when he plunked Boudreau in the side with a pitch in the fourth, forcing the league's leading hitter from the game. X-ray pictures will be taken tomorrow by the club physician, who fears a cracked rib.

Robertson, who took over at third in place of Eddie Yost, led the Nats' seven-hit attack off Don Black, Tribe starter, who surrendered all the Nat runs one at a time. Sherry connected for his first homer of the year and later drove in the Nats' second run in the fourth with a single.

Not to be outdone, Al Evans also chipped in with his first circuit clout of the season in the seventh to give Wynn a bit more insurance, which was welcome but not really needed.

Wynn never gave up more than one hit per inning until the ninth when the Tribe made its only threat. With one out Metkovich banged his second single and Les Fleming followed with another, the fourth straight base knock for Fleming in a pinch-hitting role.

Metkovich reached third and the Tribe had visions of cooking up something with two home run threats, Eddie Robinson and Joe Gordon coming up. But Wynn made Robinson pop to Vernon and Gordon obligingly smashed one down third to Robertson, who made a nice pickup and forced Fleming at second to seal the victory.

Robertson's homer in the second gave the Nats a 1-0 lead and the same young man was very much around when the Nats made it 2-0 in the fourth.

Bums Take Lead; Drop Pirates, 3-0

Brooklyn, June 5 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers took over first place in the tight National League pennant race today as rookie right-hander Harry Taylor blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-0, on two hits.

The win moved the Brooks 10 percentage points ahead of the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs who split a twin bill and dropped into a tie for second place.

Wally Westlake collected both Pirate hits, a triple in the second inning and a single in the fourth. Taylor walked six batters and fanned five in garnering his third straight victory.

Reds Beat Phils Twice

Philadelphia, June 5 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds defeated the Phillies in both ends of a double-header here today, 5-0 and 6-3, to hop back into fifth place in the standings. In the second game the Reds hammered Oscar Judd for 12 hits while Harry Gumbert relieved Elmer Riddle in the fifth when the Reds held a 4-3 lead to get credit for his fourth victory against two defeats.

Yanks Beat Tigers; Only Game Behind

Detroit, June 5 (AP).—New York's surging Yankees closed in on league-leading Detroit today with a 7 to 0 victory that trimmed the Tigers' first-place edge to a single game.

Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, who pitched a three-hit shutout, and Tommy Henrich, who smacked a pair of home runs, his third and fourth, were the fair-haired boys today as the Yanks took their fourth victory in six games with Detroit this year and won the series three games to one.

The game was interrupted for seven minutes by a shower and enlivened by a near-brawl a few moments later when Yankee Catcher Ralph Houk was put out of the game and Tiger Pitcher Freddie Hutchinson banished from the dugout as a result of a series of runins around the plate in the fourth inning.

Cubs, Giants Split Games

New York, June 5 (AP).—The New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs fought to a standstill today and as a result they relinquished their grip on the National League lead to the Brooklyn Dodgers by 10 percentage points.

After the Cubs took the opener, 5-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Paul Erickson, the Giants came back and squashed the Cubs in the nightcap, 9-3, on the strength of an eight-run third inning rally that saw 13 Giants parade to the plate.

House Democrats Slip 2 Senators in Lineup

IT MAY not have been by unanimous consent, but the Democrats yesterday slipped a couple of Senators into their line-up for Saturday's baseball blowout at Griffith Stadium.

The game has been billed as a contest between Democrat and Republican members of the House, but when the Democrats announced their line-up they sported a senatorial battery.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Washington State, will do the catching for the Democrats with Senator John J. Sparkman, Alabama, whipping over his fast ball.

The GOP, playing it straight, announced a full nine of House members.

House leaders of both parties will map out team strategy. Representative Sam Rayburn, Texas, and John McCormack, Massachusetts, who called the plays on Capitol Hill through many a season, will coach the Democrats.

Telling the Republicans when to hit the dirt will be Speaker Joe Martin, Massachusetts, and Majority Leader Charles Halleck, Indiana. Halleck also is quite a golfer, having played in the National Celebrities tournament here earlier in the month.

The game will start at 2:30 o'clock. Proceeds will be contributed to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

Democrats		Republicans
Sen. Sparkman	Pitcher	Rep. Corbett
Sen. Magnuson	Catcher	Rep. Wilson
Rep. Carroll	1 B	Rep. Howell
Rep. Cooley	2 B	Rep. Bishop
Rep. Dorn	S S	Rep. Davis

Rep. Battle	R F	Rep. Hagen

SPARKMAN

MAGNUSON

A Washer for a Homer

There will be more than applause from his side's rooting section for the Republican or Democrat who hits the first homerun in Saturday's House baseball game at Griffith Stadium.

An automatic home washer will be wheeled out to the plate to be presented to the congressional Bambino as he completes the circuit. If necessary, the Congressman who swats the homer, can be wheeled back to the dugout astride the thing and be all washed up.

Ruth Hurls No-Hitter

Trinidad Boys Club Rockets, composed of boys 14 years old and under, defeated Rosedale, 8-4, yesterday in a softball game as Rosedale. Bobby Ruth pitched no-hit ball for Trinidad, all the Rosedale runs being unearned.

Out Fishing...

By Jack Bell

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 5.—Now that the Outdoor Writers "Florida Frolic" has gotten under way, it will not be all fish and fishing business for 325 fishing writers, artists and their wives who are here from all parts of the United States, Canada and Cuba.

The trip to Homosassa was one of superb jungle scenery around and about the huge springs that form the headwaters of Homosassa River. The spring holes contain hundreds of several varieties of both fresh and salt water fish.

The fish are free to come and go to the Gulf of Mexico and in season the "bowl" is filled with ever-changing species. Soon tarpon will take over the springs and jack crevalla and snook are now taking over.

A boat trip of 2 miles downstream was made. The river banks are lined with dense jungle growth and water filled with thousands of fish and huge turtles.

* * * *

ONE of the spring holes isolated from the rest was too much for the scribes, who dove in water of 62 degrees with the outside temperature 92 in the shade.

The survey of this natural Florida jungle is open to the public and the property is owned by Dave Newell, former editor of Field and Stream and now of Hunting and Fishing on the air fame.

Newell was host to the writers and their wives and topped the visit off with an outdoor lunch of fried fish, hushpuppies and snapper soup, and all the trimming.

Mary Ainslee, public relations director for the Province of Ontario, Canada, currently here with fellow outdoor writers, walked off with top honors yesterday in the tarpon rodeo with an 83-pound tarpon. Tying for second place in the outdoor writers division was Mary Land, New Orleans, who landed a 67-pounder.

Jockey Scocca Boots Rebline In at Charles Town

4-Year Old Pays $10.80; Tie for 2d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 5.—Jockey Danny Scocca, Washington boy who graduated from Eastern High, drove N. S. P. Stitt's Rebline to a length victory in the Atlas Purse, featuring the Thursday program here.

The 4-year-old colt finished in front of a dead heat for place money between J. E. Crider's Alhalon and Mrs. Perry's Stinging Sam. A field of eight competed.

Rebline, winner at Bowie this Spring and home first last out here, had a lukewarm backing in the crowd of 6500 and paid $10.80 mutuel. He was clocked in 1:47 4/5 for the mile and one-sixteenth over a fast track and under the clearest sky I've ever seen.

Alhalon was installed the favorite and did the expected by going to the front directly after the break. Peace Fleet and Inez M., were closest to the pacemaker the first time through the stretch. Rebline was being rated in fifth position at this time.

Peace Fleet gave up chasing Alhalon entering the backstretch. Inez M. then moved up abreast of the leader. Scocca then placed Rebline to a drive and went between the top pair. Rebline gradually took command as Inez M. weakened. The ultimate winner shook off Alhalon and then Scocca went to the whip.

In the meanwhile, Stinging Sam, off poorly and apparently headed nowhere in particular, rallied and came around horses with a bold rush. He was up in the last stride to earn the dead heat for the place.

Gertie O., owned by Mercer Love 3d, scored a lucky victory in the fifth race, the day's secondary feature. The filly won by something more than a length but was presented with the victory by G. A. Lawson's Fall Guy, ridden by Sammy Palumbo. Fall Guy had a good lead and looked all the part of a winner. However, in midstretch he apparently saw the starting gate on the side of the track, shied and then propped.

During this mishap, Gertie O. took command and, although Palumbo got Fall Guy under way once more, the three-year-old could not get up. G. A. Saportas' Bardy's Baby was third. Gertie O., paid $13.80.

The program brought an $11.40 payoff in the Daily Double. Palumbo won the first race with R. Boener's Way Gold, an $8 shot who beat a bunch of paddock tips. The second went to Mrs. M. H. Everhart's Road Scraper, a $4 favorite ridden by Jimmy Baird.

Mat Card Announced

Maurice LaChappelle, the French-Canadian, and Gino Garibaldi, the stocky Italian, were matched yesterday for a headline bout on next Wednesday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Locke's 67 was composed of 34-33; Oliver had 33-32; Payton 36-31, and the amazing Griffin, 32-35.

Grouped at 68 with Mangrum were George Schneiter, Ogden, Utah, 34-34; Harold Oatman, Norfolk, Va., 33-35; former tennis star Elly Vines, 34-34; Otto Greiner, Baltimore, who led the Nation in the recent open qualifying tests, 34-34, and Lew Worsham, Washington, 32-36.

Worsham had a splendid chance after his fine 32, but three-putted three greens coming in to "slip" to 68, two strokes behind the pace-setters.

The 69 contingent included Roger Peacock, Heafner, Skip Alexander and surprising Peyton Bowling of Roanoke, Va.

At 70 were Al Houghton of the home forces, former National Open Champ Tony Manero, and Walter Romans.

Washington policeman and weight-lifting champion Keith Kallio, had a 71 as did Bill Shea, former Georgetown U. golf captain; District Champion Bobby Brownell, Bob Hamilton, Canadian Open Champion George Fazio, Johnny Palmer, Freddie Haas, jr., and Gene Kunes.

TEE TO GREEN: Most disappointing round of the day was turned in by young George Schoux, young pro at Mamaroneck, N. Y., who had an amazing 90. Schoux, winner of last winter's Richmond, Calif., open and regarded by his fellow pros as one of the game's coming stars, complained of a bad back . . . Snead was playing with a new set of clubs, delivered to him at noon. Snead purchased the sticks Wednesday and the set included a new putter—Sam Snead model. It's the putter, you remember, that causes Snead most of his trouble, but he stuck to his own brand instead of purchasing a Gene Sarazen model, as suggested by the salesman . . . Jimmy Demaret, Herman Barron and Lawson Little were the only two big name operators who failed to make an appearance for the show . . . The spectators knew that par was in for a terrific shellacking by noon time. That's when host pro Al Houghton surprised everyone—himself included—with his two-under 70 . . . The Snead-Mangrum-Heafner trio furnished the most spectacular shots. Sam chipped in from a trap for an eagle deuce on the first hole, Mangrum chipped in from a trap on No. 4 for an eagle and Haefner canned a 40-footer on 17 for a birdie deuce. . . .

Tomorrow Is 'Diploma Day' for Ball School Kids

Tomorrow is "Diploma Day" for the 5000 students who regularly attended the Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball School from April 19 through May 10.

Presentation of the diplomas will take place at 10 a. m. at the same 22 Recreation Department locations where the five weekly classes were held.

In addition, each of the Johnson School graduates will receive a booklet entitled "How To Play Better Baseball," inside tips by the Nats as told to Shirley Povich.

Beside each article in the book are pictures of Mickey, Al Evans, Gerry Priddy, Mark Christman, Cecil Travis, Stan Spence, Bobo Newsom and other Nat players, who lectured and demonstrated in person at three of the five sessions.

Most of the kids who attended the classes are now applying what they learned in Walter Johnson League play. The leagues began two weeks ago for youngsters in the 12 and under, and 13 to 14-year-age groups.

Midgets Open Tonight at West Lanham

The midgets return to West Lanham tonight.

The best in big names of the little car world open the midget auto racing season at the Maryland speedway at 8:30 p. m.

A seven event program is on tap with time trials starting at 7 o'clock. The speedway can be reached by going out Bladensburg Road to Peace Cross where State police will be on duty to direct fans to the races.

Tonight's field will include five of the Nation's top pilots who will appear in new Offenhauser machines. Bill Schindler, the one-legged ace; Rex Records, Dutch Schaefer, Tony Bonadies and Chet Gibbons will be numbered among the prerace favorites.

Mike Joseph, the Philadelphia veteran and newly elected president of the American Racing Drivers' Club, will compete in his new Stevens Ford while Larry Bloomer, national champion for the past two years; George Fonder and Shorty McAndrews also are Ford drivers and starting possibilities.

Tickets for tonight's Lanham inaugural are on sale at the Fairway, 1328 G nw., until 3 p. m. today, and at the Speedway thereafter.

Cubans Defeat Grays, 13-10

The New York Cubans defeated the Homestead Grays, 13-10, in a Negro National League contest last night in Griffith Stadium.

Tim Minoso of the Cubans walloped a home run with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to sew up the game for the visitors.

Johnsen Upset in Net Play

In a startling upset, Jim Farrin defeated Dr. David Johnsen, 6—0, 0—6, 6—0, yesterday in the first round of the Northern Virginia Invitation Tennis Tournament at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Johnsen, runner up to Barney Welsh in the City of Washington tournament last week, was the third seeded player in the tournament, and Farrin's decisive victory puts him up among the players to watch.

First seeded Gardner Larned advanced by defeating William Gifford, 7—5, 6—3. Larned was extended by Gifford in the first set, but gained control and won easily.

Bernard Bartzen, seeded second, and Donald Leavens, ranked fourth, had no trouble as they advanced to the second round.

MEN'S SINGLES

Bartzen defeated Dunham, 6—3, 6—0. Neff defeated Adair, 6—3, 6—4. Farrin defeated Johnsen, 6—0, 0—6, 6—0. Lynch defeated Jones, 6—3, 6—3. Larned defeated Gifford, 7—5, 6—3. Curtiss defeated Rice, 6—1, 6—1. Leavens defeated Springs, 6—1, 6—1. Thackara defeated Atwater, 1—6, 6—3, 6—2.

MEN'S DOUBLES

Larned-Bartzen defeated Black-Adams, 6—0, 6—1. Adair-Nannes defeated Royal-McCarroll, 6—4, 6—3. Farrin-Smith defeated Dunham-Boyer, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4. Gifford-Curtiss defeated Rice-Powers, 6—4, 6—1. Johnsen-Leavens defeated Long-Newcomer, 6—2, 6—1.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Ann Gray defeated Gwen Groves, 6—0, 6—0.

Today's pairings:

Moore Fights Sheppard Here

Heavyweights Archie Moore, St. Louis, and Curtis Sheppard, Baltimore, will fight a 10-round bout at Griffith stadium the night of June 16, Promoter Goldie Ahearn announced yesterday.

Moore, one-time ranking light heavyweight contender, beat Sheppard in a knockdown affair in Baltimore in January, 1946.

Sheppard has fought Jimmy Bivens, Cleveland heavyweight, a number of times without ever beating him.

Ahearn said he planned to devote 10 per cent of the gross receipts to the Damon Runyon cancer fund.

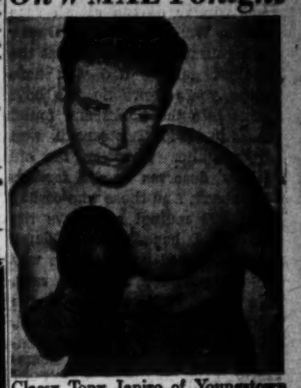
Garden Punchfest On WMAL Tonight



Classy Tony Janiro of Youngstown makes his middleweight debut when he clashes with Jacob LaMotta (above), high-ranking Bronx battler in a ten-rounder at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Janiro was a lightweight when he started his pro career three years ago. He later established himself as a top-flight welterweight. Now he is moving into the 160-lb. division. Tony has won 59 out of 62 fights but in tackling his first middleweight, he has picked a tough nut to crack.

LaMotta is one of boxing's most unusual physical specimens. Jawbone Jake is a human block of granite. He belongs to the mauler class and is a smashing body puncher. The Bronxite has agreed to make 155 pounds for his meeting with Janiro.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WMAL (630 on your dial at 10 p.m.)

And remember, men . . . LOOK sharp! FEEL sharp! BE sharp! Use Gillette Blue Blades with the sharpest edges ever honed!

DEAR FOLKS:

There were many arguments here last night concerning Tristernagh, the 12-year-old "maiden" winner of the eighth race on the Wednesday card. Owner Bringhurst remembered that the ancient gelding had won here some years ago. So the boys went into the books and found that in 1940 Tristernagh won from Dulie. However, the old fellow deserves credit for his comeback. And those who cashed that $93 mutuel still have the money, I hope. Black Flame was scratched while on the way to the post for the third race. He was very sore and the stewards ordered his withdrawal. Jimmy Baird, the plucky apprentice, leads the riders here. Somebody said Palumbo wasn't 37 years old. He is 38 and was born in 1909. I saw him ride the last winner at Pimlico on the day that Victorian beat Toro in the Preakness and that wasn't yesterday. Ten horses have been claimed here involving $10,250. Inducted, Wale Signal and Meadow Luck have been placed on Starter Harold Holland's list and will have to brush up on their post manners before getting into action again. Fred Burton, racing secretary here has things shipshape and leaves Saturday for Chicago where he will make the programs at Arlington and Washington Park. See you on the rail . . . BILL.

Reiser's Injury Is Not Serious

Brooklyn, June 5 (AP).—X-ray pictures today disclosed that Pete Reiser, Brooklyn outfielder, suffered neither a fractured skull nor a brain concussion when he slammed into a concrete wall while making a catch last night.

Arthur Mann, executive assistant to Club President Branch Rickey, said he had been informed that Reiser's injuries consisted primarily of painful and numerous face lacerations.

Ulcers Staggers To Turtle Derby Victory by a Hair

Baltimore, June 5 (AP).—Ulcers, cut of Neurosis by Frustration, led from start to finish in the Johns Hopkins Hospital Turtle Derby today, making the 53 other entries look like so much soup meat.

The metal retaining ring was lifted from the center of the 24-foot track and they were off. Two or three of them were, that is. The rest just sat in the sun.

Dr. Philip Tumulty, secretary of the Hopkins Turf and Turtle Club, said the time, 54 seconds, was excellent, since the track was dry and consequently slow for the muddiers.

Minor Leaguer Barred for Life

Columbus, Ohio, June 5 (AP).—Commissioner George M. Trautman of the minor leagues today banned Outfielder Marion A. McElreath from organized baseball for life on charges that he "threw" a game while playing for the Muskogee, Okla., club of the Western Association on May 4.

Trautman's decision came after he investigated a report from Thomas Fairweather, president of the association, who stated that McElreath allegedly approached a teammate with a proposition to join him in a wager on the opposing club and then deliberately throw the game.

Trautman's report said that on two plays in the game in question, played at St. Joseph, Mo., discretion showed that "McElreath did not perform in full good faith."

"A Lie," Says McElreath

St. Joseph, Mo., June 5 (AP).—The News-Press said today Marion Allen McElreath, former outfielder for the Muskogee, Okla., club of the Western Association, had termed "a lie" charges made by the head of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs in banning him from the game for life.

Cranford-Lake Bout Added to Monday Card

Jackie Cranford, Washington heavyweight contender, and Jimmy Lake (not the announcer), of Montreal, will clash in an added 10-round feature on Monday night's boxing show at Griffith Stadium in which Joe Gannon and Ken Stribling, local middleweight rivals, will be headlined.

This will be Cranford's first local start in several months, although he has been far from inactive. Only recently he stopped Tony Charles in one round in Cincinnati.

Lake, claimant of the Canadian lightheavyweight title, recently whipped Sanders Cox at the Ridgewood Grove, while his 1946 record shows that the former Royal Canadian Air Forces war hero scored seven victories and lost two.

Matchmaker Menendez announced that some well known boxers will be in the supporting card. Jimmy McGriff will box Bobby Sumak in a six; Arthur Bethea will tackle Jimmy Briscoe in six and Puggy King will meet Henry Young in a four.

All-Stars Poll Opens Today

Chicago, June 5 (AP).—The Nation's baseball fans go to bat tomorrow to select their own favorites for the Major League All-Star Game at Wrigley Field, July 8, in a three-week poll conducted by 182 newspapers, radio stations and magazines.

The voting for the eight top players, exclusive of pitchers, in both the American and National Leagues, will continue in 42 States, the District of Columbia, Canada, Hawaii, Panama and among overseas troops until midnight, June 26.

Each agency will conduct its poll in its own manner, but all tabulations will be handled by the Chicago Tribune, which as the ballot sponsors, will serve as the clearing house for the widespread project.

It will be the first time since 1935 that the fans have had their own say about the All-Star selections, both leagues naming their own lineups for 10 of the 13 games played to date.

The All-Star pitchers will be picked by Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, who will handle the American League team, and Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals, who will boss the National Leaguers.

Mrs. Young Wins NBC Golf Cup

Mrs. O. L. Young, of Prince Georges Country club, captured the playoff for the Women's District Golf association-sponsored N.B.C. cup yesterday at Army-Navy Country club, defeating Mrs. William Foley, of Kenwood.

The Prince Georges player turned in 89, 11—78 for the extra 18-hole session, while the River Road club player finished with 101, 18—83. The pair deadlocked for the main honors Tuesday with net 76's.

Naiman's Blanks Duffy's, 6 to 0

Naiman's Dise Shop tightened its hold on second place in the Post-Industrial League yesterday by shutting out Duffy's Tavern, 6-0, on the West Ellipse. The veteran Lefty McIntyre went the route for Naiman's yielding only six scattered hits. The win was the fourth in six games for Naiman's.

St. Gabriel's Wins CYO First Division

St. Gabriel downed St. Francis Xavier, 9-3, yesterday at Priory, to win the First Division CYO League title. Jim Sullivan and Bob Potts each drove in two runs for the winners.

FBI Captures Title In Departmental Loop

Federal Bureau of Investigation won the first half championship of the Departmental Baseball League yesterday by blasting the Twelfth Precinct Pistol Club, 10-4, on the South Ellipse.

Munn Says Big 9 Balks At Spartan Scholarships

Lansing, Mich., June 5 (AP).—Clarence (Biggie) Munn, Michigan State College football coach, charged in a Kiwanis Club speech today that the Big Nine had refused Michigan State membership largely because of the Spartan's scholarship system.

"They dislike our scholarships," Munn declared. "Why should we have to do like a lot of them do—hand it under the table?"

"If these boys get a little help through our scholarships, it's all right with me," Munn said. "Scholarships are given for chemistry and the band, so what's wrong with athletic scholarships? They all do it one way or another. Why not do it above the table?"

Mrs. Meckley Wins

Mrs. Betty Meckley of Kenwood won low net laurels among the "Ladies Day" guests yesterday at the Indian Spring Country Club with a 79—4—75 score. Low net among the Class A Indian Spring members was posted by Mrs. P. Scaniviffe with 84—15—69. Mrs. B. Burrows won in the Class B division with 98—32—63.

The World's Most Modern Airliner... and a Wonderful New Kind of Air Travel!

First in Power! No more powerful, more dependable airliners have ever taken to the skies in commercial service than the New-Type Constellations, which are now breaking flight records wherever they fly on Eastern Air Lines! Four mighty Wright Cyclone-18 engines, with a total of 10,000 horsepower! These are the same engines tested and proven in long-range military service. And with power, you get comfort, too. You ride smoothly in cabins of a new floating design, cushion-mounted on rubber — quiet, vibration-free. New-Type Constellations—the world's most modern airliners—are first on Eastern Air Lines.

First in Speed! You get speed and travel convenience that are hard to believe—for this great New-Type Constellation flies well over 300 miles an hour! It's faster than any other airliner now in commercial service—and Eastern is the first to have it. Yet, with this speed you enjoy smoothness and luxury you've never known before—deep, comfortable seats—air-conditioned, comfort-controlled cabins for restful, refreshing flight at any altitude—two entrances for easy boarding and leaving. And there's a crew of five on every flight: seasoned captain, skilled pilot, flight engineer to oversee all mechanical details, and two cabin attendants.

First in Dependability! You ride relaxed in the New-Type Constellation—for you know it has dependability features of which no other airliner can boast. Its tremendous reserve of power gives it a tremendous reserve of performance—the New-Type Constellation flies easily and actually climbs, on any two of its four mighty engines. Now, long-distance trips become faster, more convenient, more enjoyable than ever before. Plan now to fly in Eastern's New-Type Constellations. Improved service on shorter intercity travel, too! New-Type Constellations make available more DC-4's and DC-3's for additional service on all Eastern routes.

These New-Type Constellations expand the services of the already famous Great Silver Fleet of DC-3's and DC-4's.

SMALL FARMS

2 acres and independence, $690 (no house). Near school, stores, churches, bus, etc. Near fast-growing town. Plenty of room for chickens, garden, fruits, berries, etc. Beautifully wooded lots—some have big oak trees, 70 and 80 feet high. There is plenty of timber on any of these wooded lots to build your own log cabin—two buyers have already done so. Price, $690 and up.

$69 DOWN, $12 MONTHLY

Drive out Lee blvd. or Lee hwy., 25 minutes to CENTREVILLE. See our big sign on right, FAIRFAX FARMS. Four-lane highway from Washington to Centerville, no turns. Open every day, 3 to 9 p. m. Bring $10 deposit. Trailways bus passes us on Lee hwy.

Water Front Farmettes

Here are several 5-acre farmettes fronting on Nomini River in historical Westmoreland County, Va., with direct water frontage and full river riparian rights; roads and electricity in. Also 3 lovely smaller sites averaging 2 to 4 acres on Buckners Creek.

These farms are located on Bushfield (the name of John Augustine Washington) which has been subdivided into gentlemen's estates—several have cottages going up on them now which will be ready this summer.

If you want a quiet beautiful country home on the water to retire to for year 'round residence and recreation on good blue water, this is about the last good waterfront available in this charming section of Virginia. Prices range from $1,200 to $1,750 a farm with roads and electricity in and the bungalows with large living rooms, heatolators, fireplaces, baths, hot and cold running water. Large porches and wharf built will run from $6,000 to $8,000. Easily financed either GI or straight.

Follow Route No. 1 to Fredericksburg, Route No. 3 to Montross and 202 to Mount Holly.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1947

Embassy To Honor George VI

By Marie McNair

FOR THE first time since the war the birthday anniversary of His Majesty the King will be celebrated with the traditional garden party at the British Embassy.

Gold crested invitations came in the mail yesterday from the British Ambassador, the Right Honorable, the Lord Inverchapel, for June 12 from 5 to 7 o'clock. Engraved also at the left hand corner is the admonition, "weather permitting."

Actually King George VI was born in December, but June 12 was chosen by the practical British as His Majesty's official birthday so the empire might carry out the tradition of celebrating the anniversary with garden parties in the season when flowers are abloom and the famous English strawberries are at their height.

It was nine years ago when King George celebrated his forty-third birthday, that the last garden party was held at the British Embassy to mark the event. But the following year—1939—King George and Queen Elizabeth visited Washington and the royal garden party at which they were hosts that memorable day in June was the subject of tea time conversation for weeks.

IT looks as though there'll be no let-up in entertaining through June. A card comes from Lady Iris Mountbatten, great granddaughter of Queen Victoria, niece of the Queen of Spain and cousin of the King of England, for a cocktail party on Sunday at the Don Pallini Studio of Dance on Connecticut ave.

The tall willowy blonde, daughter of the Marquis and Marquess of Carisbrooke, who came to this country a few months ago is an executive with the Pallini firm at a fancy salary, and divides her time between the New York and Washington studios.

Auf Wiedersehen

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Perrin—they're both architects and she's president of the Wellesley Club—have sent out highly amusing invitations, black bordered and decorated with tear drops to say "Auf Wiedersehn" to the Gene Swigarts who are leaving this month for Cincinnati to make their home.

In bold script it reads "The Hugh Perrins sympathetically request your sorrowful presence at the saddest ceremony of the season." Inside the folder pretzels, mugs of beer spilling tears, a large cheese and ham are being juggled by a handle-bar mustachioed bartender, and it goes on to read: "B. Y. O. H. 'Bring your own handkerchief; beer to cry into will be provided in the Perrins' Teargarten on Friday the thirteenth of June from 6 o'clock."

Other June Parties

Other parties lined up for June are the cocktail party to be given by Dr. and Mrs. Philip S. Owen on Sunday; Meredith Howard's cocktail party the same day for Jean Hersholt, of movie and radio fame, and Mrs. Hersholt; and the garden party on June 21 to be given by the Junior Assembly of Washington at "The Shadows," home of Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Westcott Hill in Alexandria, when several of the spring debutantes will be presented.

Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Dreisontok will be at home Sunday afternoon from 6 to 8.

Yesterday Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, widow of the Senator from Illinois, entertained at a reception at the Sulgrave Club, her last large party before leaving early in July for Chicago.

During her long years residence in Washington Mrs. Lewis has made shoals of friends here who came yesterday to bid her goodby for another year. Mrs. James L. Houghteling was among those at the flower-decked tea table.

Morgans Entertain

Gen. Sir William Morgan and his daughter, Miss Pauline Morgan, entertained at cocktails yesterday afternoon for a few of their friends.

Felts Here

Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Felts of Judsonia, Ark., are in Washington visiting Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. North. Mrs. Felts, sister of Mrs. North, is here also to see her son, Dr. W. R. Falts, jr., who is a doctor at Garfield Hosptal.

Whitney Vocal Scholarships Awarded to 5 Capital Students

By Genevieve Reynolds

Mary Jane Abdill, graduate of George Washington University, and Marguerite Martinelli, senior at Montgomery Blair High School, yesterday were awarded the $1000 Eleanor Searle Whitney vocal scholarships to Flordia Southern College at Lakeland. The awards were made at a meeting of the Washington chapter, National Society of Arts and Letters, held at the home of Mrs. Jessie Nicholson.

The winners will receive a year's tuition, room and board, while majoring in voice. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney had offered one $1000 scholarship but when the music commitee and judges discovered equally promising talents of the two, Mrs. Whitney quickly added another $1000 so both could study on scholarships.

For the second time, Lindsey Bergen, tenor, who graduated from George Washington High School in Alexandria, also won a $1000 voice scholarship to Florida Southern.

Eleanor Updike and Peggy Schaff also were given $1000 scholarships for the third successive year. These have been donated by Mrs. Whitney each year.

piano scholarship again went to Sunny Sturtevant. This is the third year that Miss Sturtevant has won the group's scholarship at Holton Arms.

Mrs. Whitney, who is chairman of Washington Chapter's Music Committee donated a total of $5000 for vocal scholarships to Florida Southern College—her alma mater.

Auditions for contestants were held this week. Serving as judges with Mrs. Whitney were Henriette Bagger Plum, James McLain, director of music at American University; Charles Dana Beaschler, choir director at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Robert Gayler, dean of music at Florida Southern.

Mabele Perry Edwards, newly elected president of the Washington Chapter, NSAL, announced the scholarship winners and named new committee chairmen. They are Mrs. James Gibson, art; Mrs. Henriette Plum, music; Mrs. Constantine Brown, literature; Mrs. J. W. Nicholson, program; Mrs. Dorothy Nicholson Bates, public relations and Mrs. J. Donald Halsted, clubhouse.

MRS. Elizabeth Barron Magruder of Arlington has been designated winner of the Arlington Soroptimist Club's 1947 award of merit. She was chosen for outstanding community service.

Mrs. Magruder

Presentation of the award will be made at a tea, Sunday, June 15, 4 to 6 p. m. in the Arlington Recreation Center, Lee Highway and Nelson st., Arlington, according to Mrs. Pearl W. Sharpe, chairman of the award committee.

An Arlington resident for 33 years, Mrs. Magruder has helped lay the foundations for many civic welfare and social agencies. Only woman member of County Board of Commissioners, she has been elected for four consecutive terms of office, and has served three times during her more than 15 years of service. It was she who helped to inaugurate the present county manager form of government, first of its kind in the United States. Also she was largely responsible for the development of the sanitation system. One of her first official acts was introduction of a motion to allocate funds for libraries which she had helped to organize several years prior to becoming a board member.

Organized Hospital Fund

Due to Mrs. Magruder's suggestion the establishment of the county hospital turned into a woman's project. The women formed and incorporated an organization to collect funds for the hospital. In addition, she was active in forming the first welfare board, and, as chairman of the Victory Garden Program, she encouraged the development of 15,000 gardens.

She is also vice president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc.; a board member of the County's Tuberculosis Association; charter member of the Visiting Nurses Association and Organized Women Voters, and past president of the Women's Society for Church Service of Clarendon Methodist Church.

Church Council Opens Doll Dressing Program

The Washington Council of Church Women will launch its annual doll-adoption program at a tea today, 2 to 4 p. m., at the Juvenile Court Building, 400 E st. nw., when hundreds of women will bring their hand-dressed dolls. This is the first step in teaching child care through the adoption of dolls.

Originated eight years ago by Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the council, the church women have made or dressed over 10,000 dolls for adoption.

Children select a doll from the hundreds displayed, then they sign a good mother pledge. Each day the little mothers bring the dolls to the Dolls Schools held in churches around the town. Here they get lessons in hygiene, religious nurture and character building. Games, hand work and other recreation are also supervised.

Foster mothers are admitted by enrollment cards filled in by their parents. Cards are given out by the church visitor, community social worker, a visiting nurse or some worker who knows the home.

The Doll Schools have been used in the city's congested areas. Usually the schools run from two to six weeks each summer. Location of this year's schools will be announced later.

MRS. INGRAM M. STAINBACK, wife of the Governor of Hawaii, shown in the brocaded satin gown of gray, blue, orchid and pink and the pikake lei she wore for the recent reception in Honolulu, when she and Governor Stainback celebrated their silver wedding anniversary

GOV. AND Mrs. Ingram M. Stainback of Hawaii arrived in Washington Wednesday and are stopping at the Mayflower. After a visit in the East, they will attend the thirty-ninth annual conference of Governors in Utah, and return to Honolulu by air.

Mrs. Stainback brought news of the Atherton Macondrays and other Washingtonians now living in Honolulu. Mrs. Winifred Shelton of Washington and Dallas, Tex., was among the many guests who attended the silver wedding anniversary celebrated by the Governor and Mrs. Stainback before their trip to the mainland.

The reception was held in Washington Place, the Governor's official mansion, and former home of Hawaii's famed Queen Liliuokalani. For their anniversary, the Steinbacks received almost 2000 leis from all over the islands.

Gala Party Planned by Peace Group

A garden party with music, ballet, door prizes and other entertainment will be given by the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace on Wednesday, June 18, from 5 to 7 o'clock. The fete will be held at 2601 30th st. nw., home of Mrs. Martin Vogel.

Cochairmen of patrons are Mrs. Robert Low Bacon and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

The little symphony of the Army Air Force Band will play, and Zina Ouzarova, well-known teacher of classical ballet, will give her own interpretations of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and Saint-Saens' "The Swan."

The Women's Action Committee is a Nation-wide organization working actively for peace through the United Nations. During the coming season its members will be heard regularly over Washington radio station WINX, and part of the proceeds from the garden party will be used to distribute these broadcasts.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Richard Whiteley, 2915 Woodland dr., Washington.

. . . makes home in Capital

Clarkson—Howie

Miss Juanita Lillian Clarkson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarkson of Washington, was married on May 28 in Fifteenth Street Christian Church to Lawrence Howie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Howie of Danville, Ill. The Rev. Lesley L. Bowers officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white satin, a finger-tip veil falling from a seed pearl coronet. Miss Alice Clarkson, gowned in pink, was maid of honor. Misses Kathryn Clarkson and Lee Rector, bridesmaids, wore aqua. Warren Norwood was best man and ushers were Erwin Krohn and Richard Gates. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Howie will return from a wedding trip to Danville, to make their home in this city.

Rice—Booher

Married in Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church on May 24 were Miss Phyllis J. Booher, daughter of Mrs. James Booher of Washington and the late Mr. Booher, and Robert T. Rice, son of Ross T. Rice of Parkesburg, Pa., and the late Mrs. Rice. The Rev. John W. Rustin officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, A. S. Brockman, the bride wore ivory satin, a tiara of seed pearls and crystal beads holding her imported French finger-tip veil, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Inez Booher, maid of honor for her sister, wore blue net and carried yellow roses and pink sweet peas. Misses Muriel Brockman, Irene Lord and Louise Steinberg, gowned in pink and carrying blue delphinium and pink sweet peas, also attended the bride. John Shivery was best man and ushers were Percy White, Robert Lee and Malverne Pennock.

Grabowiecki—Smith

Miss Dorothy Suzanne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Smith, Silver Spring, was married Sunday, June 1, to John Grabowiecki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Grabowiecki, New York.

The ceremony took place at Woodside Methodist Church, with the Rev. Philip Edwards officiating. A reception was held following the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of point-d'esprit with finger-tip length veil held by a tiara of seed pearls. Her bouquet was of white gladioli.

Miss Frances Davis, maid of honor, wore pale yellow marquisette and carried a spring bouquet of blue delphinium, pink snapdragons and yellow marquerites. A band of flowers held her short veil. Stephens Grabowiecki was best man for his brother and ushers were Robert Allen Paul and John Shorb. Following the reception the couple left for a northern honeymoon.

Cohen—Biron

The marriage of Miss Naomi B. Biron and Jerome Bernard Cohen took place yesterday afternoon under a canopy of white flowers in the East Room of the Mayflower Hotel, with Rabbi Henry Segal officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Biron of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mrs. Lena Cohen of Baltimore, Md.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of blush pink satin with draped skirt and bustle back. Her finger-tip veil was held by a band of seed pearls and she carried a white orchid and lilies of the valley over her prayer book.

Attending the bride were her two sisters, Misses Jean and Bernice Biron, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ruth Cohen. They wore hoop-skirted gowns of ice blue faille and carried American Beauty roses. Jerome Joffe served as best man, and ushers were Aaron Schlossberg, Bernard Hendler and Michael Hendler. A reception followed in the Mayflower's Chinese Room.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Are perfume stains on a mahogany dresser removable? How does one treat a cigarette burn on a mahogany desk; also a white spot (presumably heat) on a mahogany table? How do you remove nail polish from a pair of wool flannel slacks and a stain on a seersucker dress which has proven impervious to cold water, hot water, cleaning fluid and bleach? J. D. S.

A perfume stain can sometimes be removed from mahogany if you will mix rottenstone or powdered pumice and lemon oil to a creamy paste and apply with a soft cloth. Rub with a circular motion. Wipe up immediately with a cloth dampened with lemon oil. Then dry with a soft cloth and polish. If this doesn't do the trick, refinishing will be necessary.

Surface burns will sometimes disappear if the spot is rubbed with the polish ordinarily used, followed by rubbing with a flannel cloth. Or rub the spot with rottenstone or pumice as described above. A deep burn means that the table must be refinished.

To remove the white spot, dampen a cloth with spirits of camphor or essence of peppermint and daub the spot. Let dry thoroughly. Polish.

Take your wool flannel slacks with the nail polish on them to an expert dry cleaner promptly.

I am afraid that the stain in your seersucker dress is there to stay. Why not dye the dress a darker shade?

I have an ecru lace table cloth. I would like to know how I can make this a pure white or an egg shell. H. P. S.

First, try to remove the ecru color from your cloth with a regular household bleach. Use 1 tablespoon of bleach to 1 quart of water and soak 15 minutes. Rinse 3 times. If this treatment doesn't develop the tint you wish, use a commercial color remover and follow the directions on the package.

I live in an apartment building and in my sleeping room there is a radiator. After the steam-heating furnace is started off it knocks and bangs even though the radiator is off. What is the remedy? Thanks. M. A.

Have you tried releasing the air which might be in the radiator by opening the petcock at the side of the radiator? If this doesn't get results, this is a problem for the heating engineer.

Tell V. B. through your column that I make nice serviceable aprons from my husband's shirts. Using the shirt back, I cut the apron length for the front.. The shirt front I use as pieces on the sides. Use sleeves for belt and strings and gather apron to the belt. I leave the hem as is on the shirt and it makes up in a hurry. I use both white and colored shirts. M. V. R.

Thanks a lot for this thrifty suggestion!

I have a large desk lamp which is in excellent condition. Is there any place in Washington where I could "barter" this lamp for a smaller one? P. A. T.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Salvation of Society Depends on Getting Rid Of Kitchen Sink, The Greatest Impediment to Female Personality Development, Woman Says

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The views expressed by "A. P." in your column of May 12 are the answer to a woman's prayer. In stressing the importance of individual personality she has hit on something recognized by medical authorities as "the importance of feeling important,"—a "must" in mental well-being.

In part, she says: "Individual personality, as molded by heredity, education and circumstances, is the true touchstone to be considered in evaluating human worth."

Then she asks: "Why is it that men, when they marry—attracted for the most part by a girl's distinctive personality, not because she is a good cook, budget maker, etc.,—why do they expect her to change automatically and cheerfully into a conventional type homemaker, period?"

My answer is that men are taking the easiest way out. Feminine enterprise is apt to run into money; and where is the man who will trust his wife to know when to stop?

Men Stand Pat As Individuals

MEN, heading for the altar, already have bitten off more than they can comfortably chew; and if, on top of their traditional anxiety, they felt they were going to be liable for the upkeep of the little woman's "individual personality,"—well, you can imagine the decline in the marriage rate!

All things considered, from the man's viewpoint, somebody's got to surrender individuality, to make a twain. And history doesn't record that it has been the man. Rather the gracious and discerning wife bows to the inevitable and begins to weave a sort of domestic shroud about herself.

Economically this solves a lot of problems for her, perhaps; but at the expense of shutting herself away from the real world. It is a death blow to a sense of real and vital importance in the married female, and feminine personality just can't thrive when its style is too cramped.

A Close Student Of Kitchen Sink

NOW, judging by some of what "A. P." and I have said, one might infer that marriage is the root of all evil, insofar as cramping woman's style is concerned. But this isn't true. Woman can rise above marriage! Does that sound like heresy?

The married woman's predicament arises not so much from marriage itself, as from the impediments that accompany marriage—such, for instance, as the kitchen sink. I have made a long exhaustive study of the kitchen sink and I can say authoritatively that everything about it is unalterably and diametrically opposed to the idea of Female Individual Personality Development.

Show me a kitchen sink and I'll show you a decadent woman tied to it. Obviously the thing to do for the salvation of society is to get rid of the sink. Meanwhile I'll string along with "A. P."—and if I had life to live over, I'd settle for a park bench on sunny days and a piano box in the woods on rainy ones, and I'd go after my Personal Self Development in a really big way. Yes, sir. H. B.

Satire Reminds Of Solid Fare

DEAR H. B.: Your charming satire on the kitchen sink as the greatest stumbling block to feminine advancement calls to mind two fine articles by Della D. Cyrus, published in Atlantic Monthly, which treat the same theme in more serious vein—with a freshness of viewpoint and inexorable logic that rocks the reader back on his heels.

The first, "What's Wrong With the Family?" appeared in the November 1946 issue, pages 67-73; and the second, "Why Mothers Fail," in the March 1947 issue, pages 57-60. It seems the first incited a storm of pro-and-con comment among readers; and doubtless the second drew a similar response.

Those of you who found "A. P.'s" theories interesting can't afford to miss the Cyrus articles — which may be read in the public library files, if you have no other access to them.

Also, more food for thought along that line is furnished in a lecture by Dr. Antonia Wenkhart, entitled "The Career Mother." One of my neighbors gave me a reprint of it—for which I'm most grateful—but it's on supply for public distribution at 226 West End ave., New York City. The Auxiliary Council of the Association for the Advancement of Psychoanalysis is sponsoring the reprint, as an aid in broadening the base of human understanding. The cost of the pamphlet is 10 cents. M. H.

Rise of Japan Labor Movement May Halt Dumping of Low-Cost Goods on World Market

This is the sixth of a series reviewing the American occupation of Japan.

By A. T. Steele

Copyright, 1947, New York Tribune, Inc.

Tokyo, June 5.—The most spectacular postwar development in Japan is the expanding trade union movement. Here is a new and immense influence in Japan's national life. Released from long years of near slavery, Japanese labor is like an unchained and bewildered giant. It knows its strength, but it is not quite sure how and where to apply it.

If the Japanese labor movement emerges from its present immaturity and learns to distinguish between freedom and irresponsibility, it may become the principal guardian of democracy and pacifism in this country. Improperly led, or goaded by repression and economic despair, it could as easily plunge Japan into disorder and communism.

Labor is, and probably will remain, the major source of strength for Japan's two Left-Wing parties, the Social Democrats (Socialists) and the Communists. The Socialists, for the most part, stand for moderation as opposed to Communist extremism.

Inevitably, the emancipation of Japanese labor from its old-time bondage will have a significant effect on Japan's future trade with the outside world. With Japanese wage-earners asserting their rights, it is doubtful whether Japan will ever again be able to go in for price-cutting and dumping on her prewar scale.

Labor Responded Quickly

No section of the Japanese population responded as spontaneously or as rapidly to the new freedoms decreed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur as did the working classes. In fact, at the beginning, organized labor got too big for its britches. It grew so fast and became so ambitious that it was finally an embarrassment to the man who set it free. The general strike, set for February 1, was, in effect, a kind of revolution in disguise—a means of upsetting the conservative Japanese government in power without resort to the ballot box. Had it not been stopped by the eleventh hour intervention of General MacArthur, it would have thrown Japan's shaky economy into a state of complete and possibly disastrous paralysis and might have forced the resignation of the Yoshida cabinet.

General MacArthur's action was applauded by the majority of the Japanese people, and his subsequent order for new elections helped to soften such bitterness as remained. But Japanese labor was profoundly shaken and has since been trying to feel its way out to a new and solid footing. There is a hangover of hesitancy and uncertainty. While labor's fundamental right to strike still stands, there is a timidity about using the weapon for fear of incurring the displeasure of the occupation authorities.

The failure of the general strike had healthful consequences, too. For one thing, it led to much self-examination inside the trade union movement. Hysteria is giving way to reason. With its youthful pugnacity sobered, Japanese labor has recently shown a greater willingness to arbitrate its differences with management. Out of these meetings, and with some prodding and persuasion from America labor experts, have emerged several master agreements on wages and working conditions as progressive as might be found in the United States. The danger is that spiraling inflation in Japan may wipe out many of labor's gains. If this happens, new and dangerous tensions may arise. The Communists, who were the chief engineers of the abortive general strike, have been forced to moderate thir line but they foresee new "struggles."

The phenomenal growth of the Japanese labor union movement dates from the autumn of 1945 when General MacArthur, in a single stroke, removed all the old restraints on labor organizations. Since then, 19,980 unions have been organized, a remarkable average of better than thirty-four a day.

Newly formed unions have tended to group themselves into two main federations—the National Congress of Industrial Unions (NCIU) with a present membership of more than 1,700,000 workers, and the Japan Federation of Labor (JFL) with a following of more than 1,100,000. Four lesser federations claim an additional 1,500,000 in all. These figures do not include peasants' organizations like the Japan Farmers' Union or the various unions that have chosen to stay out of the larger affiliations.

The NCIU is not only the biggest but also the most radical and aggressive of the labor organizations. With communications workers and teachers as its nucleus, it is subject to a ponderable measure of Communist influence. Its leader, hot-headed, messianic Katsumi Kikunami, is a Japanese newspaper man who denies he is a Communist but admits to a warm sympathy for Marxist ideology. Communist influence is exercised through small but active fractions in strategic places. The greater part of the membership is either Socialist or nonpartisan in its political outlook.

The less virile Japan Federation of Labor is a Socialist stronghold. It enjoys special strength in the textile industry but includes also a smattering from virtually all fields of labor. Komakichi Matsuoka, president of the JFL is a Socialist member of the Diet. Moderate, anti-Communist, he differs from Kikunami as day from night. The JFL has made it a policy to exclude Communist-dominated unions when possible, with the result that its Communist content is negligible. The Japan Federation of Labor stands in much the same relationship to the Social Democratic Party as does British labor to the British Labor Party.

With a total membership of 5,226,900, unionized labor in Japan is approaching the limit of its expansion. Of the 7,750,000 nonfarm workers who are still unorganized, the majority are in plants too small to unionize or are unemployed. Some, like the two million boss-controlled construction laborers, are resistant to union pressure. At the most the trade union movement can draw in an additional million or so members. Although it has much popular support from outside its ranks, unionized labor remains a minority, but a strong one.

The Gallup Poll

Half of Voters Find Scapegoat Of Some Kind for High Prices

Princeton, N. J., June 5.—Whom are the American people blaming for present high prices?

No one is to blame in the opinion of less than half of voters who express an opinion. But the rest all have some scapegoat in mind for the high cost of living.

More people blame the Government and business and industry than any other single factor, a coast-to-coast poll by the Institute finds. But labor unions also come in for a share of the criticism, being blamed for jacking up the cost of labor.

Other factors are named too; indeed, the variety is such as to indicate that there is no decided focusing of blame at present on any one specific thing. This may prove fortunate for President Truman and congressional leaders of both parties when they seek re-election, for it suggests that the public mind is open to argument.

The issue of who if anybody is to blame for high prices was put to the American voters in the following fashion by the Institute.

"Do you blame anyone for present high prices?"

The vote:

Yes	49%
No	41
No opinion	10

Those who say "yes" were then asked:

"Whom do you blame?"

The replies fall into the following main categories:

Business and industry are to blame	16%
Government	15
Labor unions or leaders	10
War is to blame	1
Farmers are to blame	1
Everyone's fault	7
Miscellaneous answers	5
	55%

The table totals more than 49 per cent because some people named more than one factor.

The survey was conducted just prior to the wide publicity given to the destruction of a Government stockpile of potatoes at Foley, Ala., by pouring gasoline over them. This incident may have increased somewhat the number of people who would today blame the Government for high prices of food.

Most of the people who say business and industry are to blame single out manufacturers and producers, but a few include wholesalers and retailers as the culprits.

STARLIGHT, STAR BRIGHT! First stars you'll see tonight will be those twinkling at the Starlight Roof opening. Sammy Seymour's Skyliners, bedizened in new tan gabardines, will break out quantities of novelty dance numbers they've been saving for tonight. Eyefilling Nini Baker, the Seymour pianist, concocted the arrangements . . . Starlight, bright with new bubble decors, should pack in guests tonight to its full 600 capacity.

TITANIC KEWPIES. With their 750 collective pounds done up in baby bonnets and rompers, the Three Kewpie Dolls are dumfounding Lotus patrons who seem to figure that these huge and hilarious gals must be some sort of optical illusion. The Kewps are as attractive as they are mountainous. But when they decide that a customer is going to join their act—he does, and loves it. Wanna dance with a big fat mama—we mean Kewpie?

TYPICALLY NEW YORKY are the Three Pages of Rhythm, Merry-Land's new attraction. Theirs is the kind of rhythm that flourishes around Times Square. The Merry-Land audience listened to their opening group with true Washington detachment, then warmed right up and made with the applause in no uncertain manner. Elmer Kent, blonde and easy mannered, leads from the bass.

Bob Simpson's band, a prime attraction at Club Cairo all season, opens at the Old New Orleans tomorrow night, remember. Ted Alexander, long a Washington favorite, and Leader Bob will sell the songs. This stacks up to something perilously near perfection.

VIENNA INSPIRATION. Bob Hellman, Neptune Room piano star, absorbed great music as part of the air of the Vienna neighborhood where he was born. The homes of Beethoven and Mozart were within easy walking distance. Nearby, too, was the beer garden where Schubert composed immortal tunes and sold them for dimes, literally. Bob often took the same walks hallowed by the luckless Schubert—but he didn't go to the beer garden. Even then he didn't want to wind up writing songs for dimes and posthumous fame.

George Rouval, winner of a recent "Talent Search" at the Nightingale, writes that he wishes we'd say more about band musicians who double on vocals "if they really sing well." George has something there, especially in the qualifying phrase.

SUPPING, LIKEWISE SIPPING. The Good Earth's "family dinners" bypass all menu mulling. Contrasting Oriental dishes, expertly selected for novelty and food values, will happify either large or small parties . . . They make their own ice cream out at Commonwealth Farm and it's highly yummy! . . . Ruby Foo's "pina colada" is a tall drink that can be enjoyed alike by wets and white ribboners. You can order it with or without the "oomph," find it deliciously cooling either way . . . The hearty steaks and chops at the Stables are served with appealing niceties—meaning lots of little hot biscuits and parsley-decorated butter. Also, the fruit cocktails are made of fresh fruit, praise be! . . . At Olmsted's you can sip such rare cordials as kirshwasser and yellow chartreuse . . . River Bend's fried chicken dinners feature big, fat, tender poultry—not those tiny baby fryers. They're prepared in the individual River Bend style.

An Earful of Advice (or Something)

ADVICE

Advertising mogul Bert Sarazan has just published a book called "Delusions in Advertising," which (among other things) contains some wonderful advice.

Bert quotes his father as sending him out into the world with this philosophy:

SARAZAN

"Son, you are going out into the world to carve yourself a careeer. I'm sorry I can't stake you to a very large bundle, but I'm going to give you some advice that may keep you out of trouble.

"Always remember that no matter how far you travel, or how smart you get, some day some gentleman is going to walk up to you with a brand new deck of cards on which the seal has never been broken.

"He's going to offer to bet you that he can make the Jack of Spades jump out of that deck and squirt cider in your ear.

"But son, do not bet with him—because as sure as you do, you're going to get an earful of cider."

ABOUT DROWNING

At the District Morgue, this time of the year is known as "the drowning season."

More than half of each year's drownings occur during the months of May, June, July, and August. In 1945, 24 persons died in such accidents. In 1946, the toll was 28—and neither figure includes Washingtonians who drowned at resorts outside local jurisdiction.

Of last year's 28 victims, 24 were male and 4 female. The largest incidence of deaths is among males under 25 years of age, which should serve as a warning to the parents of boys and young men.

After each drowning, there's a great stir of activity among our local officials, and "No Swimming" signs appear to mark the places where somebody has already died.

But this column thinks it's high time we switched to preventive measures, and saved some of these lives.

I would like to hear from recreation directors, educators, officials, parents, and anybody else who might have a helpful suggestion.

LOOK, AL—I GOT THE STORY ANYHOW

Al runs a sportswear shop at 14th and Monroe nw., and gives it his full attention except when somebody mentions baseball or football.

His "buying trips" to New York are usually carefully timed to coincide with a big game. And of course he's also a regular at Griffith Stadium.

When Al heard that Police Private G. W. Miller (No. 11 precinct) was organizing a baseball team at Kimball School, Bachelor Esses became godfather to the kids. As sponsor of the team, he provided all the equipment and uniforms.

What makes the item newsworthy is that Al refuses to talk about it.

LOST

Space limitations squeeze out most of the lost-and-found items that are submitted, but we ought to shoehorn this one in:

"I lost my sterling silver Ronson lighter on Connecticut ave., between Dupont Circle and L st. nw., and I'd gladly buy it back from the finder.

"I can get another lighter in any store, but this one was engraved 'To Marie from Joe,' and it means a great deal to me. I can be reached at HObart 4676."

Marie Louise Fowle.

SWEET SCENTED ITEM

One of my favorite firemen tells this one, but cautions that we mustn't use names.

For quite some time our fireman has noticed that a certain family's children always look dirty—even dirtier than kids should look after a hard day's play.

There was a minor blaze at the family's house recently, and after it had been extinguished our fireman decided to have a look around. In the bathroom he found the solution to the mystery of the dirty children.

The family bathtub was being used as a flower garden.

Grin and Bear It

"—And I stand four-square and rock-ribbed for a world of free and equal nations—with our country second to none!"

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SOUTH DEALER

♡ K Q 7 4
◇ A 9 6 3
♣ 7 5 2

♠ A Q 10 5 3 2 ♡ 8 ◇ K J 8 4 ♣ J 10 6

♠ J 9 7 4 ♡ 6 5 2 ◇ Q 7 5 ♣ Q 9 3

♠ K 3 ♡ A J 10 9 3 ◇ 10 2 ♣ A K 8 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: J ♣.

The North player of today's deal made a free raise of his partner's hearts and that was all the encouragement South needed to jump to game. Declarer made his four-heart contract by holding up on the opening lead so as to keep the dangerous hand out of the play.

Although declarers use the hold-up in no trump almost as reflex action," he writes, "a study of the opening lead, bidding and play will invariably be helpful in applying the hold-up, even in suit contracts."

In the play West opened the jack of clubs and declarer could count only eight top tricks, two clubs, five hearts and a diamond. He saw that he could pick up two more tricks if the clubs broke 3—3 by discarding one of dummy's spades on the long club, then ruffing a spade on the board, but it would be necessary for him to keep East from gaining the lead. If East got in, he would lead a spade up to West's bid suit, killing the plan.

Since West's opening lead of the club jack placed East with the queen, declarer saw that he had better give up his certain club loser while he could do so safely. He let West's jack hold the trick, won the club return with the king, drew trumps in three rounds and cashed the ace and eight of clubs, discarding a spade from dummy.

Next declarer gave up a spade trick to West but he ruffed his remaining spade on the board. He made his four-heart contract, losing a club, spade and diamond.

If South wins the opening club lead, he cannot prevent East from getting it either with the club queen or nine; then a spade lead through the king gives the defenders a club, two spades and a diamond for down one.

Take a chance

We try to tell ourselves that when . . . We reach a certain age . . . We are too old to start anew . . . And turn another page . . . To change our character or quit . . . The job we hold today . . . And take a chance on something else . . . That offers better pay . . . We feel secure in our routine . . . And do not want to move . . . Because another future is . . . Impossible to prove . . . But actually if everyone . . . Felt pretty much the same . . . Our nation never would have won . . . Its everlasting fame . . . This life is just a game of chance . . . Whatever time or tide . . . And no one knows what he can do . . . Until his hand has tried.
